Snowstorm Blowing In From West

By MAXINE WOLF

A New Year's Eve blizzard lashed Nebraska's Panhandle, burying parts of Dawes and Scotts Bluff Counties beneath 18 inches of snow.

Apparently hardest hit by Wednesday's severe winter storm was Dawes County in the extreme northwest with Crawford receiving a foot and a half of snow and Chadron "at least 17 inches."

Highways throughout the western third of Nebraska were closed by the heavy snow as strong north winds gusted up to 40 miles an hour Wednesday night in the Harrison, Crawford and Scottsbluff areas, forcing state and county road crews to halt non-emergency operations.

Henry and Morrill, located in northwestern Scotts Bluff County, reported about 18 inches of snow, with travel limited to four-wheel drive vehicles.

Although no major emergencies were reported, a number of trucks and cars were stranded in the area between Harrison and Crawford, according to Mrs. Tom Broderick, wife of the Sioux County sheriff. However, no persons were believed trapped inside the vehicles, she added.

A foot of snow was on the ground at Harrison, while Hemingford and Alliance had 10 inches.

In Crawford most of the business places were closed Wednesday and a New Year's Eve dance was cancelled.

Cattle feeders throughout the Panhandle were reported having a difficult time getting feed to their animals.

A weather observer at Crawford said this storm was reminiscent of the 1949 blizzard which started in much the same manner.

Dawes County Sheriff Lester Jensen at Chadron reported a North Platte motorist, Mrs. Roberta Murrer, and her baby were rescued from their car which stalled 12 miles south of Chadron. He estimated the two were in the car about an hour before help arrived.

Air traffic also was at a standstill at Scottsbluff, stranding some holiday travelers. Scottsbluff reported eight inches of snow, with three-foot drifts.

The National Weather Service said the slow-moving storm, traveling eastward at about 12 miles per hour, would move into the central portion of the state Thursday and into the east by Friday.

Holiday basketball tournament games between Crawford and Hay Springs, Chadron and Alliance, Gering and Kimball, and Mitchell and Huntley, Wyo., either were cancelled or postponed when the teams were unable to travel to Chadron, according to an Associated Press dispatch.

The Hot Springs, S.D., high school team played its game and started home, but was forced to return to Chadron. Chadron State College officials were able to accommodate visiting teams in dormitories.

Civil Defense officials organized four-wheel drive vehicles in Dawes County to take elderly persons to grocery stores, while others with four-wheel drive vehicles assisted stranded motorists in the Scottsbluff area.

Meanwhile, isolated patches of light snow and freezing drizzle continued late Wednesday in the eastern three-fourths of Nebraska.

Highways in the Lexington, Ogallala, North Platte and Columbus to Humphrey areas were reported all ice covered by late Wednesday night.

A stormy New Year's Day is expected in Nebraska with locally heavy snow in the west central portion of the state Thursday morning, amounting to an additional four inches or more possible.

Gradually the snow will spread eastward, possibly becoming heavy in the central portion of the state by Thursday night, the NWS said. The storm should gradually end in the far west by Thursday night.

Friday's forecast calls for a chance of snow in the eastern and central parts of the state, possibly becoming heavy in the east.

Soviet Union Denies Cheating

SALT Deadlock Blamed On U.S.

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union denied Wednesday that it was cheating on strategic arms limitation agreements with the United States and said it is not Moscow's fault the SALT talks are deadlocked.

The Kremlin statement was in a Tass report on the text of an article to appear Thursday in the Communist party newspaper Pravda.

The article was signed by an "Observer," which means it came from the highest level. Movement of the article in advance by the official news agency underscored the importance the Soviets attach to the statement.

It appeared to be a reaction to the postponement of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's planned trip to Moscow in December aimed at breaking the nuclear arms deadlock, and intended to counter allegations the Soviet Union is violating existing agreements.

The article shed no light on whether the Soviet Union was now ready for concrete talks on the SALT issues, which have been centered on questions of including the Soviet Backfire bomber and medium range U.S. Cruise missile in the strategic weapons limits.

It did seem to indicate the Soviets have been stung by delay of the Kissinger trip — once planned to occur before Christmas — and by charges in the United States that the Soviets were cheating on agreements by building new missile silos and upgrading radar systems for to track incoming missiles.

The Pravda Observer suggested, without elaboration, that there might be failings on the U.S. side. Mentioning that any "lack of clarity" about Soviet actions had been resolved by the Soviet-American consultative committee in Geneva, the article said:

"One can only add to this that unfortunately not all the Soviet side's instances of lack of clarity in respect of some actions of the United States in connection with the commitments undertaken under the ABM treaty and the interim agreement are, as yet, fully eliminated."

Pravda gave no specifics.

The Pravda article reviews in general terms the summit meetings and agreements to date on strategic arms.

"Strictly keeping to the spirit and letter of the decisions reached at summit level, the Soviet side is constructively pursuing the line of precisely embodying the above-agreed accords in its entire volume in the draft agreement that is being prepared," Pravda said.

"It is not the Soviet Union's fault that despite the existing advance there still remain at present several unresolved questions of the substance of the new agreement on the limitation of strategic offensive arms," the newspaper stressed.

There was no mention of the aborted Kissinger trip for a meeting with Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev to deal with a new 10-year treaty to limit offensive nuclear weapons. That treaty is the next step on the arms limitation agenda and the one where stumbling blocks impede progress."

Pravda labeled as "concoctions" allegations that the Soviet Union was cheating on existing agreements by building new launch silos and carrying out "some sort of counter action to technical means of control. . ."

"In reality," Pravda said, "there have been no violations and are no violations by the Soviet Union of the antiballistic missile treaty and the interim agreement."

The article went on to say U.S. leaders including President Ford and former Defense Secretary James Schlesinger have said there were no Soviet violations and that Kissinger had "repeatedly refuted" such allegations.

Liberty Bell Has New Abode

©The New York Times

Philadelphia — The bicentennial was officially opened here Thursday as the Liberty Bell was transferred about midnight to a new pavilion across the street.

Although the move was billed as the first bicentennial event of the new year, that distinction had in fact gone earlier to a forgotten flag-raising ceremony on Guam, where 1976 had already begun.

It was a small mistake, to be sure, but it has been that sort of year for bicentennial planners and publicists all across the country, a frustrating blend of unkept promises, unfulfilled pledges, unappreciated projects, unfunded budgets and unforeseen problems that have taken their toll on the image of the celebration.

Still, international datelines notwithstanding, the commemoration of America's 200th birthday officially began Wednesday, and it began in this historic city with the midnight move of the 2,000-pound bell from the brick-and-wood shrine that has been its home for more than two centuries to a modern, steel-and-glass structure about a hundred yards away.

Scarred by its famous crack and pock-marked by souvenir-chiselers, the bell was pulled on a large blue and white cart, piped on its half-hour journey by the U.S. Infantry Old Guard Fife and Drum Corps, and ensconced in a million-dollar pavilion on Independence Mall, a transfer that, according to National Park Service planners, will enable many thousands more tourists to see it during the bicentennial year.

The Philadelphia police and other city officials estimated a crowd of at least 50,000 at the event, drawn not only by the symbolic significance of the old bell but by a miniature version of New York's noted Times Square celebration, as well

To the accompaniment of fireworks, bands and choral groups, a lighted elevator ascended the outside of a nearby building at the stroke of midnight, signaling at its apex the reality of 1976, a year during which more than 20 million visitors are expected to descend on Philadelphia.

"Tonight will give us some idea of things to come," Walter Shuttleworth, 76, of Philadelphia, said. His organization is the official bicentennial planning center and clearing house in the city and, along with the National Park Service and the city government itself, coordinated the transfer of the bell and the attendant ceremonies.

It was not a simple task. As one of the country's most treasured symbols of its revolutionary origins, the bell has been radiographed, a process similar to X-ray, by Eastman Kodak, weighed, measured and minutely examined by a battery of experts and instruments from the Franklin Institute — precautions to protect it during the move.

Not that anyone was worried about its tone. It has not been heard for nearly 130 years now, not since Feb. 23, 1846, when its peal was part of Philadelphia's celebration of George Washington's birthday. The ringing extended a crack that appeared when it was rung on the occasion of Chief Justice John Marshall's death, July 8, 1835.

Exactly 59 years before that, it had signaled the first public reading of the American colonies' unanimous declaration of independence from England, the moment for which the old bell is remembered and revered.

The bell has not been completely silent since 1846. It has been "sounded" — struck with a rubber mallet — several times.

When the bell reached its new home at approximately 12:30 a.m., Jan. 1, the Army chorus struck up a musical background for a poem read by actor Lee J. Cobb. Then, after a residence of 223 years in Independence Hall, interrupted by a few months of hiding from British soldiers in Allentown, Pa., and a few trips around the country, the Liberty Bell became available to public viewing in its new pavilion.

During 1976, Philadelphia will be visited by a host of dignitaries.

Consumers Win 1, Lose 1

Washington — The Federal Power Commission authorized Wednesday an increase of $500 million a year in natural gas prices that will be borne by households and other consumers. But in another decision, which represented a major policy change, it gave a victory to consumers that was a setback for large oil companies.

The victory came in the form of cancellation of earlier authority the FPC had given interstate natural gas pipelines to lend money to oil companies to finance exploration.

These so-called advance payments, which have totaled nearly $2 billion, have become highly controversial and were opposed not only by some consumer groups but also by some pipelines as well as California and New York regulatory authorities.

The objection was that the advance payments were being passed on to consumers in the form of higher prices and that the consumers were effectively being compelled to advance risk capital to large international oil companies.

In a second decision, the commission authorized a rate increase for producers of roughly $500 million a year, from July 1, 1976, for natural gas that began flowing before 1973, so-called "old" gas.

This increase is certain to be passed through to households, office buildings, factories, hospitals and other gas users. Officials said they could not estimate how much it might affect households in any one market but that they believed the additional cost would be small.

The increase was authorized as the commission established its first national area price for "old" gas, replacing multiple area rates. That price, from Thursday through June 30, will be 23.5 cents a thousand cubic feet. It will represent an increase for producers of $218.3 million a year.

The price will jump to 29.5 cents on July 1, or $502.8 million a year.

As scheduled, the national price for "new" gas rises a penny Thursday to 52 cents a thousand cubic feet. That price is under review now. If the reasoning of Wednesday's two decisions is a clue, the commission is likely to mark it up again unless Congress makes major changes in the Natural Gas Act.

Act Proposes Financial Disclosures

Most public officials and candidates for office would be required to disclose their major financial interests under the proposed new conflict of interest law.

Citizens must have knowledge of those interests "so they may discern whether (they) present a conflict, or the appearance of a conflict, with the public trust," the Nebraska Political Reform Act of 1976 states.

The proposed law provides that officeholders and candidates "disclose their business associations, sources of personal income and the persons to whom they owe substantial amounts of money, and that they be disqualified from making public policy and public decisions where a conflict of interest exists."

Inspections Possible

The financial disclosures would be public information, available for public inspection and copying at the new Fair Political Practices Commission and county clerk or election commissioner's office.

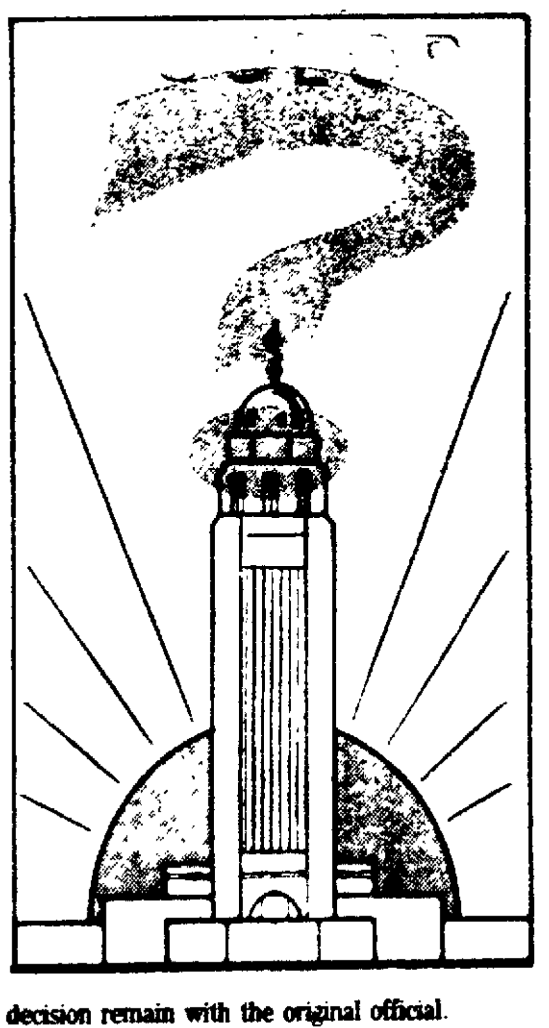
Financial interests covered under the law are generally limited to those involving $1,000 or more of income or value.

Unlike the more general disclosure provisions of current law, the specific business interest must be identified

If a public official or state government executive employe is required to take an action from which he or his family may financially benefit he must disclose the nature of that potential conflict of interest.

Others Decide

Executive branch officers or employes would be relieved of such a decision. It would be assigned to another person unless the law requires that the decision remain with the original official.



Members of the legislative body could ask to be excused from voting on the issue.

If they chose not to disqualify themselves after revealing a conflict, they would have to file a statement explaining how they are able to vote in the public interest in spite of the potential conflict of interest.

The conflict of interest statute would require financial statements from most state, county, city and school officials and candidates. County officials from counties of less than 9,000 and city and school board officials from cities or school districts of less than 5,000, or candidates for those posts, would not be covered by the law.

Many Included

Specifically included among those who must file financial statements are the state tax commissioner, members of the University of Nebraska Board of Regents and the State Board of Education, the state education commissioner, members of the Board of Parole, public power district officers and directors, land use planning commissioners, zoning board members, city or county licensing board members and inspection or regulatory officials.

The new law would strictly prohibit a public official, employe or candidate from receiving a gift or favor based on influencing a vote, decision or judgment. Offering such a gift or favor would also be against the law.

Public officials or employes could not use their position for financial gain, and they could not enter into contracts valued at $1,500 or more with a governmental body unless the contract were awarded through an open and public process

A former official of the state executive branch could not act as an attorney, agent or representative with compensation for the governmental body in which he was employed for at least one year after leaving his post.

That restriction would increase to three years if the matter was one with which the former official was directly associated during his governmental service.

The conflict of interest law would become effective on July 1, 1977.

Ford Has 'Total Confidence' In His Ability

WASHINGTON (AP) — Expressing "complete and total confidence in my own ability," President Ford said Wednesday, "I don't foresee any serious obstacles" to winning the GOP nomination and the November election

Chatting informally before a crackling log fire in his Oval Office, Ford said he felt he could beat any Democrat and top Ronald Reagan for the Republican nomination He noted that more than a year ago he predicted Minnesota Sen Hubert Humphrey would be the Democratic nominee, and said the forecast "looks better and better all the time."

Inviting 23 reporters, broadcasters and columnists in for an hour of give and take, the President also told his questioners that — He will send Congress within a few weeks comprehensive proposals aimed at strengthening the U.S intelligence community while insuring, at the same time, the protection of individual rights.

— There is "no need to increase in any significant areas" federal efforts to bolster the economy. He predicted unemployment will decline next year (1976) and asserted, "The trend is right."

— Although expressing optimism about avoiding a confrontation with the Soviet Union in Angola, Ford believes the United States "would have been in a stronger position" to promote a compromise if the Senate had not voted to curb U.S. aid efforts in that country

— He has no objection to making public up-to-date medical and financial records available to the public as the campaign season approaches, but believes his opponents should take the same course.

Ford said he has no intention of attacking Reagan, the former California governor, as they vie for the GOP nomination

"I'd rather talk on the affirmative side," he said, reporting that he will emphasize a public discussion of his own record.

"I'm going to run on it," he said. "I'm going to win on it"

Ford acknowledged that he believes a great many Americans have yet to see the wisdom of the policies he has pursued the last year but added, "Those decisions in the long run are going to be recognized as right."

While eschewing any personal attack on Reagan's record, Ford indicated he had no objections if others felt compelled to criticize the Californian.

For example, he said all the governors he has talked to take a dim view of a Reagan proposal to cut federal spending by $90 billion and turn over a variety of programs to state and local governments.

Referring to the governors, he said: "I think that's a valid criticism for them to make."

The President was holding more frequent meetings with reporters at the start of the election year. He returned before New Year's Eve from his annual skiing vacation in Colorado, although he had no special holiday plans Instead he granted an interview to two Washington Post reporters during his return flight from Colorado on Tuesday, met with the reportorial group in his office Wednesday, where he promised more such informal interview sessions and held out the possibility of an early news conference.

Some of the questions dealt with allegations by Ford critics that he is not equipped to be President.

"My record in public office disputes that," he declared, but he conceded that "it kind of hurts your pride a little bit because you know it's not true."

Ford said he planned to deal with these critics by maintaining his poise and sense of humor.

Asked if he would remain in the race for the GOP nomination even if dealt setbacks in early primary elections, Ford said, "I intend to be in the ball game right down to the convention."

When a reporter asked if he had the "all-consuming desire and drive" required of a presidential aspirant, Ford shot back, "No question in my mind." He added:

"I have a vision of what I want America to be. I think it is a good vision."

Ford said he feels strongly he is qualified by experience and personal outlook to be the president capable of achieving the vision. He reported that he "can't wait to get to the office" and tackle the problems on his desk each morning. At the end of the day, he related, he invariably is convinced that progress has been made.

Asked to cite the greatest personal disappointment of his White House tenure to date, Ford said he found it "frustrating" that he "couldn't turn a switch" and conquer inflation and unemployment quickly.

Discussing the economy, he said the unemployment rate will continue to decline "beyond any doubt." He laid claim to making "significant progress" in countering both inflation and recession.

When a reporter suggested that some voters perceive Ford as lacking compassion, because of administration cuts in various social welfare programs, the President replied:

"If the mayors of New York had not been so generous, the city would be a lot better off today, although they would have been accused of lack of compassion."

He said his own decisions will look better as time passes.

Asked what he saw as the chief obstacles to his nomination and election, Ford responded, "I don't foresee any serious obstacles — it will be a good struggle."

He said he welcomes a battle with Reagan for convention support and that anyone who speculates that he might drop out of the race in midstream "doesn't know Jerry Ford."

Amnesty To Wait

Madrid — The Spanish government will proclaim amnesty for prisoners only after making changes in the penal code and the anti-terrorist law, according to Manuel Fraga Iribarne, a deputy premier who, as minister of the interior, heads the police and local government. He said constitutional changes providing for legislative elections would be decided in a month or two.

Peron Cleared

Buenos Aires — President Isabel Martinez de Peron of Argentine received a political bonus when a federal judge investigating governmental corruption cleared her of criminal liability in the drawing of a $700,000 check from a public charity for deposit in the estate of her late husband, Juan Domingo Peron. The judge has already ordered the arrest of Jose Lopez Rega, her political mentor until forced to resign last July as minister of social welfare.

Udall Needs Strong Show

Salem, N.H. — Rep. Morris K. Udall, the Arizona Democrat who is making a hard uphill run for the presidential nomination, is hoping for a strong showing in the New Hampshire primary in February. His aides regard the period from now to the April 6 primary in New York as crucial to his campaign, although the New York vote could be inconclusive with the entry of Gov. Hugh L. Carey's uncommitted slate.

U.S. Population Is 215,005,859

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Census Bureau reported Wednesday that the United States will start 1976 with a population 1.8 million larger than it was a year ago.

The population as of 12:01 a.m. Thursday is estimated at 215,005,859, Census said.

A primary factor in the increase was the immigration of 141,000 Vietnamese to the United States during the year, the bureau said.

The estimated number of births was steady at 3.2 million in 1975 and 1974, while deaths also were steady at 1.9 million.

The difference between the population gains in the two years was net immigration of 360,000 in 1974, compared to a net gain of 504,000 in 1975.

1976 Greeted With Cheers, Tears

By The Associated Press

At home, in night clubs and within the packed confines of Times Square, Americans sang, cheered and cried as they welcomed in 1976 — a year in which they'll elect a president, mark their nation's 200th birthday and face probable tax increases.

At a thousand gatherings from Washington to Maine, from Florida to Michigan, Americans toasted the new year, sipped champagne, soft drinks and beer and sang "Auld Lang Syne" as the three-quarter of a century mark fell into the past at midnight.

In New York, thousands, most of them huddled under umbrellas, jammed into Times Square to stand for hours in the rain awaiting the descent at midnight of a lighted ball on top of No. 1 Times Square Building — formerly the New York Times and then the Allied Chemical Building.

Cheers and shouts and songs came as the ball dropped at midnight, sending a shower of red, white and blue baloons sailing into the wet darkness above Times Square.

Music and laughter and tears ushered out a year of inflation, terrorist fighting throughout the world, a fragile peace in the Middle East and a somewhat strengthened detente with Communist nations.

In Northern Ireland, the holiday celebrations were marred by terrorists bombs which exploded in Catholic and Protestant pubs, leaving two dead and 37 injured among the New Year's Eve drinkers.

In The Philippines, one man perished and 200 families were left homeless when a fire — later traced to a candle in a rice and textile warehouse — razed 60 houses in downtown Manila.

In the United States, police patrolled the nation's highways for partygoers who celebrated the new year in traditional fashion. And an Orlando, Fla., cemetery offered free graves to persons who pre-registered their intentions to drink and drive on New Year's.

President and Mrs. Ford were back in Washington after an eight-day Christmas holiday in Vail, Colo. They planned a quiet New Year's Eve at the White House.

In his New Year's message, Ford said 1976 "embodies the 200th anniversary of the founding of this great Republic. We look back with pride, but all of our national experience should prove to us that we must also look forward with eagerness to the unfolding years ahead."

South African Premier Appeals For Western Aid To Angola

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Prime Minister John Vorster made an urgent appeal Wednesday for greater Western involvement in Angola to resist Soviet intervention.

Tanzania's government newspaper, on the other hand, called on the Organization of African Unity (OAU) to concentrate on the involvement of South African troops in the war-torn country and not be distracted by the issue of Soviet aid to one faction. The faction South Africa is reported to be helping issued a denial that it is receiving such aid.

In Washington, meanwhile, President Ford said Wednesday he is optimistic about avoiding a big power confrontation in Angola.

But Ford said during an informal discussion in his Oval Office with 23 invited reporters that he believes the United States "would have been in a stronger position" to promote a compromise in Angola had the Senate not voted to curb U.S. aid to one of the factions involved in fighting there.

In a strongly worded New Year's message, Vorster said the choice before Africa and the non-Communist world was plain — submit and pay the price, or resist.

Not only is Angola with its vast potential slowly dying, Vorster said, "but thanks to leftist intrigues and blatant Communist intervention, thousands of people have probably been senselessly killed and many more thousands will probably be killed unless this crude attempt by Russia and Cuba to force a Marxist state on a resisting and unwilling people can be stopped. Only a bigger Western involvement, not only in the diplomatic but in all other fields, can do this."

Vorster warned: "If Africa and the free world allow one African country, and a country of such immense strategic importance, too, to be hounded into the Communist fold, at the point of the bayonet or be ruthlessly liquidated, Africa will pay the price of enslavement far worse than that of the 18th and 19th centuries.

Tanzania's Daily News ran a front-page editorial saying those African countries concerned about Russian support of the Popular Movement (MPLA), one of three factions in the Angolan civil war, were guilty of "ridiculously low levels of reasoning." Acceptance of Soviet aid, the Dar Es Salaam paper argued, "cannot be equated with being a stooge."

Algeria, the newspaper said, received Russian aid during the war of independence against France, and the Soviets also gave largescale military aid to Egypt and Uganda.

"Do any of these countries look like stooges of the Soviet Union?" asked the paper, which published the editorial in connection with the scheduled meeting of the OAU Jan. 10 in Ethiopia.

In its statement denying that it is receiving military aid from South Africa, the Angolan National Union (UNITA) said its troops are instead waging a guerrilla war against "the invaders."

The statement, issued in Lusaka, Zambia, claimed that South African troops "invaded" southern Angola last July and defeated a combined UNITA and MPLA force in the Cunene River area of a South African-financed dam and hydro-electric project. It said a UNITA force has since been reformed in the area and is continuing guerrilla operations against the South Africans.

UNITA said the whites serving with its forces are mainly French and Portuguese who fled Angola to South Africa at the beginning of the civil conflict and have now returned. Angola was a Portuguese colony until receiving independence Nov. 11.

South Africa has not said how many troops it has in Angola, but the MPLA says they number between 3,000 and 5,000.

Soviet forces are not reported to be fighting directly in Angola, but Cuban troops are there with Soviet supplies. Diplomatic sources in Lisbon said Wednesday the Cuban force in Angola has increased to 10,000 men, while the latest estimate from U.S. intelligence sources put the Cuban force at about 7,500.

The United States has provided some $33 million in money and military supplies to the National Front (FNLA), the third Angolan faction, but the Senate recently voted an aid cutoff.

Ugandan President Idi Amin on Tuesday urged black African nations to form an army to crush South African forces in Angola and said the Soviet Union is involved in the war for that purpose.

Meantime, the independent Portuguese weekly Expresso said in Lisbon it had learned that the MPLA was planning an imminent offensive that would include Soviet-made warplanes for the first time. It said the offensive was being planned to coincide with the OAU meeting.

The UNITA statement in Lusaka also charged that Tanzanian President Julius Nyerere was blocking shipment of Chinese arms to UNITA. He said the arms were being held in the Tanzanian port of Dar es Salaam and that Nyerere would not allow UNITA trucks to pick them up.

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — The Mata Hari business is booming. Nearly half the mercenaries hired by a California agency recruiting soldiers and spies-for-hire are women, says the agency's director.

"They are particularly good in intelligence work and we have used female pilots and demolitions experts," said James A. Scott, director of El Kamas Enterprises of Anaheim, Calif.

Scott said in an interview in the San Diego Evening Tribune that women make up 40% of the recruits his agency sends to work in South America Asia and Africa.

A "contract" can last from a week or two to several years, with pay ranging from $350 to $500 a week or more, he said.

He refused to say how many persons, men or women, the company has recruited.

The Tribune said it received several calls from women interested in becoming mercenaries after publication last Saturday of a story about El Kamas.

Women in the spy business are not something that grew out of the women's liberation movement, Scott said. "Uncle Sam has had women with these skills on his payroll for many, many years," he said.

But while the agency readily accepts qualified women, it will not accept the typical former serviceman. Scott and his senior aide, G.J. "Longo" Tartaglio, said the average ex-GI isn't professional enough to make it as a mercenary.

"We had three people killed by their employers in Africa because they weren't mature enough to realize that looting and rape is against the code," said Tartaglio, who said he smuggled guns to anti-Castro Cubans until caught by the Royal Navy in 1967.

The degree of professionalism among mercenaries is reflected in the casualty rates, said Scott, a former Green Beret.

"If you send out the average U.S. GI, two out of 10 might come back," he said. "In a professional mercenary cadre, the return rate is at least eight out of 10."

Tartaglio said El Kamas does business only with non-Communist countries. "Our loyalty is to the United States and its interests," he said.

Scott said the agency opened up shop in Washington, D.C., in 1962, later moving its headquarters to Anaheim, Calif.

Cubans Recruited To Battle Cubans

MIAMI (AP) — Cuban exiles in the United States are being recruited as mercenaries to fight against Cuban Communist troops battling alongside Soviet-backed rebels in Angola, according to one of the refugee recruiters.

"We represent UNITA — the National Union for Total Independence of Angola," said Jose Antonio Prat, a Bay of Pigs veteran. "We want to get as many Cubans and other Latins as possible. We have hundreds of applications."

Prat and another exile, Pedro Martinez, were working this week out of a small office in Miami after a recruiting trip to New York.

They said they accept and process applications and forward them to Angola, where final selections are made. "We then pay their fares to Africa and they sign their contracts with UNITA," said Prat.

"Cubans will go fight the Communists for ideological reasons," he said. "And we are looking to the future. After Angola, this group would help overthrow Fidel Castro in Cuba."

Prat refused to identify the organization for which he works, saying only it was "one of several groups in this country who are behind the anti-communist efforts in Africa."

There have been several reports of domestic recruiting of mercenaries. One such group has been identified as Alpha 66, a paramilitary force of anti-Communist Cuban expatriates. It claims a U.S. membership of 10,000 soldiers.

U.S. law generally prohibits American citizens from joining as mercenaries with foreign governments. But it does not apply to citizens of other nations living here. The Justice Department in Washington declined to speculate how the law would apply in the cases of the Cuban exiles.

Prat said those volunteering to go to Angola would be well paid.

"From $1,000 to $1,200 a month for most, depending on their special skills or specialties," he said. "We are getting applications from former Green Berets in Vietnam, technicians, artillery people and so on. Pilots will get much more money.

"Many are frustrated because they didn't do what they consider a good job against Communism in Vietnam," said Prat. "Some are out of work and need jobs."

Diplomatic sources in Lisbon put the Cuban force in Angola supporting the Soviet-backed MPLA, Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola, at 10,000.

Angola, which gained its independence from Portugal in November, produces oil, diamonds, coffee and other products, but its economy has been badly disrupted since the three factions began fighting last fall.

South African Premier Appeals For Western Aid To Angola

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Prime Minister John Vorster made an urgent appeal Wednesday for greater Western involvement in Angola to resist Soviet intervention.

Tanzania's government newspaper, on the other hand, called on the Organization of African Unity (OAU) to concentrate on the involvement of South African troops in the war-torn country and not be distracted by the issue of Soviet aid to one faction. The faction South Africa is reported to be helping issued a denial that it is receiving such aid.

In Washington, meanwhile, President Ford said Wednesday he is optimistic about avoiding a big power confrontation in Angola.

But Ford said during an informal discussion in his Oval Office with 23 invited reporters that he believes the United States "would have been in a stronger position" to promote a compromise in Angola had the Senate not voted to curb U.S. aid to one of the factions involved in fighting there.

In a strongly worded New Year's message, Vorster said the choice before Africa and the non-Communist world was plain — submit and pay the price, or resist.

Not only is Angola with its vast potential slowly dying, Vorster said, "but thanks to leftist intrigues and blatant Communist intervention, thousands of people have probably been senselessly killed and many more thousands will probably be killed unless this crude attempt by Russia and Cuba to force a Marxist state on a resisting and unwilling people can be stopped. Only a bigger Western involvement, not only in the diplomatic but in all other fields, can do this."

Vorster warned: "If Africa and the free world allow one African country, and a country of such immense strategic importance, too, to be hounded into the Communist fold, at the point of the bayonet or be ruthlessly liquidated, Africa will pay the price of enslavement far worse than that of the 18th and 19th centuries.

Tanzania's Daily News ran a front-page editorial saying those African countries concerned about Russian support of the Popular Movement (MPLA), one of three factions in the Angolan civil war, were guilty of "ridiculously low levels of reasoning." Acceptance of Soviet aid, the Dar Es Salaam paper argued, "cannot be equated with being a stooge."

Algeria, the newspaper said, received Russian aid during the war of independence against France, and the Soviets also gave largescale military aid to Egypt and Uganda.

"Do any of these countries look like stooges of the Soviet Union?" asked the paper, which published the editorial in connection with the scheduled meeting of the OAU Jan. 10 in Ethiopia.

In its statement denying that it is receiving military aid from South Africa, the Angolan National Union (UNITA) said its troops are instead waging a guerrilla war against "the invaders."

The statement, issued in Lusaka, Zambia, claimed that South African troops "invaded" southern Angola last July and defeated a combined UNITA and MPLA force in the Cunene River area of a South African-financed dam and hydro-electric project. It said a UNITA force has since been reformed in the area and is continuing guerrilla operations against the South Africans.

UNITA said the whites serving with its forces are mainly French and Portuguese who fled Angola to South Africa at the beginning of the civil conflict and have now returned. Angola was a Portuguese colony until receiving independence Nov. 11.

South Africa has not said how many troops it has in Angola, but the MPLA says they number between 3,000 and 5,000.

Soviet forces are not reported to be fighting directly in Angola, but Cuban troops are there with Soviet supplies. Diplomatic sources in Lisbon said Wednesday the Cuban force in Angola has increased to 10,000 men, while the latest estimate from U.S. intelligence sources put the Cuban force at about 7,500.

The United States has provided some $33 million in money and military supplies to the National Front (FNLA), the third Angolan faction, but the Senate recently voted an aid cutoff.

Ugandan President Idi Amin on Tuesday urged black African nations to form an army to crush South African forces in Angola and said the Soviet Union is involved in the war for that purpose.

Meantime, the independent Portuguese weekly Expresso said in Lisbon it had learned that the MPLA was planning an imminent offensive that would include Soviet-made warplanes for the first time. It said the offensive was being planned to coincide with the OAU meeting.

The UNITA statement in Lusaka also charged that Tanzanian President Julius Nyerere was blocking shipment of Chinese arms to UNITA. He said the arms were being held in the Tanzanian port of Dar es Salaam and that Nyerere would not allow UNITA trucks to pick them up.

Looking To The Third Century

The focus of this, the nation's bicentennial year, will be on the future as much as the past. What will America strive for in the next hundred years? How great is our resolve?

Each year-end in the recent past, it seems, backward observations have been morose; "at least we survived," as columnist James Reston said about 1975, has been typical of the published year-in-a-nutshell remarks. That is the short-range view, of course. People are looking back just 365 days and looking at the headlines, which are dark, and they are not looking at the historic and continuing reservoirs of hope, will and confidence which shape American attitudes toward the institutions of the nation and our culture, reservoirs which ebb at times but which are still sufficiently full of resources of the spirit to portend good things for the future, if Americans can remain aware of their heritage of freedom and vigilant against external or internal forces which threaten it. There is room for both the desire to protect the American heritage and the desire to work for peace in the world; they can be compatible desires, and the thought that freedom and peace can exist together is not entirely a pipe dream. At least that is the way we see it at this point.

One citizen of the world who has been described as one of the greatest living among men views things somewhat differently, however.

Alexander Solzhenitsyn, the exiled Russian Nobel laureate, believes Western civilization (which can also be read American civilization) is at the crossroads. Of the west he said in a recent interview:

"The existence of the civilization it created is going to be at stake in the next years. I think it is not aware of this.

"You have the impression that democracies can last. But you know nothing about it. Democracies are lost islands in the immense rivers of history. The water is always rising. The simplest laws of history play against democratic societies. But this evidence doesn't strike you.

"You have forgotten the meaning of liberty. When you acquired liberty in the 18th Century it was a sacred notion . . . that, you have forgotten. Time has eroded your notion of liberty. You kept the word but fabricated another notion: Liberty without obligation and responsibility, which results in enjoying possessions.

"Nobody is willing to die for it.

"Interior will is more important than a policy, Solzhenitsyn said. "If the leaders of the east felt that there was the slightest flame in you, the slightest drive to make freedom survive on your side and spread, if they understood you were to sacrifice your life, then at that very second they would give up. Every time that you really show resolve — Berlin, Korea, Cuba — each time the Soviet leaders retreated."

The Russian no doubt is tempting the west to show resolve out of his interest in producing an opportunity for the restoration of liberty in the east. Perhaps his dissertation is really no different than former President Nixon's indication recently that what this country most needs is not a cheap cigar, but a good war to bring back our will. In that connection, what really do the nicer words "resolve" and "vigilance" mean? That is where the balance between peace and freedom comes into play, along with the idea that toughness does not have to mean a nuclear holocaust.

Solzhenitsyn's chilling and pessimistic words point out to Americans a difficult road ahead. The west is at a crossroads, because, we agree, the notion of liberty or freedom has blurred somewhat. But it can be clarified, because we instinctively know what it was meant to be.

It is our belief that disaster does not inevitably wait at the crossroads. The spark in the west has not gone out.

Tighter Airport Security

While law enforcement authorities are just beginning their search for the person or persons who planted the bomb which caused savage human destruction at New York's LaGuardia Airport, other officials are planning for greater security measures at airports all across the nation.

For example, screening people upon first entering the complex, not just at the boarding areas, and tightening access to and observing actions in locker and baggage areas. Security systems are not leakproof; because thousands of people are involved and because Americans feel they have a right to come and go pretty much as they please, holes develop.

But improved security at the airports certainly is in order.

At this point the motive behind the LaGuardia bombing has not been determined. It looks as if it was an isolated act, not part of an elaborate conspiracy.

But elaborate conspiracies, even at a time when the national mood has cooled somewhat after an extended period of ferment, are not out of the question.

If any relatively small group of madmen wanted to shut down the country, the first place to start would be by blowing up and closing down the nation's airports.

New Year, New Words, Concepts

WASHINGTON — A suggestion: Political analysts and observers who have yet to make a New Year's resolution might consider pledging careful and minimal use of outdated ideological labels. Coming up with new and better terminology would be even more helpful.

Throughout 1976, America will be inundated by the trite phraseology of electoral combat. "Liberals" will be fighting "conservatives," the "Right" will be opposing the "Left," and "Populism" will be in full cry. The "Old Guard" will be fending off "reformers" dedicated to a "New Politics." Et cetera, et cetera.

But what will this tell us about what is really going on in U.S. politics? Very little, I am afraid. The average American is right to yawn. Worse still, yesterday's language often actually adds to the confusion.

Let's take the words "liberal" and "conservative." Far from being eternal descriptive truths, both words gained political usage only during the French Revolution. "Conservateurs" were those who wanted to conserve and protect existing institutions and beliefs. "Liberaux" sought change and favored individual opportunity rather than artificial aristocratic social patterns. Today, with a "Liberal Establishment" more or less dominating U.S. bureaucracy, opinion-molding and culture — and arguably trying to dictate artificial social patterns via regulations, guidelines and quota systems — "conservative" opponents are often angry, alienated change-seekers. At the headquarters of Messrs. Reagan and Wallace, "conservatives" are people who call for a national upheaval and revolution against the status quo in Washington.

If these old words seem obsolescent and confusing, so do "Left" and "Right." In the French Revolutionary Assembly, the radical element sat on the left, the conservative and traditional aristocratic element on the right. The terms are still used somewhat interchangeably with liberalism or conservatism. And they are equally out of place.

To be sure, many people still regard "conservative" and "liberal" as useful terms. A sizeable group of U.S. conservatives see their own ideology as essentially focused on free-market and laissez-faire economics. However, in the 19th Century, free-market economics were the essence of traditional liberalism, while conservatism had a tradition of favoring state intervention. And to make things even more mixed up, back in the 18th Century, before the words "conservative" and "liberal" came into use, there really was no "free market economics." State involvement had been everywhere — in industry, transportation and commerce. Indeed, judged in the larger 5,000 year flow of history, laissez-faire was a brief phenomenon of the early industrial era. Today, the relevance of the old economic and ideological labels may not be able to survive the shift from industrial to post-industrial era anymore than controversies over mercantilism, feudalism and divine right survived earlier epochal shifts.

A similar case can be made against the use of "populism." Here we have a concept of politics that pitted the agrarian poor of the late 19th Century South and West against industrial and financial interests centered in the East. Can the same word be used to describe the circa 1975 outlook of radical students, intellectuals and middle-class professionals who are scorned as elitists in working-class neighborhoods?

I don't think so. But populism may also be a poor term with which to characterize "conservative" Southern and Western hostility to the new Eastern communications, bureaucratic and educational elite.

George Wallace is fond of saying that the average Alabama bus driver knew that Fidel Castro was a communist way before the New York Times did. Perhaps the average American knew that lofty citations of conservatism, liberalism, reform, new politics, left, right and so forth were rarely relevant long before those of us who deal in these currencies. Certainly people are not paying much attention any more. If politics and political discussion is to begin making sense again, we may need to find new words and concepts to characterize the new divisions.

Flight From Reality

WASHINGTON — At this crossroads in time, we need to take a hard look at the path we are traveling with our Soviet adversaries.

Certainly, we support policies that seek a reduction in tensions. We also appreciate Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's desire to take advantage of the opportunities for maneuver created by the Sino-Soviet split. And of course, detente is preferable to nuclear suicide.

But the lessons of the past should have put our leaders on guard against stimulating euphoria. Kissinger has shown us too many bear hugs, clinking glasses and smiling communiqués.

To advance the spirit of detente, the United States has in recent years surrendered many advantages. We have permitted our military posture to sag dangerously — from superiority over the Soviets down to parity, and now to overall inferiority.

We have accepted the short end of the stick in arms limitations. We have bailed out the Kremlin from repeated agricultural catastrophes at the cost of inflating our own food prices. We have given the Soviets valuable economic credits and technological know-how in return for tours of fluttering ballerinas and jolly gymnasts.

And we have compromised our honor by giving positive sanction, through a giddy profusion of pacts, trade missions and spectacles of diplomatic bonhomie, to the tightening of the Kremlin screws on the peoples of Eastern Europe and the Soviet Union.

In return for this, we were told a new spirit of cooperation and exchange would flow, accompanied by a gradual liberalization of life behind the Iron Curtain. But this has not come to pass.

Instead, we see a step-up of Soviet repression at home, an increased exploitation of Eastern Europe, a renewed pressure aimed at the annexation of Yugoslavia, a revived emphasis on revolutionary action in the West itself and an ambitious drive to take over Angola as part of a wider scheme to recolonize Africa under the hammer and sickle.

KISSINGER, with Saudi Arabian Foreign Minister Omar Sakkaf and David Rockefeller . . . 'too many bear hugs, clinking glasses and smiling communiqués . . .'

And throughout the period of detente, a mighty Soviet arms buildup has been going on. It will continue, moreover, under the new five-year plan, with its emphasis on heavy industry over consumer products.

There is no sadder illustration of this flight from reality than America's inability to keep a clear, cold eye focused on the nature of Soviet rule. Our political leaders, reacting perhaps to the pendulum aspect of American mass psychology, have promoted an imagery that disarms us into regarding the communists as not much different from ourselves, except for a peculiarity of political dogma here and there.

But meanwhile, our intelligence agents have been gathering data, which shows the unbroken continuity of Kremlin barbarism. We have followed these reports over the years.

There was an incident, for example, from Khrushchev's time when Eskimos at Yakutsk were contaminated with radiation from Soviet H-bomb tests. The commissars, not wanting the word to spread, simply had them slaughtered.

And at Karaganter, when laborers at a metalurgical factory building site were driven by hunger to riot, no mediator or bread was provided. The protest was immediately crushed by Soviet tanks, artillery and helicopters.

But far more significant than the occasional machine-gunnings is the pervasive, almost universal silence among the Soviet masses. So conditioned by six decades of tyranny are they that only unbearable hunger provokes mass protests. Individual dissidents, such unbreakable giants as Solzhenitsyn and Sakharov, are rare.

A tomb-like silence, the obedient listlessness, stretching from the Baltic Sea to the Sea of Japan betokens the most fearful crime of Lenin and his successors. By joining utter ruthlessness to the repressive devices of modern technology and communications, they have largely succeeded in imposing a slave mentality on a whole people.

So we learn once again that all our smiles and favors won't melt the iceberg. But how the iceberg has grown and how we have shrunk since last we realized this.

A Sense Of Duty In Looking Back

WASHINGTON — For those who engage in the year-end exercise of looking back over the past 12 months for new meaning, it is clearly a sense of duty and not nostalgia that brings them to the task. Nevertheless, the current assessment is that 1975, while no vintage year, was at least faintly better than the late and unlamented 1974, the year of Watergate, the Arab oil embargo, double-digit inflation and national self-doubt.

It is true that many legacies of Watergate linger on, that the energy problem has not been solved, that the economic recovery now under way is fraught with uncertainty, and that the approach of the bicentennial year has not erased the nagging sense of doubt. But still, the pessimism seems not nearly so thick or heavy as it was at this time a year ago.

While 1974 was cast out with "goodbye and good riddance," the attitude toward 1975 is "it could have been worse — and be thankful it wasn't." In short, this has been a year of exceedingly modest expectations. Consequently the disappointments were slight — with a notable exception. For those who looked eagerly for an activist Congress, the big Democratic freshman class spawned by the post-Watergate election of November 1974 never lived up to their expectations.

The year was still young when the long and bitter struggle came to an end in Vietnam with the fall of Saigon. This set off a new round of anguished soul-searching in America but the country was not torn asunder by the event, as had been so freely predicted only a few years ago.

Once again, the harsh reality of political assassination flooded America with memories the people would rather forget. Two attempts on President Ford's life occurred in September during his California travels, raising anew the question of how the nation can safeguard its officials and candidates without eroding the political process or the constitutional rights of its citizens. The coming of a national election campaign in 1976 makes the question all the more pertinent.

Besides an election, what will 1976 bring? In the economic realm, the forecasting is cautiously upbeat. The amount of hedging, considerable even by the standards of economic prophecy, surely derives as much from the chastening effect of past prophecies gone wrong as it does from the conflicting signals that economists say they are receiving. "The public's eagerness for information is exceeded only by the economists' uncertainty about the answers," Wall Street Journal columnist Lindley H. Clark Jr. commented recently.

Business Week magazine asked two dozen economists to predict such matters as the rates of inflation and unemployment during 1976 in exact figures. It reported that the estimates averaged 5.9% for inflation and 7.8% for unemployment, some improvement over the recent past.

As for the overall outlook, the magazine surmised, 'Business should be good in 1976 . . . but there is a chance it will be too good . . . The biggest danger . . . is not that the U.S. will slip back into recession . . but that too much government stimulation in an election year will compound the problems of inflation still not fully under control." Walter W. Heller, chief economic adviser under Presidents Kennedy and Johnson, believes President Ford's budget program and the monetary policy under Chairman Arthur F. Burns and the Federal Reserve can "either buttress the recovery or bust it."

1975 Truly Called Year Of Woman

WASHINGTON — In many ways, 1975 has been a good year for American women. In July, new Department of Health, Education and Welfare rules went into effect, banning sex discrimination in the nation's schools and colleges. The First Women's Bank, organized and owned chiefly by women opened for business in New York City in October. And in the same month, the Federal Reserve Board instituted new credit regulations, prohibiting discrimination on the basis of sex or marital status.

Women also won important victories in the U.S. Supreme Court during 1975. Early in the year, the Court struck down a Louisiana law that generally excluded women from jury duty and ruled that the concept of "the woman's role," upon which the law was based, was no longer applicable.

On April 15, the Court overturned a Utah law that gave adult status to females at age 18 and to males at age 21. "No longer is the female destined solely for the home and the rearing of the family," it held.

But International Women's Year, as 1975 was designated by the U.N., also had its defeats. Fifteen state legislatures, either in committee or on the floor, rejected the Equal Rights Amendment (ERA) to the Constitution. One of the states was Nebraska, where supporters tried to have ratification reaffirmed after it had previously been rescinded.

Voters in New Jersey and New York rejected equal rights amendments to their state constitutions. These defeats were particularly disturbing to ERA supporters, for both states were among the first to approve the federal amendment. Now movements are under way to rescind ratification.

Led by conservative Republican Phyllis Schlafly, the "Stop ERA" forces are solidly united against what they believe is an unnecessary legal amendment that will do more harm than good. "It won't do anything to help women," Schlafly said recently, "and it will take away from women the rights they already have . . ."

ERA proponents emphasize that the courts must follow the intent of Congress when they interpret the amendment. "A reading of the majority report of the Senate Judiciary Committee makes it clear that the amendment . . . will not take away the right to support of dependent wives or change family relationships, and will not legalize homosexual marriages," Jill Ruckelshaus, head of the U.S. Commission on International Women's Year, said recently in a magazine interview.

Women who oppose the ERA express bitter resentment toward the women's movement itself. "A housewife, reading the stuff that pours out of the Movement, does not need to be a vile reactionary to take it as an assault," Walter Goodman wrote recently in The New Leader; "actually, she would have to be quite insensitive and perhaps a little stupid to take it any other way."

The fact that many women feel alienated by liberation rhetoric has caused divisions within the National Organization for Women (NOW).

The recent ERA defeats could force NOW to regroup its forces and plan new strategy. Only one state, North Dakota, approved the amendment this year and four more are needed by the March, 1979, deadline. Women's rights leaders would clearly be embarrassed if International Women's Year were remembered as the year in which the ERA began to tumble towards extinction.

Looking To The Third Century

The focus of this, the nation's bicentennial year, will be on the future as much as the past. What will America strive for in the next hundred years? How great is our resolve?

Each year-end in the recent past, it seems, backward observations have been morose; "at least we survived," as columnist James Reston said about 1975, has been typical of the published year-in-a-nutshell remarks. That is the short-range view, of course. People are looking back just 365 days and looking at the headlines, which are dark, and they are not looking at the historic and continuing reservoirs of hope, will and confidence which shape American attitudes toward the institutions of the nation and our culture, reservoirs which ebb at times but which are still sufficiently full of resources of the spirit to portend good things for the future, if Americans can remain aware of their heritage of freedom and vigilant against external or internal forces which threaten it. There is room for both the desire to protect the American heritage and the desire to work for peace in the world; they can be compatible desires, and the thought that freedom and peace can exist together is not entirely a pipe dream. At least that is the way we see it at this point.

One citizen of the world who has been described as one of the greatest living among men views things somewhat differently, however.

Alexander Solzhenitsyn, the exiled Russian Nobel laureate, believes Western civilization (which can also be read American civilization) is at the crossroads. Of the west he said in a recent interview:

"The existence of the civilization it created is going to be at stake in the next years. I think it is not aware of this.

"You have the impression that democracies can last. But you know nothing about it. Democracies are lost islands in the immense rivers of history. The water is always rising. The simplest laws of history play against democratic societies. But this evidence doesn't strike you.

"You have forgotten the meaning of liberty. When you acquired liberty in the 18th Century it was a sacred notion . . . that, you have forgotten. Time has eroded your notion of liberty. You kept the word but fabricated another notion: Liberty without obligation and responsibility, which results in enjoying possessions.

"Nobody is willing to die for it.

"Interior will is more important than a policy, Solzhenitsyn said. "If the leaders of the east felt that there was the slightest flame in you, the slightest drive to make freedom survive on your side and spread, if they understood you were to sacrifice your life, then at that very second they would give up. Every time that you really show resolve — Berlin, Korea, Cuba — each time the Soviet leaders retreated."

The Russian no doubt is tempting the west to show resolve out of his interest in producing an opportunity for the restoration of liberty in the east. Perhaps his dissertation is really no different than former President Nixon's indication recently that what this country most needs is not a cheap cigar, but a good war to bring back our will. In that connection, what really do the nicer words "resolve" and "vigilance" mean? That is where the balance between peace and freedom comes into play, along with the idea that toughness does not have to mean a nuclear holocaust.

Solzhenitsyn's chilling and pessimistic words point out to Americans a difficult road ahead. The west is at a crossroads, because, we agree, the notion of liberty or freedom has blurred somewhat. But it can be clarified, because we instinctively know what it was meant to be.

It is our belief that disaster does not inevitably wait at the crossroads. The spark in the west has not gone out.

Tighter Airport Security

While law enforcement authorities are just beginning their search for the person or persons who planted the bomb which caused savage human destruction at New York's LaGuardia Airport, other officials are planning for greater security measures at airports all across the nation.

For example, screening people upon first entering the complex, not just at the boarding areas, and tightening access to and observing actions in locker and baggage areas. Security systems are not leakproof; because thousands of people are involved and because Americans feel they have a right to come and go pretty much as they please, holes develop.

But improved security at the airports certainly is in order.

At this point the motive behind the LaGuardia bombing has not been determined. It looks as if it was an isolated act, not part of an elaborate conspiracy.

But elaborate conspiracies, even at a time when the national mood has cooled somewhat after an extended period of ferment, are not out of the question.

If any relatively small group of madmen wanted to shut down the country, the first place to start would be by blowing up and closing down the nation's airports.

New Year, New Words, Concepts

WASHINGTON — A suggestion: Political analysts and observers who have yet to make a New Year's resolution might consider pledging careful and minimal use of outdated ideological labels. Coming up with new and better terminology would be even more helpful.

Throughout 1976, America will be inundated by the trite phraseology of electoral combat. "Liberals" will be fighting "conservatives," the "Right" will be opposing the "Left," and "Populism" will be in full cry. The "Old Guard" will be fending off "reformers" dedicated to a "New Politics." Et cetera, et cetera.

But what will this tell us about what is really going on in U.S. politics? Very little, I am afraid. The average American is right to yawn. Worse still, yesterday's language often actually adds to the confusion.

Let's take the words "liberal" and "conservative." Far from being eternal descriptive truths, both words gained political usage only during the French Revolution. "Conservateurs" were those who wanted to conserve and protect existing institutions and beliefs. "Liberaux" sought change and favored individual opportunity rather than artificial aristocratic social patterns. Today, with a "Liberal Establishment" more or less dominating U.S. bureaucracy, opinion-molding and culture — and arguably trying to dictate artificial social patterns via regulations, guidelines and quota systems — "conservative" opponents are often angry, alienated change-seekers. At the headquarters of Messrs. Reagan and Wallace, "conservatives" are people who call for a national upheaval and revolution against the status quo in Washington.

If these old words seem obsolescent and confusing, so do "Left" and "Right." In the French Revolutionary Assembly, the radical element sat on the left, the conservative and traditional aristocratic element on the right. The terms are still used somewhat interchangeably with liberalism or conservatism. And they are equally out of place.

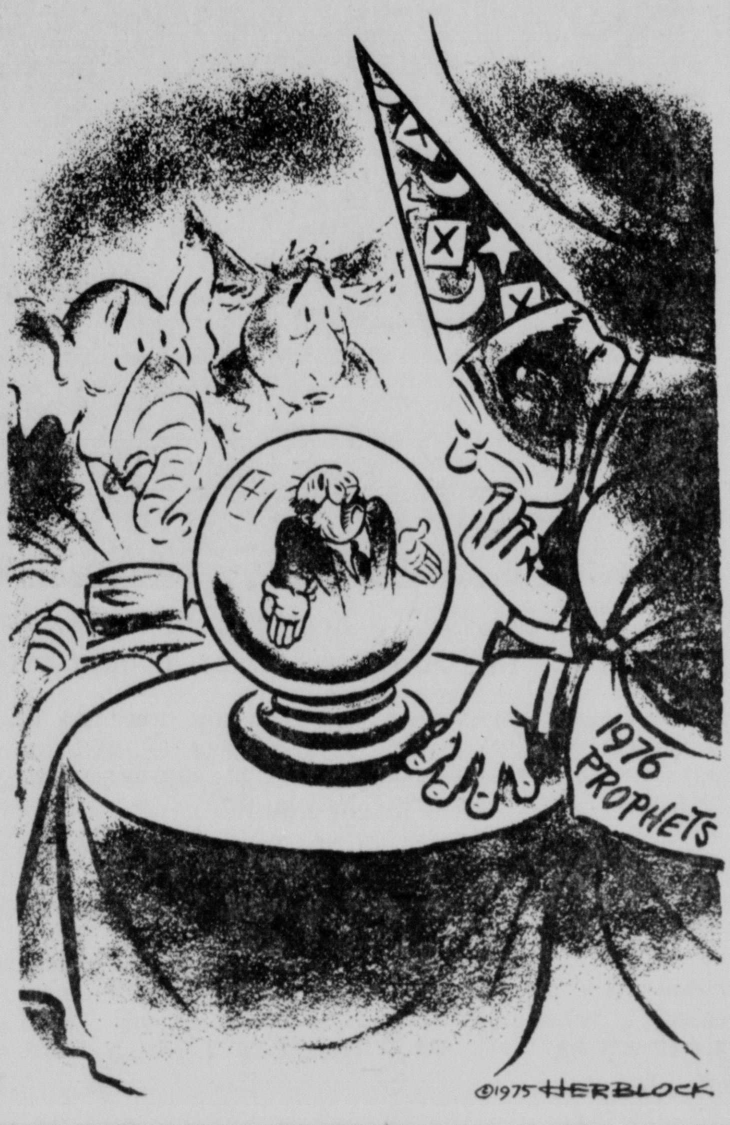
To be sure, many people still regard "conservative" and "liberal" as useful terms. A sizeable group of U.S. conservatives see their own ideology as essentially focused on free-market and laissez-faire economics. However, in the 19th Century, free-market economics were the essence of traditional liberalism, while conservatism had a tradition of favoring state intervention. And to make things even more mixed up, back in the 18th Century, before the words "conservative" and "liberal" came into use, there really was no "free market economics."



State involvement had been everywhere — in industry, transportation and commerce. Indeed, judged in the larger 5,000 year flow of history, laissez-faire was a brief phenomenon of the early industrial era. Today, the relevance of the old economic and ideological labels may not be able to survive the shift from industrial to post-industrial era anymore than controversies over mercantilism, feudalism and divine right survived earlier epochal shifts.

A similar case can be made against the use of "populism." Here we have a concept of politics that pitted the agrarian poor of the late 19th Century South and West against industrial and financial interests centered in the East. Can the same word be used to describe the circa 1975 outlook of radical students, intellectuals and middle-class professionals who are scorned as elitists in working-class neighborhoods?

I don't think so. But populism may also be a poor term with which to characterize "conservative" Southern and Western hostility to the new Eastern communications, bureaucratic and educational elite.

George Wallace is fond of saying that the average Alabama bus driver knew that Fidel Castro was a communist way before the New York Times did. Perhaps the average American knew that lofty citations of conservatism, liberalism, reform, new politics, left, right and so forth were rarely relevant long before those of us who deal in these currencies. Certainly people are not paying much attention any more. If politics and political discussion is to begin making sense again, we may need to find new words and concepts to characterize the new divisions.

Flight From Reality

WASHINGTON — At this crossroads in time, we need to take a hard look at the path we are traveling with our Soviet adversaries.

Certainly, we support policies that seek a reduction in tensions. We also appreciate Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's desire to take advantage of the opportunities for maneuver created by the Sino-Soviet split. And of course, detente is preferable to nuclear suicide.

But the lessons of the past should have put our leaders on guard against stimulating euphoria. Kissinger has shown us too many bear hugs, clinking glasses and smiling cosmonauts.

KISSINGER, with Saudi Arabian Foreign Minister Omar Sakkaf and David Rockefeller . . . 'too many bear hugs, clinking glasses and smiling cosmonauts . . .'

To advance the spirit of detente, the United States has in recent years surrendered many advantages. We have permitted our military posture to sag dangerously — from superiority over the Soviets down to parity, and now to overall inferiority.

We have accepted the short end of the stick in arms limitations. We have bailed out the Kremlin from repeated agricultural catastrophes at the cost of inflating our own food prices. We have given the Soviets valuable economic credits and technological know-how in return for tours of fluttering ballerinas and jolly gymnasts.

And we have compromised our honor by giving positive sanction, through a giddy profusion of pacts, trade missions and spectacles of diplomatic bonhomie, to the tightening of the Kremlin screws on the peoples of Eastern Europe and the Soviet Union.

In return for this, we were told, a new spirit of cooperation and exchange would flow, accompanied by a gradual liberalization of life behind the Iron Curtain. But this has not come to pass.

Instead, we see a step-up of Soviet repression at home, an increased exploitation of Eastern Europe, a renewed pressure aimed at the annexation of Yugoslavia, a revived emphasis on revolutionary action in the West itself and an ambitious drive to take over Angola as part of a wider scheme to recolonize Africa under the hammer and sickle.

And throughout the period of detente, a mighty Soviet arms buildup has been going on. It will continue, moreover, under the new five-year plan, with its emphasis on heavy industry over consumer products.

There is no sadder illustration of this flight from reality than America's inability to keep a clear, cold eye focused on the nature of Soviet rule. Our political leaders, reacting perhaps to the pendulum aspect of American mass psychology, have promoted an imagery that disarms us into regarding the communists as not much different from ourselves, except for a peculiarity of political dogma here and there.

But meanwhile, our intelligence agents have been gathering data, which shows the unbroken continuity of Kremlin barbarism. We have followed these reports over the years.

There was an incident, for example, from Khrushchev's time when Eskimos at Yakutsk were contaminated with radiation from Soviet H-bomb tests. The commissars, not wanting the word to spread, simply had them slaughtered.

And at Karaganter, when laborers at a metalurgical factory building site were driven by hunger to riot, no mediator or bread was provided. The protest was immediately crushed by Soviet tanks, artillery and helicopters.

But far more significant than the occasional machine-gunnings is the pervasive, almost universal silence among the Soviet masses. So conditioned by six decades of tyranny are they that only unbearable hunger provokes mass protests. Individual dissidents, such unbreakable giants as Solzhenitsyn and Sahkarov, are rare.

A tomb-like silence, the obedient listlessness, stretching from the Baltic Sea to the Sea of Japan betokens the most fearful crime of Lenin and his successors. By joining utter ruthlessness to the repressive devices of modern technology and communications, they have largely succeeded in imposing a slave mentality on a whole people.

So we learn once again that all our smiles and favors won't melt the iceberg. But how the iceberg has grown and how we have shrunk since last we realized this.

A Sense Of Duty In Looking Back

WASHINGTON — For those who engage in the year-end exercise of looking back over the past 12 months for new meaning, it is clearly a sense of duty and not nostalgia that brings them to the task. Nevertheless, the current assessment is that 1975, while no vintage year, was at least faintly better than the late and unlamented 1974, the year of Watergate, the Arab oil embargo, double-digit inflation and national self-doubt.

It is true that many legacies of Watergate linger on, that the energy problem has not been solved, that the economic recovery now under way is fraught with uncertainty, and that the approach of the bicentennial year has not erased the nagging sense of doubt. But still, the pessimism seems not nearly so thick or heavy as it was at this time a year ago.

While 1974 was cast out with "goodbye and good riddance," the attitude toward 1975 is "it could have been worse — and be thankful it wasn't." In short, this has been a year of exceedingly modest expectations. Consequently the disappointments were slight — with a notable exception. For those who looked eagerly for an activist Congress, the big Democratic freshman class spawned by the post-Watergate election of November 1974 never lived up to their expectations.

The year was still young when the long and bitter struggle came to an end in Vietnam with the fall of Saigon. This set off a new round of anguished soul-searching in America but the country was not torn asunder by the event, as had been so freely predicted only a few years ago.

Once again, the harsh reality of political assassination flooded America with memories the people would rather forget. Two attempts on President Ford's life occurred in September during his California travels, raising anew the question of how the nation can safeguard its officials and candidates without eroding the political process or the constitutional rights of its citizens. The coming of a national election campaign in 1976 makes the question all the more pertinent.

Besides an election, what will 1976 bring? In the economic realm, the forecasting is cautiously upbeat. The amount of hedging, considerable even by the standards of economic prophecy, surely derives as much from the chastening effect of past prophecies gone wrong as it does from the conflicting signals that economists say they are receiving. "The public's eagerness for information is exceeded only by the economists' uncertainty about the answers," Wall Street Journal columnist Lindley H. Clark Jr. commented recently.

Business Week magazine asked two dozen economists to predict such matters as the rates of inflation and unemployment during 1976 in exact figures. It reported that the estimates averaged 5.9% for inflation and 7.8% for unemployment, some improvement over the recent past.

As for the overall outlook, the magazine surmised, "Business should be good in 1976 . . . but there is a chance it will be too good . . . The biggest danger . . . is not that the U.S. will slip back into recession . . . but that too much government stimulation in an election year will compound the problems of inflation still not fully under control." Walter W. Heller, chief economic adviser under Presidents Kennedy and Johnson, believes President Ford's budget program and the monetary policy under Chairman Arthur F. Burns and the Federal Reserve can "either buttress the recovery or bust it."

SUZANNE DE LESSEPS

1975 Truly Called Year Of Woman

WASHINGTON — In many ways, 1975 has been a good year for American women. In July, new Department of Health, Education and Welfare rules went into effect, banning sex discrimination in the nation's schools and colleges. The First Women's Bank, organized and owned chiefly by women opened for business in New York City in October. And in the same month, the Federal Reserve Board instituted new credit regulations, prohibiting discrimination on the basis of sex or marital status.

Women also won important victories in the U.S. Supreme Court during 1975. Early in the year, the Court struck down a Louisiana law that generally excluded women from jury duty and ruled that the concept of "the woman's role," upon which the law was based, was no longer applicable.

On April 15, the Court overturned a Utah law that gave adult status to females at age 18 and to males at age 21. "No longer is the female destined solely for the home and the rearing of the family," it held.

But International Women's Year, as 1975 was designated by the U.N., also had its defeats. Fifteen state legislatures, either in committee or on the floor, rejected the Equal Rights Amendment (ERA) to the Constitution. One of the states was Nebraska, where supporters tried to have ratification reaffirmed after it had previously been rescinded.

Voters in New Jersey and New York rejected equal rights amendments to their state constitutions. These defeats were particularly disturbing to ERA supporters, for both states were among the first to approve the federal amendment. Now movements are under way to rescind ratification.

Led by conservative Republican Phyllis Schlafly, the "Stop ERA" forces are solidly united against what they believe is an unnecessary legal amendment that will do more harm than good. "It won't do anything to help women," Schlafly said recently, "and it will take away from women the rights they already have . . ."

ERA proponents emphasize that the courts must follow the intent of Congress when they interpret the amendment. "A reading of the majority report of the Senate Judiciary Committee makes it clear that the amendment . . . will not take away the right to support of dependent wives or change family relationships, and will not legalize homosexual marriages," Jill Ruckelshaus, head of the U.S. Commission on International Women's Year, said recently in a magazine interview.

Women who oppose the ERA express bitter resentment toward the women's movement itself. "A housewife, reading the stuff that pours out of the Movement, does not need to be a vile reactionary to take it as an assault," Walter Goodman wrote recently in The New Leader; "actually, she would have to be quite insensitive and perhaps a little stupid to take it any other way."

The fact that many women feel alienated by liberation rhetoric has caused divisions within the National Organization for Women (NOW).

The recent ERA defeats could force NOW to regroup its forces and plan new strategy. Only one state, North Dakota, approved the amendment this year and four more are needed by the March, 1979, deadline. Women's rights leaders would clearly be embarrassed if International Women's Year were remembered as the year in which the ERA began to tumble towards extinction.

Chambers Blasts Zorinsky On Busing

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

In sharply worded criticism of Omaha Mayor Edward Zorinsky, State Sen. Ernest Chambers Wednesday called busing "the only tool which can desegregate the schools."

Zorinsky, Chambers said, made anti-busing remarks in a televised discussion of the Omaha school desegregation case.

"Omaha has been violating the constitutional right of black children to have a decent educational opportunity for generations," Chambers wrote Zorinsky.

"You have never attempted to provide moral or political leadership to eradicate this gross injustice. As a matter of fact, your prolonged silence has contributed to the wrong.

"No other expedient (besides busing) has even touched the problem. Every so-called 'program' has been a stratagem to prevent the eradication of segregated schools and resultant discriminatory education."

Chambers wrote Zorinsky that "political ambition should not cause a man to forsake all scruples in order to garner racist votes."

Zorinsky is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for the U.S. Senate.

"It is abhorrent that a Jewish person familiar with the genocide attempted against Jews by the Nazis should blandly declare himself in favor of mental genocide of black children," Chambers told Zorinsky.

"Segregated schools violate the law and the Constitution," the Omaha state senator noted.

"The only way to effectively eradicate segregation is to place white children in black schools and black children in white schools."

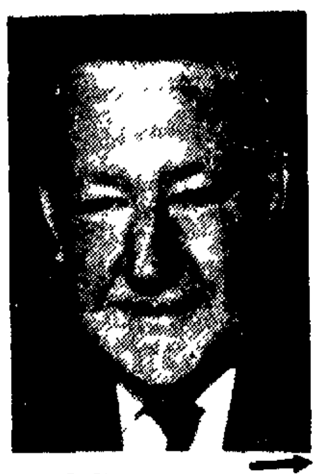
The school bus has always been the vehicle for accomplishing the movement of students, he said.

"Mayor Zorinsky, since you are not opposed to all types of school busing, I must conclude that you are not so much opposed to the bus ride as to what is at the end of it: i.e., a non-segregated classroom," Chambers wrote.

"If you desire that your children not be in a room with black children, be man enough to say so.

"Do not hide (or try to hide) your personal racism behind the red-neckism you know exists in Omaha."

Desegregation, Chambers said, "leads to more care in preparing teachers and curricula, selection and training of administrators, implementation of educational policies and even upgrading of buildings and grounds."



LaVern C. Strough

Ex-Psychiatric Institute Director Strough Dies

Beatrice (AP) — Funeral services will be at 10 a.m. Friday at Harman Mortuary here for Dr. LaVern C. Strough, 60, who was acting director of the Nebraska Psychiatric Institute from 1964 to 1968.

Dr. Strough, a University of Nebraska Medical College graduate, left Omaha in 1968 to join the Worthington (Minn.) Medical Clinic.

He died Sunday at Worthington of a heart attack.

Dr. Strough had been on the staff of Omaha Veterans Administration Hospital before joining the institute staff in 1954 as chief of the adult out-patient clinic. He later served as director of education and training and assistant institute director.

He was named acting director when Dr. Cecil Wittson, then head of the institute, was selected to direct the NU Medical Center.

Survivors include his widow, Dorothy; daughter, Mrs. Stephanie Lingelbach, Omaha; and mother, Mrs. Isabel Strough, Beatrice.

Burial will be at Beatrice.

Hemingford Fire Truck Stolen

Hemingford (AP) — A fire truck received over $2,000 worth of damage early Wednesday after it apparently was stolen from the Hemingford fire house, officials said.

Investigating officers said the vehicle was found at the water's edge at the Box Butte reservoir.

There was evidence that the truck also had been driven on downtown sidewalks, they said.

Lodge News — The "Sunday Journal and Star" has it.

Judges, Omaha Said Filling Penal Complex

A heightened "get-tough" attitude among judges and an influx of prisoners from Douglas County are being given as reasons the State Penal Complex in Lincoln is filling with prisoners.

If the crowded conditions persist or worsen, penal experts fear the tensions could lead to disturbances or disciplinary problems.

And if the increase develops into a long-term trend, it could force the executive and legislative branches of state government to expand plans for new facilities.

State Corrections Director Joseph Vitek reported Wednesday that the State Penitentiary and Reformatory now have 1,150 inmates committed to them, 110 of which are on work release.

The Penal Complex's all-time high population was 1,368 in 1964.

The state's penal reform blueprints call for two new reformatories (one in Omaha, another in Lincoln) and replacement of certain buildings at the Penal Complex with a total capacity for 700 inmates (plus another 100 or 150 in a new diagnostic and evaluation center).

Should the trend continue, penal officials may have to convert offices and hallways to prisoners' quarters, direct county jails to keep prisoners even after sentencing, release some through early paroles or keep existing outdated structures for future use, they said.

Presently, the reformatory and penitentiary can handle the increase, although the 9-by-11-foot cells have more than one prisoner in them.

In an article published in a corrections newsletter, Vitek said, "Previously liberal judges are taking a 'get-tough' stance, particularly in the areas of violence oriented crimes."

Warden Robert Parratt said, "They're coming in droves from Omaha."

In one two-day period last month, 31 offenders arrived at the complex from Omaha. Usually, the prison receives about 10 men a week.

Commissioner Not Quitting

Omaha (AP) — Douglas County Commissioner George Buglewicz said there is no truth to rumors he plans to resign now and become county corrections director.

However, he said he is not ruling out the possibility of taking some kind of post in the corrections department when he nears the end of his present term as commissioner in three years.

He said he supported the retention of Charles Terry as corrections director. Should he be approached again about a position in the department, Buglewicz said he wanted Terry to continue in his present job.

KSC Will Host Band, Choral Clinic

Kearney — The Kearney State College Department of Music will host the fifth annual high school band and choral clinic Monday, Jan. 19. The schedule of activities includes laboratory experiences with the clinic band and chorus plus recreational and social activities. Students from all Nebraska high schools have been invited, according to Dr. Gary Thomas, KSC Music Department head.

Contractors Create Scholarship

Hastings — The Nebraska Chapter of Associated Contractors of America has presented a $250 scholarship to Central Technical Community College in Hastings. Don Huismann, vice president of the contractors, made the presentation. The scholarship will be given to a student in the college's construction technology program during the spring awards banquet in May.

A $25,000 check has been presented to the Association for 4-H Development from the State Department of Agriculture. The rural rehabilitation funds will be used at several 4-H camps throughout the state.

Early Mailing Saves Bell $14,400

Omaha (AP) — The Northwestern Bell Telephone Co. said it saved $14,400 in its four-state area by mailing 1976 credit cards before the 13-cent postal rate went into effect Tuesday night. A spokesman said 480,000 cards were mailed in Nebraska, the Dakotas and Iowa before the 10-cent rate expired.

Albrecht Named To Doane Post

Crete — Louis M. Albrecht will become director of church relations at Doane College, effective today. This new position was created to find areas of cooperation between the college and the United Church of Christ, the denomination which founded Doane College, according to college officials. Albrecht, a 1948 graduate of Doane, will keep the churches informed of Doane activities and seek ways the church can utilize resources of the college.

Scherr Reappointed

Hastings (UPI) — The Adams County Board of Supervisors has reappointed Steve Scherr as county public defender through Dec. 31, 1976. Scherr has held the post since October, 1974, and his first appointment expired Wednesday. The one-year appointment called for an annual salary of $14,000 plus $3,000 for office and legal expenses. The board took no action to make the position permanent. If the post were permanent, it would be an elective office filled at the November general election.

Chambers Blasts Zorinsky On Busing

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

In sharply worded criticism of Omaha Mayor Edward Zorinsky, State Sen. Ernest Chambers Wednesday called busing "the only tool which can desegregate the schools."

Zorinsky, Chambers said, made anti-busing remarks in a televised discussion of the Omaha school desegregation case.

"Omaha has been violating the constitutional right of black children to have a decent educational opportunity for generations," Chambers wrote Zorinsky.

"You have never attempted to provide moral or political leadership to eradicate this gross injustice. As a matter of fact, your prolonged silence has contributed to the wrong.

"No other expedient (besides busing) has even touched the problem. Every so-called 'program' has been a stratagem to prevent the eradication of segregated schools and resultant discriminatory education."

Chambers wrote Zorinsky that "political ambition should not cause a man to forsake all scruples in order to garner racist votes."

Zorinsky is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for the U.S. Senate.

"It is abhorrent that a Jewish person familiar with the genocide attempted against Jews by the Nazis should blandly declare himself in favor of mental genocide of black children," Chambers told Zorinsky.

"Segregated schools violate the law and the Constitution," the Omaha state senator noted.

"The only way to effectively eradicate segregation is to place white children in black schools and black children in white schools."

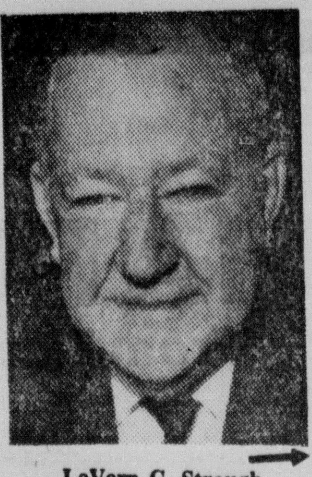
The school bus has always been the vehicle for accomplishing the movement of students, he said.

"Mayor Zorinsky, since you are not opposed to all types of school busing, I must conclude that you are not so much opposed to the bus ride as to what is at the end of it: i.e., a non-segregated classroom," Chambers wrote.

"If you desire that your children not be in a room with black children, be man enough to say so.

"Do not hide (or try to hide) your personal racism behind the red-neckism you know exists in Omaha."

Desegregation, Chambers said, "leads to more care in preparing teachers and curricula, selection and training of administrators, implementation of educational policies and even upgrading of buildings and grounds."



LaVern C. Strough

Ex-Psychiatric Institute Director Strough Dies

Beatrice (AP) — Funeral services will be at 10 a.m. Friday at Harman Mortuary here for Dr. LaVern C. Strough, 60, who was acting director of the Nebraska Psychiatric Institute from 1964 to 1968.

Dr. Strough, a University of Nebraska Medical College graduate, left Omaha in 1968 to join the Worthington (Minn.) Medical Clinic.

He died Sunday at Worthington of a heart attack.

Dr. Strough had been on the staff of Omaha Veterans Administration Hospital before joining the institute staff in 1954 as chief of the adult out-patient clinic. He later served as director of education and training and assistant institute director.

He was named acting director when Dr. Cecil Wittson, then head of the institute, was selected to direct the NU Medical Center.

Survivors include his widow, Dorothy; daughter, Mrs. Stephanie Lingelbach, Omaha; and mother, Mrs. Isabel Strough, Beatrice.

Burial will be at Beatrice.

Lodge News — The "Sunday Journal and Star" has it.

Hemingford Fire Truck Stolen

Hemingford (AP) — A fire truck received over $2,000 worth of damage early Wednesday after it apparently was stolen from the Hemingford fire house, officials said.

Investigating officers said the vehicle was found at the water's edge at the Box Butte reservoir.

There was evidence that the truck also had been driven on downtown sidewalks, they said.

Judges, Omaha Said Filling Penal Complex

A heightened "get-tough" attitude among judges and an influx of prisoners from Douglas County are being given as reasons the State Penal Complex in Lincoln is filling with prisoners.

If the crowded conditions persist or worsen, penal experts fear the tensions could lead to disturbances or disciplinary problems.

And if the increase develops into a long-term trend, it could force the executive and legislative branches of state government to expand plans for new facilities.

State Corrections Director Joseph Vitek reported Wednesday that the State Penitentiary and Reformatory now have 1,150 inmates committed to them, 110 of which are on work release.

The Penal Complex's all-time high population was 1,368 in 1964.

The state's penal reform blueprints call for two new reformatories (one in Omaha, another in Lincoln) and replacement of certain buildings at the Penal Complex with a total capacity for 700 inmates (plus another 100 or 150 in a new diagnostic and evaluation center).

Should the trend continue, penal officials may have to convert offices and hallways to prisoners' quarters, direct county jails to keep prisoners even after sentencing, release some through early paroles or keep existing outdated structures for future use, they said.

Presently, the reformatory and penitentiary can handle the increase, although the 9-by-11-foot cells have more than one prisoner in them.

In an article published in a corrections newsletter, Vitek said, "Previously liberal judges are taking a 'get-tough' stance, particularly in the areas of violence oriented crimes."

Warden Robert Parratt said, "They're coming in droves from Omaha."

In one two-day period last month, 31 offenders arrived at the complex from Omaha. Usually, the prison receives about 10 men a week.

Commissioner Not Quitting

Omaha (AP) — Douglas County Commissioner George Buglewicz said there is no truth to rumors he plans to resign now and become county corrections director.

However, he said he is not ruling out the possibility of taking some kind of post in the corrections department when he nears the end of his present term as commissioner in three years.

He said he supported the retention of Charles Terry as corrections director. Should he be approached again about a position in the department, Buglewicz said he wanted Terry to continue in his present job.

KSC Will Host Band, Choral Clinic

Kearney — The Kearney State College Department of Music will host the fifth annual high school band and choral clinic Monday, Jan. 19. The schedule of activities includes laboratory experiences with the clinic band and chorus plus recreational and social activities. Students from all Nebraska high schools have been invited, according to Dr. Gary Thomas, KSC Music Department head.

Contractors Create Scholarship

Hastings — The Nebraska Chapter of Associated Contractors of America has presented a $250 scholarship to Central Technical Community College in Hastings. Don Huismann, vice president of the contractors, made the presentation. The scholarship will be given to a student in the college's construction technology program during the spring awards banquet in May.

Funds Will Aid 4-H Camps

A $25,000 check has been presented to the Association for 4-H Development from the State Department of Agriculture. The rural rehabilitation funds will be used at several 4-H camps throughout the state.

Early Mailing Saves Bell $14,400

Omaha (AP) — The Northwestern Bell Telephone Co. said it saved $14,400 in its four-state area by mailing 1976 credit cards before the 13-cent postal rate went into effect Tuesday night. A spokesman said 480,000 cards were mailed in Nebraska, the Dakotas and Iowa before the 10-cent rate expired.

Albrecht Named To Doane Post

Crete — Louis M. Albrecht will become director of church relations at Doane College, effective today. This new position was created to find areas of cooperation between the college and the United Church of Christ, the denomination which founded Doane College, according to college officials. Albrecht, a 1948 graduate of Doane, will keep the churches informed of Doane activities and seek ways the church can utilize resources of the college.

Scherr Reappointed

Hastings (UPI) — The Adams County Board of Supervisors has reappointed Steve Scherr as county public defender through Dec. 31, 1976. Scherr has held the post since October, 1974, and his first appointment expired Wednesday. The one-year appointment called for an annual salary of $14,000 plus $3,000 for office and legal expenses. The board took no action to make the position permanent. If the post were permanent, it would be an elective office filled at the November general election.

Antarctic Fish Finds Home At Nebraska State Museum

A lot of fishermen would just spread their arms and tell you about the big one they caught. Not Sam Treves, chairman of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln geology department. He brought his Dissostichus mawsoni all the way back from Antarctica just before Christmas. In a fourth floor laboratory in Morrill Hall, the Nebraska State Museum, Treves pulled the yard-long, muddy brown fish from a plastic bag filled with preservative and presented it to Harvey L. Gunderson, associate director of the museum.

Gunderson was grateful. The gaping-jawed denizen of Antarctic waters and about a dozen smaller fish representing nine species will constitute one of the few collections of its kind in North America.

Treves didn't actually catch the fish. A team from Scripps Institute of Oceanography in La Jolla, Calif., headed by Dr. Arthur DeVries did — with a hook and line and traps down 1,500 feet near the bottom of McMurdo Sound. DeVries, with the permission of the Smithsonian Institution, which controls the entry and disposition of all scientifically gathered biological specimens in the United States, donated the collection to the university at Treve's request.

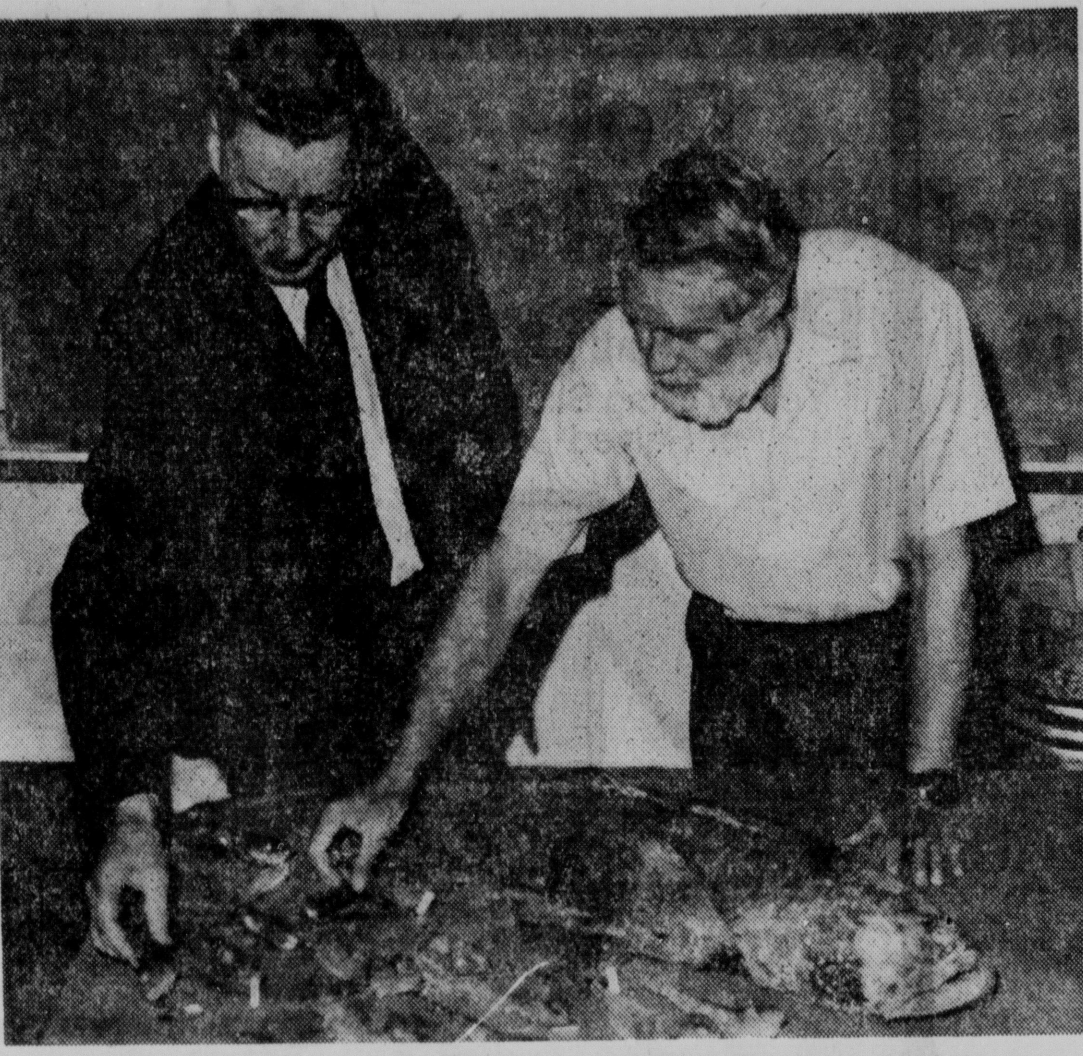
In the near future, it will be on display in the museum.

"What's unusual about these fish," according to Treves, is that they all contain a glyco-protein — a substance that acts as an anti-freeze — which enables them to survive at temperatures slightly lower than zero degrees Celsius (32 degrees Fahrenheit).

DeVries and his team from Scripps Institute have been conducting biological research involving the glyco-protein bearing fish of Antarctica for several years, Treves said.

There are several possible avenues of interest in regard to the substance, Treves said. "If we could find how it's made by these fish, it may be possible to produce or use materials in humans. And some researchers see the substance as possible useful in cancer treatment."

Treves, however, is not directly concerned with biological studies in Antarctica. He is a geologist and program manager of the National Science Foundation's Dry Valley Drilling Project in Antarctica, which has produced some 8,000 feet of core from 15 holes drilled in the McMurdo Sound area over the last four years. The samples obtained from the drilling will provide valuable information about the more recent geological history of the Antarctic continent, and also a record of changing weather patterns of the earth as indicated by the growth and reduction of the Antarctic ice sheet.



NEW EXHIBIT . . . Drs. Treves and Gunderson study fish.

6 Selective Service Offices Are Closing

The Nebraska Selective Service program will be reduced during 1976, and at least six state offices will be discontinued, Edward C. Binder, state selective service director, said.

Conflicting news wire stories had caused confusion about the future of nine Nebraska offices. First reports said all nine offices would close this year. A follow-up story said the offices would remain open.

The offices which possibly would close are in Lincoln, Omaha, Norfolk, Columbus, O'Neill, Grand Island, Kearney, North Platte and Scottsbluff.

Binder said at least six of these offices would close, but he said he did not know which ones would be phased out, or if more than six would close.

Binder said he would not have guidelines to reduce the Nebraska Selective Service program until all state directors meet Jan. 22-23 in New Orleans.

The requirement for 18-year-old men to register for the draft ended April 1, 1975.

Japan Price Index Up

Tokyo (AP) — Japan's consumer price index declined 0.7% in November, from a month ago but was up 8.1% from a year earlier, the prime minister's office reported.

Kearney Man Burned in Fire At Apartment

Kearney (AP) — Bill Kohlscheen, 79, of Kearney was placed in the intensive care unit of a Kearney hospital Wednesday after an early morning fire in his apartment.

Hospital officials dscribed his condition as serious. He is suffering from severe smoke inhalation and minor burns on the legs and feet.

Damage to the apartment and its contents was estimated at $750.

Stock Grower Against Sunshine Initiative

Alliance — A petition nicknamed the "Sunshine Initiative" would have devastating detrimental effects on all levels of government in the state, according to a Nebraska Stock Growers spokesman.

The petition is aimed at placing a political reform act before voters in 1976. Reforms in campaign financing, lobbyist reporting procedures, conflict of interest prohibitions and open meetings guarantees are proposed.

"The Sunshine Initiative has very laudable ideals as its purpose, and political reform is something we'd all like to see," Cal Coulter, Stock Grower president, said. "But the way this proposal is set up, few people with any talent or knowledge would be willing to go through the procedures and exposure necessary to run for any office."

"It is difficult enough now to get qualified, knowledgeable people to run for school boards, county commissions and land use and zoning boards," Coulter said. "The financial disclosures and conflict of interest provisions included in this proposal would make it virtually impossible to maintain any respectable standard of government. Our quality of government on both state and local levels would suffer."

"The Stock Growers have no official position on the proposal yet, as we haven't met since we obtained copies of the 10-plus page report," Coulter said. "But we strongly urge anyone to read and understand the entire proposal before they sign any petition. After close study, one might decide the proposal is not realistic at a time when our local governments are being given more and more authortiy and responsibility."

Sunshine Sponsors Reply To Critics

Sponsors of the Sunshine Initiative Wednesday reminded the Nebraska State School Boards Association that only about 30 of the 1,241 school districts in the state would be covered by financial disclosure provisions of their proposed political reform act.

The NSSBA had criticized the initiative proposal, suggesting that it could discourage citizens from seeking office, including school board posts.

Only school districts with populations over 5,000 would be covered by the financial disclosure provisions of the law, the Coalition for Open Government noted.

"People in small communities are much more likely to know candidates personally, so the opportunity for undetected conflict of interest is small," the coalition said.

But "elected officials who have control over budgets in excess of a half million dollars and levy a property tax of perhaps 40 or 50 mills should disclose the source of their financial interests so that the public can judge if there are important conflicts of interest," the group stated.

"Persons who choose to do the public's business should expect to be subject to public scrutiny."

Antarctic Fish Finds Home At Nebraska State Museum

A lot of fishermen would just spread their arms and tell you about the big one they caught. Not Sam Treves, chairman of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln geology department. He brought his Dissostichus mawsoni all the way back from Antarctica just before Christmas. In a fourth floor laboratory in Morrill Hall, the Nebraska State Museum, Treves pulled the yard-long, muddy brown fish from a plastic bag filled with preservative and presented it to Harvey L. Gunderson, associate director of the museum.

Gunderson was grateful. The gaping-jawed denizen of Antarctic waters and about a dozen smaller fish representing nine species will constitute one of the few collections of its kind in North America.

Treves didn't actually catch the fish. A team from Scripps Institute of Oceanography in La Jolla, Calif., headed by Dr. Arthur DeVries did — with a hook and line and traps down 1,500 feet near the bottom of McMurdo Sound. DeVries, with the permission of the Smithsonian Institution, which controls the entry and disposition of all scientifically gathered biological specimens in the United States, donated the collection to the university at Treve's request

In the near future, it will be on display in the museum.

"What's unusual about these fish," according to Treves, is that they all contain a glyco-protein — a substance that acts as an anti-freeze — which enables them to survive at temperatures slightly lower than zero degrees Celsius (32 degrees Fahrenheit).

DeVries and his team from Scripps Institute have been conducting biological research involving the glyco-protein bearing fish of Antarctica for several years, Treves said.

There are several possible avenues of interest in regard to the substance, Treves said. "If we could find how it's made by these fish, it may be possible to produce or use materials in humans. And some researchers see the substance as possible useful in cancer treatment."

Treves, however, is not directly concerned with biological studies in Antarctica. He is a geologist and program manager of the National Science Foundation's Dry Valley Drilling Project in Antarctica, which has produced some 8,000 feet of core from 15 holes drilled in the McMurdo Sound area over the last four years. The samples obtained from the drilling will provide valuable information about the more recent geological history of the Antarctic continent, and also a record of changing weather patterns of the earth as indicated by the growth and reduction of the Antarctic ice sheet.

6 Selective Service Offices Are Closing

The Nebraska Selective Service program will be reduced during 1976, and at least six state offices will be discontinued, Edward C. Binder, state selective service director, said.

Conflicting news wire stories had caused confusion about the future of nine Nebraska offices. First reports said all nine offices would close this year. A follow-up story said the offices would remain open.

The offices which possibly would close are in Lincoln, Omaha, Norfolk, Columbus, O'Neill, Grand Island, Kearney, North Platte and Scottsbluff.

Binder said at least six of these offices would close, but he said he did not know which ones would be phased out, or if more than six would close.

Binder said he would not have guidelines to reduce the Nebraska Selective Service program until all state directors meet Jan. 22-23 in New Orleans.

The requirement for 18-year-old men to register for the draft ended April 1, 1975.

Nebraska had 20 selective service offices in 1974. The number was reduced to nine in 1975.

Kearney Man Burned in Fire At Apartment

Kearney (AP) — Bill Kohlscheen, 79, of Kearney was placed in the intensive care unit of a Kearney hospital Wednesday after an early morning fire in his apartment.

Hospital officials dscribed his condition as serious. He is suffering from severe smoke inhalation and minor burns on the legs and feet.

Western Water Use Study Begins Jan. 1

Omaha (UPI) — The Missouri River Basin Commission said Wednesday what it called "a critical water use study of the Yellowstone River basin and adjacent coal areas" will begin Jan. 1 under the commission's leadership.

Appropriations for the study were contained in a public works bill signed into law by President Ford on Dec. 26.

John W. Neuberger of Omaha, commission chairman, said "The study will provide an analysis of the impacts of potential energy and agricultural developments on water and related land resources."

He said the study will involve state and federal agencies, civic groups, industry and private individuals and will consider national objectives as well as state and regional goals and environmental factors.

From among conflicting goals and objectives, alternatives will be evaluated and a balanced plan will be put together for the economic, environmental and social well-being of residents of Montana, North Dakota, Wyoming and the rest of the nation, Neuberger said.

The 125,000 square mile study area includes all or parts of 51 counties — 21 in Montana and 15 each in North Dakota and Wyoming.

Neuberger said the three states have pledged $1.29 million in planning services for completion of the one-year study.

Federal funds of $1.1 million will be provided through the U.S. Water Resources Council for study management.

Sen. Stull Of Alliance Will Seek Re-Election

Alliance (AP) — State Sen. Leslie Stull has announced he plans to file for reelection Friday from the 49th District.

Stull, a 67-year-old farmer rancher, will file for his third term.

No other candidates have announced.

Stull said he plans to introduce four bills. One would change the small claims court system by enabling plaintiffs to start action in their own county if the defendant lives in another. A second would increase fees for brand registration and renewals from $5 to $15.

Stull said he would propose a housekeeping bill to repeal 20 sections of obsolete statutes and amend 10 others dealing with transportation. His other bill would permit tax refunds on gasoline for persons having vehicles not licensed or not used on public highways.

Stull predicted the upcoming session would continue a conservative monetary policy that was spawned by the special session.

A member of the Appropriations Committee, Stull said some departments that came to the committee later decided they could get along with 3% less.

He said in the future the Legislature would demand more justification for appropriations requests.

Drug Treatment Grant Received

The Nebraska Commission on Drugs has received a $268,376 grant from the National Institue on Drug Abuse to aid drug treatment programs in the Omaha area.

Jeff Kushner, executive director of the drug commission, said the money would go to the Eastern Nebraska Human Services Agency, Operation Bridge and Equilibria Medical Center.

The federal grant will be matched with state and local money.

Accreditors Set Visit To SeTech Lincoln Campus

A national accreditation team will conduct its biennial visit Jan. 22 and 23 on the Lincoln campus of the Southeast Nebraska Technical Community College (SeTech).

Campus Director David Buettner said he anticipates completing the accreditation process "sometime in 1977." The campus now has candidate status from the North Central Association of Community and Junior Colleges.

Winning full accreditation normally takes about five years, Dr. Buettner said.

When the old Lincoln Technical College was part of the public schools, it shared the school district's accreditation. LTC was made a part of SeTech in 1973, and thus has sought its own campus accreditation.

The North Central Association, Buettner said, is a volunteer policing organization for quality education and helps campuses maintain programs.

The accreditation team biennial visit serves only "to provide some direction to us, and to provide a progress report to North Central, as to how we're doing."

Court Suspends Papillion Man's Law Practice

Papillion City Atty. Lee Larsen was suspended from practicing law Wednesday by the Nebraska Supreme Court pending the outcome of a complaint lodged against him.

The Nebraska Bar Association's disciplinary officer has charged Larsen with misconduct in the handling of his clients' affairs.

Earlier this month, Larsen was acquitted on a criminal charge that he conspired to have an individual beaten up.

Larsen faces possible disbarment.

Larsen's suspension was effective Monday but not announced until Wednesday.

Drunk Tank Injury Judgment Upheld

By The Associated Press

The Nebraska Supreme Court Wednesday upheld a $200,000 judgment granted by the Douglas County District Court to a man who was severely beaten while in the "drunk tank" of the Omaha city jail.

Leonard Daniels suffered a broken jaw and severe brain injury from the beating at the hands of another prisoner.

The Supreme Court identified the man responsible for the beating only as Watson and said he was an ex-professional prize fighter and an escapee from a mental institution.

The court said Daniels is unable to talk, remember or reason as a result of the beating. The court said the beating was discovered only when jailers placed another drunk in the tank.

"The police are not insurers of a prisoner's safety, but when a prisoner is intoxicated, a jailer has a duty to use a high degree of care to insure the prisoner's protections," the Supreme Court said.

The city of Omaha, which was ordered to pay the judgment, appealed the case to the high court.

In other cases, the Supreme Court:

— Reversed the Lancaster County District Court and dismissed a Workmen's Compensation suit filed against D. H. Merrit & Sons by Adam Eliker.

— Affirmed a Custer County District Court decision in a case arising from a collision between a tractor driven by Susan K. Seevers Riecks and a motorcycle, ridden by Floyd Treffer.

— Upheld the Madison County District Court decision in a suit between Richard Tillotson and John Stephens in a dispute over the ownership of a steel grain bin.

— Upheld the Red Willow County District Court settlement of the estate of Harold Lingle.

— Affirmed a Buffalo County District Court decision awarding the Elm Creek State Bank and the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation a $31,433 judgment against Anna L. Johnson on the basis of a promissory note.

— Upheld a Chase County District Court decision which said Thomas and Helen Maddux were not required to pay for irrigation wells drilled by Haggard Drilling, Inc.

— Upheld the Jefferson County District Court divorce and property settlement of Doris Grummert and Orland Grummert.

Court Affirms Judgment Against Lover

The Nebraska Supreme Court Wednesday upheld a $25,000 judgment awarded to Lonnie Breiner from his former wife's lover, but raised Breiner's child support payments $150 a month in a separate case.

Both cases were appealed from the Holt County District Court.

Breiner, who caught his wife Sharon Breiner with his former employer, Ted Olson, in an Omaha hotel was awarded $25,000 for alienation of affections and criminal conversation (adultery.)

But in a separate case, the Supreme Court found that Breiner's payment of $300 per month was insufficient for the support of the couple's four children. The court raised the monthly payment to $450.

However, the Supreme Court also removed a portion of the district court judgment which called for Breiner to pay a portion of his annual bonus in child support.

10 Iranians To Be Shot For Killing 3 Americans

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — An army tribunal has sentenced 10 Iranians identified by the government as Marxist guerrillas to death by firing squad for killing three American colonels and five Iranians. One of the dead Iranians worked for the U.S. Consulate.

The sentences were announced Wednesday after being issued by the tribunal Tuesday night. The defendants also were convicted of plotting against the regime of Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlevi, illegal possession of arms, armed robbery and sabotage.

The court sentenced an 11th defendant, a woman, to 15 years in solitary confinement.

The Marxist group was found guilty of participating in the killing last May 21 of two American colonels as they drove to work at an Iranian military base southeast of Tehran. The two, Air Force Col. Paul R. Shaffer Jr., 45, of Bryan, Ohio, and Lt. Col. Jack J. Turner, 45, of Christopher, Ill., were members of the U.S. Military Assistance Advisory Group in Iran.

The Marxists also admitted the 1973 slaying of Lt. Col. Lewis Hawkins,42, of Plymouth, Ind., financial comptroller of the U.S. military mission.

Among the group's Iranian victims was a fellow Marxist guerrilla. According to trial testimony he was executed for disobeying the underground organization. The defendants said he was burned to death and after their arrest showed officials his grave, according to trial testimony.

The Marxist underground has been relatively quiet since arrest of the defendants last summer. Altogether some 200 guerrillas have been killed in street battles or by firing squads in the past several years.

Shaffer and Turner were among 1,000 American military personnel and 2,000 civilians assigned to the military assistance group in Iran.

Drunk Tank Injury Judgment Upheld

By The Associated Press

The Nebraska Supreme Court Wednesday upheld a $200,000 judgment granted by the Douglas County District Court to a man who was severely beaten while in the "drunk tank" of the Omaha city jail.

Leonard Daniels suffered a broken jaw and severe brain injury from the beating at the hands of another prisoner.

The Supreme Court identified the man responsible for the beating only as Watson and said he was an ex-professional prize fighter and an escapee from a mental institution.

The court said Daniels is unable to talk, remember or reason as a result of the beating. The court said the beating was discovered only when jailers placed another drunk in the tank.

"The police are not insurers of a prisoner's safety, but when a prisoner is intoxicated, a jailer has a duty to use a high degree of care to insure the prisoner's protections," the Supreme Court said.

The city of Omaha, which was ordered to pay the judgment, appealed the case to the high court.

In other cases, the Supreme Court:

— Reversed the Lancaster County District Court and dismissed a Workmen's Compensation suit filed against D. H. Merrit & Sons by Adam Eliker

— Affirmed a Custer County District Court decision in a case arising from a collision between a tractor driven by Susan K. Seevers Riecks and a motorcycle ridden by Floyd Treffer

— Upheld the Madison County District Court decision in a suit between Richard Tillotson and John Stephens in a dispute over the ownership of a steel grain bin

— Upheld the Red Willow County District Court settlement of the estate of Harold Lingle

— Affirmed a Buffalo County District Court decision awarding the Elm Creek State Bank and the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation a $31,433 judgment against Anna L. Johnson on the basis of a promissory note

— Upheld a Chase County District Court decision which said Thomas and Helen Maddux were not required to pay for irrigation wells drilled by Haggard Drilling, Inc

— Upheld the Jefferson County District Court divorce and property settlement of Doris Grummert and Orland Grummert

Court Affirms Judgment Against Lover

The Nebraska Supreme Court Wednesday upheld a $25,000 judgment awarded to Lonnie Breiner from his former wife's lover, but raised Breiner's child support payments $150 a month in a separate case.

Both cases were appealed from the Holt County District Court.

Breiner, who caught his wife Sharon Breiner with his former employer, Ted Olson, in an Omaha hotel was awarded $25,000 for alienation of affections and criminal conversation (adultery.)

But in a separate case, the Supreme Court found that Breiner's payment of $300 per month was insufficient for the support of the couple's four children. The court raised the monthly payment to $450.

However, the Supreme Court also removed a portion of the district court judgment which called for Breiner to pay a portion of his annual bonus in child support.

10 Iranians To Be Shot For Killing 3 Americans

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — An army tribunal has sentenced 10 Iranians identified by the government as Marxist guerrillas to death by firing squad for killing three American colonels and five Iranians. One of the dead Iranians worked for the U.S. Consulate.

The sentences were announced Wednesday after being issued by the tribunal Tuesday night. The defendants also were convicted of plotting against the regime of Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlevi, illegal possession of arms, armed robbery and sabotage.

The court sentenced an 11th defendant, a woman, to 15 years in solitary confinement.

The Marxist group was found guilty of participating in the killing last May 21 of two American colonels as they drove to work at an Iranian military base southeast of Tehran. The two, Air Force Col. Paul R. Shaffer Jr., 45, of Bryan, Ohio, and Lt. Col. Jack J. Turner, 45, of Christopher, Ill., were members of the U.S. Military Assistance Advisory Group in Iran.

The Marxists also admitted the 1973 slaying of Lt. Col. Lewis Hawkins,42, of Plymouth, Ind., financial comptroller of the U.S. military mission.

Among the group's Iranian victims was a fellow Marxist guerrilla. According to trial testimony he was executed for disobeying the underground organization. The defendants said he was burned to death and after their arrest showed officials his grave, according to trial testimony.

The Marxist underground has been relatively quiet since arrest of the defendants last summer. Altogether some 200 guerrillas have been killed in street battles or by firing squads in the past several years.

Shaffer and Turner were among 1,000 American military personnel and 2,000 civilians assigned to the military assistance group in Iran.

Experts Start Probe Into Fire

Central City (UPI) — Explosive experts with the Nebraska State Patrol Wednesday began an investigation into the cause of an explosion and fire that destroyed a downtown block of businesses and killed one person.

The State Fire Marshal's Office Tuesday completed its preliminary investigation of the explosion and fire, but Merrick County Sheriff Dan R. Schneiderheinz requested help from State Patrol investigators to determine the exact cause of the explosion.

The Dec. 17 explosion and fire killed Philip Bolling, 50, owner and operator of Bolling's Meat Locker. The explosion occurred inside Bolling's locker facility and resulted in an estimated $1 million damage.

Investigator Harold Kotschwar, Kearney, said authorities had not ruled out anything as the cause of the explosion. He said the explosion appeared to have occurred at ground level, taking out part of the back of Bolling's locker and blowing through the wall of two businesses adjoining his operation.

State Fire Marshal Martin Dineen said reports by his staff "are still leaning toward a gas theory, but not enough evidence is available to substantiate it. But we weren't thinking about any other kind of explosion when our investigation was conducted."

Dineen said he was told a request was made for an investigation "by the explosive people regarding an explosion other than gas."

When Kotschwar was asked if gas was the answer, he replied, "We're not ruling that out, but it could have been something else." He said the exact cause may never be determined because of the fire.

Dallas Jutert, a deputy state fire marshal from Hastings, said the natural gas line was intact except for one break, which, he said, could have been broken before or after the explosion.

He said witnesses indicated they had not smelled gas prior to the explosion. The gas meter had been read earlier in the day and everything appeared in order.

Jutert said he was unable to pinpoint the cause of the explosion, "But it had to be something very powerful because it blew off the roof and went through two walls."

HEMP Files Signatures For Ballot Vote

Helping End Marijuana Prohibition (HEMP) has filed petitions containing nearly 700 signatures with the secretary of state's office, its former acting co-chairman said Wednesday.

The petitions are seeking a general election vote next November on a proposal to legalize possession of marijuana.

Len Schropfer of Milligan said HEMP remains "alive" and is still seeking the nearly 32,000 signatures required to place the issue on next year's ballot.

Schropfer said he retired as acting co-chairman of the organization to devote more time to other issues, including the control of pesticides.

Exon Appoints Seven To Serve On State Boards

By The Associated Press

Gov. J. J. Exon Wednesday appointed three members to the Nebraska Crime Commission.

They are Gaylen L. Kuchel of the University of Nebraska at Omaha, Dawson County Sheriff John Rohnert and Judge William F. Colwell of Pawnee City.

Exon appointed Jeanette Beckner of Valentine and Nebraska Morrow of Omaha to the Advisory Council on Hospital and Medical facilities.

He appointed Justin Dierks of Omaha and Edward H .Edwards of Grand Island to the Board of Examiners for Sanitarians.

Police Led On Railyard Chase

Omaha (AP) — Police were led on a 1½ hour boxcar chase through the Union Pacific Railroad yards Wednesday when a prisoner transported from Douglas County jail to Municipal Court escaped.

Robert M. Owens, 20, apparently lost his shoes during the chase and his feet were frozen, police said. He had been jailed since Dec. 4 in lieu of $30,000 bond while awaiting trial on two robbery charges.

Life Begins At Forty:

Literacy Program Is Seeking Tutors

By JOANNE FARRIS

QUESTION: "You wrote a column about retired people helping to teach others to read, also about people wanting to learn to read. This is what we do — teach adults to tutor other adults. Could you put our address in your column? We need some tutors. Also, we can take pupils. Signed, Margaret Smalley, Coordinator, Greater Indianapolis Literacy League, 1505 N. Delaware St., Indianapolis, Ind., 46202."

ANSWER: There you go, Mrs. Smalley. Thanks for writing. I have done a number of columns about Laubach Literacy, with which you are affiliated. A recent poll revealed that 20% of American adults lack the skills and knowledge to function effectively making a living and maintaining a home and family. The greatest difficulties are encountered in the area of consumer economics, which is of ever-growing importance. Persons over 60 do least well in tests of proficiency.

Every American needs to be able to read and write effectively. In addition to Laubach Literacy, many community adult education programs have regularly scheduled courses to teach reading and writing to the elderly.

The federal government has a program mainly geared for adolescent "illiterates" but also including certain older persons who qualify. Persons interested in receiving help, or in becoming volunteers can write to: "The Right-to-Read Office, Office of Education, Washington, D.C. 20202.

A READER WRITES: "Here's an idea we hatched in our local Women's Club meeting in Sioux, S.D., that I'll bet a lot of your readers could adopt.

"We have distributed almost 2,000 bright orange signs to elderly apartment dwellers and residents of private homes. The signs says, simply, "I'M OKAY." At a certain prearranged hour each day the participants in our program hang their signs in a window or on their front door for a neighbor or a friend, who is also in the program, to check.

"The checker notes that the sign has been put out, then looks again later to be sure the sign has been removed. If the friendly watcher does not see the sign in its designated place, he or she knocks on the door. If there is no answer, the police are called. Likewise, if the sign is put up and not taken down the watcher checks to be sure that the resident is still okay.

"Acceptance of the program has been enthusiastic, especially in high-rise apartments where there are many elderly residents. They take great comfort in knowing that someone will come to their assistance if they are unable to put up their sign. And the volunteer monitors enjoy their work."

COMMENT: What a great idea! In our town the International Association of Firefighters Union distributes free to invalids of all ages another sign that has great merit. The Maltese Cross is the traditional firefighters' symbol, and the firemen have incorporated it on a sticker with a large "I" for invalid. Persons who have one of these stickers in their window are assured that in the event of fire, the firefighters will break in to get them out.

For those of you with pets, a decal which reads, "in case of fire please rescue pets" and lists the number and type of pets in your home, is available from Friends of Animals, Inc., Dept. 516, 11 West 60th St., New York, N.Y. 10023. Two decals cost $1.

POSTCARD

by Stan Delaplane

St. John — At 9 o'clock the maid comes to the cottage overlooking Turtle Bay. We then go down to breakfast in the breezy dining room that looks across the blue sparkling water to the green, tropical hills of St. Thomas.

The maid is Arliss (or Orliss). She is 17. Native-born in the island of St. John. She is apparently too shy to tell me how to spell her name. I have been trying to interview her.

"What is that on the porch, Orliss?"

"That a wum, suh."

"A worm?" (This thing is 8 inches long. It is an inch thick. It is striped like a king snake. It looks like one of the things Fu-Manchu used to keep in his zoo for knocking off the opposition.)

"Yes, suh. Wum." (Okay. It's only a worm. I'd hate to see what they call a snake.)

☆ ☆ ☆

A trim, twin-screw launch, all gleaming white on a turquoise sea, runs you over from the Virgin Island of St. Thomas to the smaller island of St. John.

The young reporter from the Virgin Islands newspaper poised a sharp pencil over his pad and asked a sharp question:

"Sir," he said, "would you say the Virgin Islands are becoming over-commercialized?"

☆ ☆ ☆

The Virgin Islands got commercialized when Columbus discovered them on his second voyage.

The great navigator took a look at all these islands and he knew he was going to run out of names. I imagine Columbus was working without the calendar of saints — just doing it out of memory.

He packaged these islands by naming them after St. Ursula and her 11,000 virgins.

"That gives us plenty of names to go around," said Christopher. "Sail on."

He wrote some glowing commercials back to Ferdinand and Isabella, who were staking the trip on a sail-now, pay-later basis.

The Danes took over in 1666 and began raising sugar cane.

They didn't raise it for a hobby. So, if you look at it that way, the islands have been commercialized for quite a time.

There are 62,000 people like Orliss (or Arliss, I must find out) in the American Virgin Islands.

They are mainly jet-black. The native Indians of the Caribbean didn't hold up under white rule. The Danes, like the British, Spanish and Dutch, brought in slaves from Africa to work the rum and sugar cane.

There were enough English and Scottish overseers to give the islands the English language. Not enough of them to mix the color as in the mainland U.S. and Puerto Rico.

The Virgin Islander speaks a clipped English and a few African and a few Spanish words.

It sounds like the British island talk to me. "Mahn, it mek you bred de hot," I heard on the street the other day. Meaning, "I'm heartbroken."

But people here assure me the British islands such as Jamaica have an accent that is entirely different.

Over-commercialized? This is a loaded question in these golden days of faraway places with the strange-sounding names. (I have asked this sort of thing myself. The person who answered, lived to regret it.)

If you say, "Yes," the hotels, restaurants, and tourist bureau hate you.

If you say, "No," they hate you. For insinuating they are not prepared for tourists.

The correst answer is: "It seems to me your island has put in all the qualities that tourists find so pleasant. At the same time, it has managed to keep its native charm."

This, of course, is so much wind in the coco palms. The more you put in air-conditioned mansion hotels, the more space you've got to take away from the palm trees.

Life Begins At Forty:

Literacy Program Is Seeking Tutors

By JOANNE FARRIS

QUESTION: "You wrote a column about retired people helping to teach others to read, also about people wanting to learn to read. This is what we do — teach adults to tutor other adults. Could you put our address in your column? We need some tutors. Also, we can take pupils. Signed, Margaret Smalley, Coordinator, Greater Indianapolis Literacy League, 1505 N. Delaware St., Indianapolis, Ind., 46202."

ANSWER: There you go, Mrs. Smalley. Thanks for writing. I have done a number of columns about Laubach Literacy, with which you are affiliated. A recent poll revealed that 20% of American adults lack the skills and knowledge to function effectively making a living and maintaining a home and family. The greatest difficulties are encountered in the area of consumer economics, which is of ever-growing importance. Persons over 60 do least well in tests of proficiency.

Every American needs to be able to read and write effectively. In addition to Laubach Literacy, many community adult education programs have regularly scheduled courses to teach reading and writing to the elderly.

The federal government has a program mainly geared for adolescent "illiterates" but also including certain older persons who qualify. Persons interested in receiving help, or in becoming volunteers can write to: "The Right-to-Read Office, Office of Education, Washington, D.C. 20202.

A READER WRITES: "Here's an idea we hatched in our local Women's Club meeting in Sioux, S.D., that I'll bet a lot of your readers could adopt.

"We have distributed almost 2,000 bright orange signs to elderly apartment dwellers and residents of private homes. The signs says, simply, "I'M OKAY." At a certain prearranged hour each day the participants in our program hang their signs in a window or on their front door for a neighbor or a friend, who is also in the program, to check.

"The checker notes that the sign has been put out, then looks again later to be sure the sign has been removed. If the friendly watcher does not see the sign in its designated place, he or she knocks on the door. If there is no answer, the police are called. Likewise, if the sign is put up and not taken down the watcher checks to be sure that the resident is still okay.

"Acceptance of the program has been enthusiastic, especially in high-rise apartments where there are many elderly residents. They take great comfort in knowing that someone will come to their assistance if they are unable to put up their sign. And the volunteer monitors enjoy their work."

COMMENT: What a great idea! In our town the International Association of Firefighters Union distributes free to invalids of all ages another sign that has great merit. The Maltese Cross is the traditional firefighters' symbol, and the firemen have incorporated it on a sticker with a large "I" for invalid. Persons who have one of these stickers in their window are assured that in the event of fire, the firefighters will break in to get them out.

For those of you with pets, a decal which reads, "in case of fire please rescue pets" and lists the number and type of pets in your home, is available from Friends of Animals, Inc., Dept. 516, 11 West 60th St., New York, N.Y. 10023. Two decals cost $1.

St. John — At 9 o'clock the maid comes to the cottage overlooking Turtle Bay. We then go down to breakfast in the breezy dining room that looks across the blue sparkling water to the green, tropical hills of St. Thomas.

The maid is Arliss (or Orliss). She is 17. Native-born in the island of St. John. She is apparently too shy to tell me how to spell her name. I have been trying to interview her.

"What is that on the porch, Orliss?"

"That a wum, suh."

"A worm?" (This thing is 8 inches long. It is an inch thick. It is striped like a king snake. It looks like one of the things Fu-Manchu used to keep in his zoo for knocking off the opposition.)

"Yes, suh. Wum." (Okay. It's only a worm. I'd hate to see what they call a snake.)

☆ ☆ ☆

A trim, twin-screw launch, all gleaming white on a turquoise sea, runs you over from the Virgin Island of St. Thomas to the smaller island of St. John.

The young reporter from the Virgin Islands newspaper poised a sharp pencil over his pad and asked a sharp question:

"Sir," he said, "would you say the Virgin Islands are becoming over-commercialized?"

☆ ☆ ☆

The Virgin Islands got commercialized when Columbus discovered them on his second voyage.

The great navigator took a look at all these islands and he knew he was going to run out of names. I imagine Columbus was working without the calendar of saints — just doing it out of memory.

He packaged these islands by naming them after St. Ursula and her 11,000 virgins.

"That gives us plenty of names to go around," said Christopher. "Sail on."

He wrote some glowing commercials back to Ferdinand and Isabella, who were staking the trip on a sail-now, pay-later basis.

The Danes took over in 1666 and began raising sugar cane.

They didn't raise it for a hobby. So, if you look at it that way, the islands have been commercialized for quite a time.

There are 62,000 people like Orliss (or Arliss, I must find out) in the American Virgin Islands.

They are mainly jet-black. The native Indians of the Caribbean didn't hold up under white rule. The Danes, like the British, Spanish and Dutch, brought in slaves from Africa to work the rum and sugar cane.

There were enough English and Scottish overseers to give the islands the English language. Not enough of them to mix the color as in the mainland U.S. and Puerto Rico.

The Virgin Islander speaks a clipped English and a few African and a few Spanish words.

It sounds like the British island talk to me. "Mahn, it mek you bred de hot," I heard on the street the other day. Meaning, "I'm heartbroken."

But people here assure me the British islands such as Jamaica have an accent that is entirely different.

☆ ☆ ☆

If you say, "No," they hate you. For insinuating they are not prepared for tourists.

The correct answer is: "It seems to me your island has put in all the qualities that tourists find so pleasant. At the same time, it has managed to keep its native charm."

History Study In Crisis

By CYNTHIA JOHNSON
Star Staff Writer

The study of history in the public schools is "in crisis," according to a report published recently in the "Journal of American History."

Insufficiently prepared history teachers, "presentist" (20th century-oriented) curriculums and non traditional teaching methods are failing to provide high school students with a grasp of history, the report says.

Based on a two-year survey of history instruction in the 50 states prepared by a committee of the Organization of American Historians, the report indicates that history teaching in Nebraska may be in better shape than elsewhere.

But that may be small consolation.

In some states, "virtually no training in history is demanded" of high school history teachers, the report states.

A graduate of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Teachers' College must have at least 18 hours (six courses) in history in order to be certified to teach social studies in high school. The remaining 36 hours required for social studies certification are taken in other social sciences — anthropology, psychology, economics, sociology, etc.

History Required

Nebraska also has a law requiring the teaching of history in the public schools. Many states do not have such a law.

But in the area of curriculum and teaching methods, Nebraska has joined the current trend towards a "presentist," topical approach to history — a trend some professional historians view with alarm.

Dr. Tom Walsh, who assisted Dr. Harl Dahlstrom, University of Nebraska-Omaha history professor, in compiling the Nebraska segment of the OAH survey, said changes in curriculum and teaching methods are, in part, a result of a changing attitude on the part of students.

The vast majority of Nebraska high school history teachers who participated in the survey said today's students appear less interested in history than those in years past.

They seem to feel it has little or no application to their daily lives, said Walsh, consultant in social studies for the State Department of Education.

As a result, Nebraska teachers have been forced to devise new ways to make the study of history "relevant."

The topical approach to history — whereby certain isolated topics such as revolution or industrialization are studied in depth — has replaced the traditional chronological approach in many classrooms.

Twentieth century history is emphasized; mini-courses which, again, explore rather isolated topics are becoming more common; and more teachers have been forced to devise new ways to make the study of history "relevant."

The topical approach to history — whereby certain isolated topics such as revolution or industrialization are studied in depth — has replaced the traditional chronological approach in many classrooms.

Twentieth century history is emphasized; mini-courses which, again, explore rather isolated topics are becoming more common; and more teachers have abandoned the lecture method of teaching, using instead the "inquiry" method (a problem-solving approach whereby students explore an issue and formulate their own conclusions).

Integrated Study

The Nebraska survey also indicated that there is, on the high school level, "less concern with history as an isolated subject area," Walsh said. Instead, curriculums attempt to integrate history with the general humanities.

The inquiry method of teaching, which came into vogue in the mid-1960's, has been endorsed but not required by the State Department of Education.

Scored As Well

Students exposed to an inquiry curriculum in various subject areas have scored as well on standardized tests as students in traditional curriculums, Walsh said.

However, three UNL history professors said students entering college today have less knowledge of history than did their counterparts in previous years.

Of late, "students have not been exposed to any kind of structured history except a snippet of U.S.," said Dr. Albin Anderson, UNL professor of Russian and European history.

When they get to the university, "everything is new," he continued.

Anderson expressed dismay at this tendency, saying that professors "are in the habit of assuming a little knowledge. After all, we are teaching at an institution of 'higher learning'."

Can't Discuss Subject

Dr. James Rawley, chairman of the UNL history department and professor of American history, said students' decreased grasp of history is evidenced in their test scores and their inability to discuss history.

Despite the fact that students of 10 or 20 years ago were better-versed in history than today's students, Anderson and Rawley both expressed doubts that history was ever very well taught at the high school level.

According to UNL European history professor, Dr. John Yost, the combination of the topical and inquiry methods of instruction may not be all bad.

Although high school students don't seem to have as good a grasp of the content of history, "they are acquainted with newer techniques for questioning and dealing with historical problems," he said.

Yet, "Method has been emphasized too much and content not enough" at the high school level, Yost continued.

Method Superficial

There has been "an abdication of responsibility at the high school level," Yost said. "Method can be superficial without a knowledge of content.

To a large extent, the effectiveness of any teaching methodology — be it lecture or inquiry, topical or chronological — is dependent on the teacher's grasp of his or her subject matter, Anderson said.

"Any teacher who is well-grounded in the subject matter has to be the best teacher," regardless of the teaching method used.

Training Weak

"Many (high school history teachers) don't have sound training in history," said Rawley, who would like to see more hours in history required of social studies teachers.

Then "there's the proverbial coach" for whom teaching history is "something he was assigned to do," Rawley continued. "That's the death of history."

The concern that professional historians express over the alleged "crisis" in their discipline is deeply felt.

Loss Of Memory

If history, per se, loses out to the other social sciences, if students in this country lose touch with the past, "It would be like a man losing his memory," Rawley said.

A person or a society can't adequately make decisions without knowing what has gone before, he continued.

Should we, as a country, lose our sense of past as a result of educational shortcomings, "It will contribute even further to Americans' losing their bearings," Anderson said.

Fewer UNL Students Pick History

For whatever reason, students' disillusionment with history has been reflected in course enrollment statistics at colleges across the country.

According to University of Nebraska-Lincoln history department co-chairman Dr. John Yost, recent student interest in history peaked at UNL in 1969, when student hours in history for the fall semester reached 9,377.

After that, a decline set in, with enrollment dipping to a low of 6,957 student hours during the first semester of the 1973-74 school year.

However, since that time, enrollment has begun to climb upward.

This fall, student semester hours in history approached the 8,000 mark, Yost said.

The introduction of a new history curriculum during the 1974-75 school year may account for part of that upward trend, he explained.

Curriculum changes included shifting more manpower to undergraduate courses; eliminating prerequisites for all history courses; and adding a number of topically oriented classes (including women's, urban, military, religious history and the history of sports).

SIR LUKE ..175 pounds of Great Dane pet of Schuster family.

Big Dog Butt Of Many Jokes

By NANCY HICKS
Star Staff Writer

Big dog jokes . . . the Max Schuster family has heard them all.

Where'd you get that horse? Why walk him when you can ride him? Who eats the most in your family — the dog? Who's leading who?

The butt of these jokes is not someone you'd want to tangle with in a dark kennel.

Sir Luke of Lancaster, or Marmaluke for fun, is 175 pounds of pure, beautiful, muscular Great Dane.

Luke, of show dog proportions and quality, is a Christmas gift turned family pet with his own mattress in the basement.

The small bag of bones who kept falling up the stairs five Christmases ago now stands 39 inches tall at the shoulder. He also has his proud family well trained. One walk a day on weekdays and two on Sundays — no slip ups.

And the man who does the walking is the only one who voted "no" to the Luke present five years ago.

This is how it all happened:

The Schuster kids — Marcy, Ann and Jim — then teenagers, had lost their beloved German Shepherd, King. All they wanted for Christmas was another dog.

The Schusters searched the German Shepherd community looking for another King. But of course there was not a duplicate pet.

So they decided they'd better look at other breeds. But it had to be big.

The family heard of a Great Dane litter of 12 pups, went to take a look and voted four to one to take Luke home for Christmas.

Schuster cast the only negative vote, primarily because he had seen the tears in his children's eyes when they lost King, and he didn't want to go through that sorrow again.

But the family has always loved dogs, and the size of dogs grew as the children grew, from a wire-haired terrier to King the Shephered, to Luke, the dog who fills up the back seat of daughter Ann's Volkswagen.

And, to answer all those big dog questions:

No, Luke doesn't cost all that much to feed. He eats a 50-pound bag of dry dog food a month plus milk, for a monthly food bill of about $15.

No, the family hasn't tried to bathe him. The Schusters take Luke to the vet for a bath and nail trimming.

Yes, a big dog needs to have training in order to live successfully as a house pet. Son Jim did the training and Father Schuster has gotten a bit lax.

But Luke still obeys the basic commands and will even make his Great Dane ears stand upright. But only when he hears the word, "Walk."

Yes, people do stare, and stop and ask questions and laugh as Luke hangs his head out the Volkswagen window.

The biggest problem is making sure he gets enough exercise. And, oh yes, people who refuse to walk their own dogs on leashes.

Schuster sometimes carries a stick on walks to ward off those pesky little dogs who come to meet Luke. The stick is for the little dogs' own protection.

SIR LUKE..175 pounds of Great Dane pet of Schuster family.

Big Dog Butt Of Many Jokes

By NANCY HICKS
Star Staff Writer

Big dog jokes . . . the Max Schuster family has heard them all.

Where'd you get that horse? Why walk him when you can ride him? Who eats the most in your family — the dog? Who's leading who?

The butt of these jokes is not someone you'd want to tangle with in a dark kennel.

Sir Luke of Lancaster, or Marmaluke for fun, is 175 pounds of pure, beautiful, muscular Great Dane.

Luke, of show dog proportions and quality, is a Christmas gift turned family pet with his own mattress in the basement.

The small bag of bones who kept falling up the stairs five Christmases ago now stands 39 inches tall at the shoulder. He also has his proud family well trained. One walk a day on weekdays and two on Sundays — no slip ups.

And the man who does the walking is the only one who voted "no" to the Luke present five years ago.

This is how it all happened:

The Schuster kids — Marcy, Ann and Jim — then teenagers, had lost their beloved German Shepherd, King. All they wanted for Christmas was another dog.

The Schusters searched the German Shepherd community looking for another King. But of course there was not a duplicate pet.

So they decided they'd better look at other breeds. But it had to be big.

The family heard of a Great Dane litter of 12 pups, went to take a look and voted four to one to take Luke home for Christmas.

Schuster cast the only negative vote, primarily because he had seen the tears in his children's eyes when they lost King, and he didn't want to go through that sorrow again.

But the family has always loved dogs, and the size of dogs grew as the children grew, from a wire-haired terrier to King the Shephered, to Luke, the dog who fills up the back seat of daughter Ann's Volkswagen.

And, to answer all those big dog questions:

No, Luke doesn't cost all that much to feed. He eats a 50-pound bag of dry dog food a month plus milk, for a monthly food bill of about $15.

No, the family hasn't tried to bathe him. The Schusters take Luke to the vet for a bath and nail trimming.

Yes, a big dog needs to have training in order to live successfully as a house pet. Son Jim did the training and Father Schuster has gotten a bit lax.

But Luke still obeys the basic commands and will even make his Great Dane ears stand upright. But only when he hears the word, "Walk."

Yes, people do stare, and stop and ask questions and laugh as Luke hangs his head out the Volkswagen window.

The biggest problem is making sure he gets enough exercise. And, oh yes, people who refuse to walk their own dogs on leashes.

Schuster sometimes carries a stick on walks to ward off those pesky little dogs who come to meet Luke. The stick is for the little dogs' own protection.

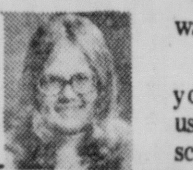
TYLER . . . art honed to a fine edge.

'Caleb' Nearly Flawless Book



books
by Cynthia
Johnson

It sounds presumptuous to say that an author has written a nearly flawless book.

But in the obvious matters of characterization, narrative flow and precision of language, American author Anne Tyler has come as close to that sort of perfection as has any writer currently publishing.

"Searching For Caleb" (Knopf) is Ms. Tyler's sixth book. Those who have read her other works ("If Morning Ever Comes," "The Clock Winder," "Celestial Navigation") will feel at home with her latest effort.

The feather-light touch, the bittersweet tone, the humor which relieves an underlying tension are all characteristic of her earlier works.

But in "Searching for Caleb," Ms. Tyler has honed them to a fine art, proving once and for all that she is an author worthy of recognition.

Ms. Tyler's unsurpassed ability to put her characters to work for her has served her especially well this time around. Through them she defines the self-contained world of a stagnantly proper Baltimore family, a family which surrounds itself with itself, building a physical and psychological fortress against the rest of the world.

Reaching back into the 19th century, Ms. Tyler dredges up the patriarchal figure of Justin Peck — the man who started it all.

But Justin himself is just background material for those who come later. The aunts and uncles and cousins and siblings, all of whom look alike, act alike, think alike, live and die alike.

All that is, except three — Justine; her husband and first cousin, Duncan; and her great-uncle, Caleb.

Each, in turn, leaves the stifling fold of the Peck family. Caleb first in 1912; gone off to become a blues musician in rundown New Orleans bars.

Duncan next, many decades later. And Justine last, following — sometimes leading — Duncan on his eccentric journey through life.

But in reality, Caleb — who dropped from sight for 70 years — was, as Duncan put it, "The one who got away." The only one.

Ms. Tyler does such a superb job of drawing it all together: The past, the present; the search for Caleb; the "dismal houses, weird friends, moving about" that define the lives of those who leave the family.

Most often through the eyes of Justine and Duncan the story comes into focus, fades out, then in again.

Justine — "even to herself she was just a pale glimmer."

Duncan — the rebellious youngster, the collector of useless knowledge, gadgets and schemes. "I've spent eighteen years here growing deader and deader, listening to you skate across the surface," he chides the family. "Can't you say something that means something?"

These two, brought together by a wedding that "was the darnedest business" Reverend Didiccott had even seen. Ah, what a scene that one is: the bridegroom following the minister around before the ceremony insisting that Christianity is a dying religion; then leaving him an envelope full of Confederate money for his pastoral performance.

And in the background, always the ghost of Caleb.

Ms. Tyler has written excellent books before. But this one is, without adoubt, her finest.

Included on the New York Times best-seller list this week are the following books:

1. Curtain, Christie
2. The Greek Treasure, Stone
3. Ragtime, Doctorow
4. The Choirboys, Wambaugh
5. In The Beginning, Potok

Female Chimps Unliberated

Madison, Wis. (UPI) — Chimpanzees can learn sign language and develop a vocabulary of 300 words, but female chimps have yet to learn the meaning of liberation, according to a woman noted for her research on the primates.

Jane Goodall, who has spent the last 15 years studying chimpanzees in Tanzania's Gombe National Park, says female chimps give their babies more attention than mothers of human infants.

The visiting professor of psychiatry and human biology at Stanford University said male chimps appeared chauvinistic. And all this may be important to humans, she told a University of Wisconsin audience.

"Baby primates are conditioned to need a lot of contact with the mother, to be cared for whenever they cry and to have their fears alleviated," she said.

"There really isn't any concept of fatherhood among them," Mrs. Goodall said. "The male chimps seem to revolve around the outside of the tribe, protecting the whole tribe."

"The ways people are raising their children, especially in Western cultures, doesn't correspond to the age-old primate condition," she said.

"I'm not saying the pattern evolved by chimpanzees means that modern mothers are wrong by putting their children to cribs and feeding them on schedule," Mrs. Goodall said.

"What I am saying is we must keep an eye on the way we are raising our children because the kind of childrearing we give them may have an affect on the kinds of adults we produce," she said.

"The chimpanzee is man's closest primate relative, so we can learn something about ourselves by studying the chimp," she said.

Anonymous 'Friend' Probably Creep

DEAR ABBY: I have been married to a fine, devoted professional man for 17 years. We have a beautiful family, and I have never had any reason to doubt his fidelity.

Out of the blue, I received a phone call from a woman who spoke in a refined and cultured voice. She called me by name and said she thought I should know that my husband was having an affair with a young woman in his office!

I was so shocked I could hardly speak, but I managed to ask her who she was.

She said, "A friend," and then she hung up.

Abby, I got so weak I had to sit down. Then I became nauseated.

My first inclination was to believe here. I wondered, "Why would anyone want to make up a story like that?" Then, I tried to recall if there had been any telltale signs — late nights or unexplained absences, but there were none.

When my husband came home, I told him about it. He was as dumbfounded as I and assured me there was nothing to it.

Now I'm asking you. Why would anyone want to make such a call? I love my husband and trust him, but I am . . .

BAFFLED

DEAR BAFFLED: Miserable people try to make others miserable. Your caller was such a person. The word from here is, forget it!

DEAR ABBY: There are four of us married "girls" who have lunch together once a week, and today one of us presented a problem so unusual that only you could answer for us.

She has known this local undertaker for over 25 years, and they have always had a lot of laughs at parties and enjoyed one another's company.

Her question was, should she have her body sent to him when she passes away, and let him see her body (now that it's in its "older" state), or should she leave instructions to give her business to one of his competitors? (She's still a cute cookie in our book, even if she is over 65.)

FOUR IN FLORIDA

DEAR FOUR: What a ghoulish topic for a girlish lunch! I'm sorry to let "cute cookie" down prematurely, but only she can answer that question.

DEAR ABBY: It is quite common for friends to take pictures of their children from their wallets and show them off.

I usually say, "He (or she) is very nice-looking," or, "He (or she) favors you," whichever the case may be.

What I'd like to know is what is the proper comment to make if the child is obviously very homely?

Recently my boss showed me a picture of his teenage daughter, and the poor thing was an adolescent mess. Cross-eyed, stringy hair, big nose and bad complexion. Also, she didn't favor him. I couldn't force myself to use either of the two comments I usually make because it would have been lying. And had I lied, I'm sure my insincerity would have been obvious.

What is an appropriate remark to make under these circumstances? A person has to say something.

SPEECHLESS

DEAR SPEECHLESS: You can always say (without lying), "My, how proud you must be!"

DEAR ABBY: You told T.L. who had given his girl friend an inexpensive wristwatch for her birthday that gifts of jewelry (at any price) were too "intimate" for 14-year-olds.

I object to your applying the prudish standards of your generation to the youth of today.

Just because T.L. gave his girl friend a watch doesn't mean it's time for bed.

FUMING IN FLORIDA

DEAR FUMING: Okay. And I guess it's time for me to reconsider.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "SUCCESSFUL BUT TALKED ABOUT IN BEVERLY HILLS!": That's the price of fame. If you want a place in the sun you've got to put up with a few bad blisters.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Opening lead - queen of hearts.

Some contracts simply can't be made by ordinary means and declarer must utilize an unusual method of play to be successful. Here is such a case, and if you'd like to take a shot at trying to make six spades, even looking at all four hands, you're welcome to the job.

Declarer wins the heart lead with the king and plays the A-K of trumps, being careful to follow suit with dummy's 8-7. Declarer then cashes the ace of diamonds, ace of hearts and A-K of clubs, and puts West on lead by playing his three of trumps to West's six and dummy's deuce to produce this position:

West is forced to return a heart, dummy and East discarding a diamond as declarer ruffs the return with the queen.

South now plays the ten of spades to dummy's jack, East discarding the jack of clubs on the trick. When declarer then continues with the nine of spades, East finds he has no convenient discard.

If he discards the queen of clubs, South's seven becomes a trick; if he discards the jack of diamonds, South's K-7 of diamonds both become tricks.

The trump trick that declarer so generously hands West at trick eight yields him two tricks in exchange.

Wolf Pups Help Researchers

Milwaukee (AP) — Wolf pups are helping medical researchers understand the problem of eye cataracts in humans.

The head of a research team at the Medical College of Wisconsin, Dr. Henry F. Edelhauser, said studying the development of the eye disease in baby wolves may lead to a better understanding of the development, and perhaps prevention, of human cataracts.

Three million Americans have cataracts, a cloudy growth over the lens of the eye, and an estimated 400,000 cataracts were removed surgically last year.

Edelhauser, a professor of physiology and ophthalmology, and a colleague, Dr. Frederick H. Reeser, an eye pathologist, started studying wolf pups about three years ago.

The pups were fed on an artificial formula, which also is fed to baby lions, tigers and other animals nursing in zoos.

It was this formula, the researchers determined, which led to development of cataracts because it is deficient in protein.

Comparison of the formula and wolf mother's milk showed that the natural milk had twice as much protein, Edelhauser said.

To Your Good Health:

Excess Iron In Blood Cause Of Bad Taste

By George C. Thosteson, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I hope you will be kind enough to help me. I am 68 years old and I am losing weight. I weigh 109 pounds and I have been in the hospital for tests. The doctors said I have too much iron in my blood, so I have to go to have a pint of blood removed each week.

The reason I went to the doctor in the first place was because I have such a nasty taste in my mouth, like iron, and I can't take food. After losing six pints of blood I still have the nasty taste. I don't know what to do. — Mrs. A.P.

Your only course of action is to continue with this program. And it will take more than six venesection visits before any effect will be noted.

You probably lost weight because food became distasteful to you. Such taste phenomena are common in problems such as yours.

Try to eat high caloric meals. They need not be large ones. Have a snack between meals and at bedtime. Malted milk, ice cream or a pastry would be fine.

Once your blood iron level is brought into proper balance, your doctor will prescribe a program to keep it that way.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I read your column regularly and I have never seen my problem discussed. I have eosinophilic granuloma. I have been told there is not much written on this subject. Can you give me some information about it? It means a lot to me and to my peace of mind. — P.H.

It does have a rather ominous ring. However, it is a benign tumor on the bone which contains a particular type of cellular (granular) tissue — in this instance eosinophils, a type of white blood cells. The result is a disturbance of the bone locally and pain. There may be one or several areas of involvement. In some cases these lumps are accessible and can be curetted (reamed out).

The condition is not considered particularly serious as far as bone tumors generally are concerned. But one must guard against fractures, which can occur, especially in long bones.

It is not a common disorder, but is found occasionally in young persons, especially males.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I had a mastectomy on my left breast, and now my left arm and hand are swollen to nearly three times the size of my right arm and hand. My doctor told me nothing can be done on account of enlarged glands. It is quite painful. I would appreciate your opinion. — Mrs. H.K.

This happens occasionally after extensive mastectomy. It is usually due to interrupted lymph flow caused by scar formation rather than from enlarged glands. I am sure this is what your doctor meant when he explained it to you.

Certain exercises and other physical therapy are available to alleviate the swelling. Sometimes long elastic sleeves are used for the swollen limb.

You should, first of all, contact the physical therapy department of your local hospital or rehabilitation center. Also, the American Cancer Society will have information on its "Reach for Recovery" program, which is specifically designed for such post-mastectomy complications. Contact a local unit of the ACS for this.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Are canned fruits considered cooked fruit? I am supposed to eat cooked fruit in my diet, and I've been told that the canned fruits are not cooked. Is this so? — Mrs. L.S.

Canned fruits are heated at some time in the processing, if only for pasteurization, and so are considered cooked.

HEALTH TIP

FROM THE NEBRASKA MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

Thousands of cases of tuberculosis still occur each year.

For each individual suffering with this contagious disease, it is still a problem, reports the Nebraska Medical Association.

While young adults used to be the main victims, it is older persons, particularly older men, who develop tuberculosis now. Locating these persons so they may receive treatment is a community health problem. Persons involved in dusty occupations and jail or skid-row populations have a higher incidence. Persons with chronic cough and fever are suspect. Chest x-rays and tuberculin tests can help determine the presence of the disease. Today's drugs and treatment techniques help arrest and cure the disease.

The Nebraska Medical Association reports that the greatest problem is identifying the tuberculosis patient. Too many people feel the disease has been eradicated because it is no longer a primary cause of death.

'Deserving' Bureaucrats Receive Recognition

Too often, bureaucrats say, they don't get the recognition they deserve.

Star reporters think their time has come.

And, as Lincolnites pause to reflect on the events of 1975, The Star hereby lists the winners (???) in the first, annual, local governmental awards contest.

The Brotherhood of the Year Award goes to the Lancaster County Board and other county elected officials for their year-long failure to achieve better cooperation.

Sikyta Fearless

The Evil Knievel-Living Dangerously Award goes to City Councilman Bob Sikyta who harangued against college professors, college wives and League of Women Voters as former Leaguers and college wives Mayor Helen Boosalis and Councilwoman Sue Bailey looked on.

The Law and Order Award was a tie: The YMCA for selling Christmas trees without a license at 60th and South; and Commissioner Bob Colin and County Assessor Fritz Meyer who became extremely familiar with the state car sales tax laws.

The Hindenburg Award goes to the Public Works Department for its ill-fated plans to widen tree-lined 48th and Holdrege streets.

Awards Committee

(EDITOR'S NOTE: City and county government reporters Lynn Zerschling and Nancy Hicks, unhinged by the season and a year of local government stories, decided to start the new year off on the wrong foot by giving awards to some people and certain groups. Unhappy recipients (will there be any other kind?) should note that both reporters will be back at work Friday, in the City-County Building media room, sometimes known as the doghouse.)

The Tortoise Award goes to local officials for the Comprehensive Plan.

Centrum A Dream?

The Impossible Dream Award goes to the Centrum, that long talked about parking garage and retail complex proposed for downtown Lincoln.

The Interior Design Award goes to Mrs. Boosalis for turning her office into a greenhouse jungle of potted plants, which are smartly offset with fire orange cushions and wood-stained bookshelves.

The Millard Fillmore Award goes to the Lincoln Bicentennial Committee. For an explanation of this award, read Fillmore's life story.

The Elmer Fudd Award goes to County Atty. Ron Lahners who didn't always get it together in '75.

Who Has Right Of Way

The Odd Couple Award goes to Planning Director Doug Brogden and County Engineer Marv Nuernberger for their year-long tussle over county road right-of-way widths.

The Throne Syndrome Award goes to the City Council who spent hours debating what kind of new chairs to buy for the council chambers and deciding how to get rid of the old ones.

The P.T. Barnum Award goes to former Lincoln Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf, who, as director of Omaha's Big Green lottery wants to expand his operations all over the state, because "the people want it."

Big Bomb

The Big Bomb Award goes to the Lincoln Electric System staff and board for their repeated, but futile, attempts to become part-owners in a nuclear power plant.

The Moving Target Award goes to the Lincoln Police Department for keeping the faith in the face of adversity.

The You're All Wet Award goes to the Lincoln Water System for hiking rates to a new, all-time high.

The Shock of the Year Award goes to the Lincoln Electric System (electric . . . shock . . . get it?) for its rate hike.

The Unquenchable Thirst Award goes to the City Council for its repeated attempts to revamp the city's liquor license quota system.

Up The Staff

The Propagation of the Year Award goes to the County Board, which first doubled, then tripled its staff during 1975.

The Whatever Happened to Award goes to local officials' review of the police department's and sheriff's procedures, a review officials agreed to undertake following the shooting death of a black man.

The Muddling Through Award goes to all the bureaucrats who show up for work every day in spite of pesky newspaper reporters.

Medicare Premiums Raise 50¢ In July to $7.20

Washington (UPI) — President Ford has signed legislation to increase Medicare premiums by 50 cents a month beginning in July for 24.4 million elderly and disabled persons, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare said Wednesday.

Ford signed a series of Medicare amendments which were overwhelmingly approved by Congress and sent to the White House just before lawmakers adjourned Dec. 19 for the holidays.

One of the amendments corrects a technical error in previous law that prevented Medicare premiums from being increased annually in accordance with congressional intent, said Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., House floor manager for the legislative package.

The effect will be to increase the premium from the present $6.70 a month to $7.20. The monthly premium was last increased from $6.30 in July 1974.

In announcing the bicentennial year premium increase, HEW Secretary David Mathews said he is prevented by the new law from raising the premium even more to make it "actuarially adequate."

Mathews said the premium paid by 22.2 million elderly and 2.2 million disabled Medicare beneficiaries should be raised to $10.70 a month to keep up with physician fee increases, increased numbers of Medicare services, a trend toward more expensive services and increased cost and use of hospital outpatient services.

Medicare provides hospital and optional doctor bill insurance for persons 65 years and older or disabled persons of all ages meeting certain requirements. The Part B doctor bill coverage helps pay for physicians' services and certain other medical expenses in and out of hospitals.

The "actuarially adequate" premium of $10.70 a month would represent a 50% share of the costs of medical care for aged Medicare participants, HEW said. Because the doctor bill insurance is financed from general revenues, taxpayers will finance the amount not paid by participants.

Mathews said he is prevented by the newly signed legislation from boosting the premium more than 8%. The law requires that any increase in the premium next July must be limited to the percentage by which Social Security cash benefits increased in 1975.

The cost of doctor bill insurance will increase by $1 billion next year from about $4.7 billion during the year that ends June 30.

Other provisions in the legislation affect nursing home safety standards and peer review organizations evaluating doctor performance, and allow waiver from certain Medicare requirements for about 75 rural hospitals.

It is not a common disorder, but is found occasionally in young persons, especially males.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I had a mastectomy on my left breast, and now my left arm and hand are swollen to nearly three times the size of my right arm and hand. My doctor told me nothing can be done on account of enlarged glands. It is quite painful. I would appreciate your opinion. — Mrs. H.K.

This happens occasionally after extensive mastectomy. It is usually due to interrupted lymph flow caused by scar formation rather than from enlarged glands. I am sure this is what your doctor meant when he explained it to you.

Certain exercises and other physical therapy are available to alleviate the swelling. Sometimes long elastic sleeves are used for the swollen limb.

You should, first of all, contact the physical therapy department of your local hospital or rehabilitation center. Also, the American Cancer Society will have information on its "Reach for Recovery" program, which is specifically designed for such post-mastectomy complications. Contact a local unit of the ACS for this.

Dear Dr. Thesteson: Are canned fruits considered cooked fruit? I am supposed to eat cooked fruit in my diet, and I've been told that the canned fruits are not cooked. Is this so? — Mrs. L.S.

Canned fruits are heated at some time in the processing, if only for pasteurization, and so are considered cooked.

HEALTH TIP

FROM THE NEBRASKA MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

Thousands of cases of tuberculosis still occur each year.

For each individual suffering with this contagious disease, it is still a problem, reports the Nebraska Medical Association.

While young adults used to be the main victims, it is older persons, particularly older men, who develop tuberculosis now. Locating these persons so they may receive treatment is a community health problem. Persons involved in dusty occupations and jail or skid-row populations have a higher incidence. Persons with chronic cough and fever are suspect. Chest x-rays and tuberculin tests can help determine the presence of the disease. Today's drugs and treatment techniques help arrest and cure the disease.

The Nebraska Medical Association reports that the greatest problem is identifying the tuberculosis patient. Too many people feel the disease has been eradicated because it is no longer a primary cause of death.

Farm Prices Rise 1%

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department said Wednesday that prices farmers get for raw agricultural products rose one per cent from Nov. 15 to Dec. 15 and averaged 5 per cent higher than at the close of 1974.

The department's Crop Reporting Board said that higher prices for cattle, eggs, milk and most commercial vegetables contributed to the increase during the month. Lower prices for hogs, wheat and broilers partially offset the gain.

Farm prices are valuable economic indicators but they often vary widely from month to month and do not necessarily signal change in prices of food or other consumer items which originate on the nations's farms.

Meanwhile, prices that farmers pay out to meet expenses rose one-half of one per cent from Nov. 15 to Dec. 15 and averaged six per cent above a year earlier.

Officials said that farm prices over-all in 1975 — an average of the 12 months — were 81 per cent above a 1967 base used as a standard. In 1974, the 12-month average was up a record of 84 per cent.

The increase from Nov. 15 to Dec. 15 was the first monthly gain in the price index since last September when it rose 3 per cent. It dropped one-half of one per cent in October and another four per cent in November.

Middleman costs for getting farm products from farms and processing them for retail shelves — including transportation, labor, energy and other expenses — have risen consistently in recent years and have a large impact on consumer prices for many items. For example, middleman expenses account for about 60 cents of each $1 shoppers spend for food originating on U.S. farms.

Over a longer period, however, farm prices do have an important bearing on what consumers pay. For example, record grain harvests in 1975 have helped dampen food price increases. The department says that the average gain in 1975 retail food prices may be 8 or 9 per cent, compared with 14.5 per cent increases in each of the two previous years.

The outlook for 1976 food prices is hazy, but department experts say that increases may run at an annual rate of 4 to 5 per cent through the first six months. After that, much depends on 1976 harvests, the general economy and how farmers respond with livestock production.

The report Wednesday said that prices of meat animals as a group on Dec. 15 rose 1 per cent during the month and averaged 24 per cent above Dec. 15, 1974.

Torture Story Puts Strain OnDiplomacy

LONDON (AP) — Dr. Sheila Cassidy, a British physician whose report of torture in a Chilean prison set off a diplomatic and political controversy, charged Wednesday that Chile today is a "dictatorship with organized, widespread killing and torture."

"I hope the immense publicity this case has had will draw the attention of the world to the suffering of the people of Chile," the 37-year-old doctor told a news conference.

"I felt compassion for the people who tortured me," she said. "They are sick."

Dr. Cassidy met newsmen in her cottage in southwest England after a political storm blew up over the Labor government's recall of the British ambassador to Chile. Conservatives called the action too hasty and not based on medical evidence of torture. Left-wing Laborites called for tougher reprisals against the Chilean junta.

Dr. Cassidy arrived Tuesday from Chile, which expelled her Monday after nearly two months in detention. A worker in a Roman Catholic mission hospital, she was arrested Nov. 1 after treating a left-wing guerrilla leader who had been wounded in a shootout with authorities in Santiago, Chile's capital.

The Chilean junta, which toppled Marxist President Salvador Allende in 1973, has denied Dr. Cassidy was tortured or mistreated. Chile's ambassador in London, Rear Adm. Kaare Olsen, claimed Wednesday she signed a statement to that effect on her release.

'Deserving' Bureaucrats Receive Recognition

Too often, bureaucrats say, they don't get the recognition they deserve.

Star reporters think their time has come.

And, as Lincolnites pause to reflect on the events of 1975, The Star hereby lists the winners (???) in the first, annual, local governmental awards contest.

The Brotherhood of the Year Award goes to the Lancaster County Board and other county elected officials for their year-long failure to achieve better cooperation.

Sikyta Fearless

The Evil Knievel-Living Dangerously Award goes to City Councilman Bob Sikyta who harangued against college professors, college wives and League of Women Voters as former Leaguers and college wives Mayor Helen Boosalis and Councilwoman Sue Bailey looked on.

The Law and Order Award was a tie: The YMCA for selling Christmas trees without a license at 60th and South; and Commissioner Bob Colin and County Assessor Fritz Meyer who became extremely familiar with the state car sales tax laws.

The Hindenburg Award goes to the Public Works Department for its ill-fated plans to widen tree-lined 48th and Holdrege streets.

The Tortoise Award goes to local officials for the Comprehensive Plan.

Centrum A Dream?

The Impossible Dream Award goes to the Centrum, that long talked about parking garage and retail complex proposed for downtown Lincoln.

The Interior Design Award goes to Mrs. Boosalis for turning her office into a greenhouse jungle of potted plants, which are smartly offset with fire orange cushions and wood-stained bookshelves.

Awards Committee

(EDITOR'S NOTE: City and county government reporters Lynn Zerschling and Nancy Hicks, unhinged by the season and a year of local government stories, decided to start the new year off on the wrong foot by giving awards to some people and certain groups. Unhappy recipients (will there be any other kind?) should note that both reporters will be back at work Friday, in the City-County Building media room, sometimes known as the doghouse.)

The Millard Fillmore Award goes to the Lincoln Bicentennial Committee. For an explanation of this award, read Fillmore's life story.

The Elmer Fudd Award goes to County Atty. Ron Lahners who didn't always get it together in '75.

Who Has Right Of Way

The Odd Couple Award goes to Planning Director Doug Brogden and County Engineer Marv Nuernberger for their year-long tussle over county road right-of-way widths.

The Throne Syndrome Award goes to the City Council who spent hours debating what kind of new chairs to buy for the council chambers and deciding how to get rid of the old ones.

The P.T. Barnum Award goes to former Lincoln Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf, who, as director of Omaha's Big Green lottery wants to expand his operations all over the state, because "the people want it."

Big Bomb

The Big Bomb Award goes to the Lincoln Electric System staff and board for their repeated, but futile, attempts to become part-owners in a nuclear power plant.

The Moving Target Award goes to the Lincoln Police Department for keeping the faith in the face of adversity.

The You're All Wet Award goes to the Lincoln Water System for hiking rates to a new, all-time high.

The Shock of the Year Award goes to the Lincoln Electric System (electric . . . shock . . . get it?) for its rate hike.

The Unquenchable Thirst Award goes to the City Council for its repeated attempts to revamp the city's liquor license quota system.

Up The Staff

The Propagation of the Year Award goes to the County Board, which first doubled, then tripled its staff during 1975.

The Whatever Happened to Award goes to local officials' review of the police department's and sheriff's procedures, a review officials agreed to undertake following the shooting death of a black man.

The Muddling Through Award goes to all the bureaucrats who show up for work every day in spite of pesky newspaper reporters.

Medicare Premiums Raise 50¢ In July to $7.20

Washington (UPI) — President Ford has signed legislation to increase Medicare premiums by 50 cents a month beginning in July for 24.4 million elderly and disabled persons, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare said Wednesday.

Ford signed a series of Medicare amendments which were overwhelmingly approved by Congress and sent to the White House just before lawmakers adjourned Dec. 19 for the holidays.

One of the amendments corrects a technical error in previous law that prevented Medicare premiums from being increased annually in accordance with congressional intent, said Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., House floor manager for the legislative package.

The effect will be to increase the premium from the present $6.70 a month to $7.20. The monthly premium was last increased from $6.30 in July 1974.

In announcing the bicentennial year premium increase, HEW Secretary David Mathews said he is prevented by the new law from raising the premium even more to make it "actuarially adequate."

Mathews said the premium paid by 22.2 million elderly and 2.2 million disabled Medicare beneficiaries should be raised to $10.70 a month to keep up with physician fee increases, increased numbers of Medicare services, a trend toward more expensive services and increased cost and use of hospital outpatient services.

Medicare provides hospital and optional doctor bill insurance for persons 65 years and older or disabled persons of all ages meeting certain requirements. The Part B doctor bill coverage helps pay for physicians' services and certain other medical expenses in and out of hospitals.

The "actuarially adequate" premium of $10.70 a month would represent a 50% share of the costs of medical care for aged Medicare participants, HEW said. Because the doctor bill insurance is financed from general revenues, taxpayers will finance the amount not paid by participants.

Mathews said he is prevented by the newly signed legislation from boosting the premium more than 8%. The law requires that any increase in the premium next July must be limited to the percentage by which Social Security cash benefits increased in 1975.

The cost of doctor bill insurance will increase by $1 billion next year from about $4.7 billion during the year that ends June 30.

Other provisions in the legislation affect nursing home safety standards and peer review organizations evaluating doctor performance, and allow waiver from certain Medicare requirements for about 75 rural hospitals.

Poll Shows Economic Fears Are Dominating Public's Thinking

By LOUIS HARRIS

As Americans anticipate the year ahead, an 85% majority report that the economy is not only their main worry, but it is the one problem they would like to see the person who is elected president in 1976 do something about. Within the 85% who express concern over the economy, 55% are worried about inflation, with a substantial 30% singling out unemployment and job worries.

If these economic fears continue to dominate the thinking of the public in this election year, the Democrats would appear to have a real edge over the Republicans. They would not only gain as the "out" party, but also as the traditional beneficiary of hard times. There is little doubt that public concern over joblessness will aid the Democrats materially.

However, the inflation issue has as much potential for helping the Republicans as it has for helping the Democrats. In second place on the public's roster of concerns are "taxes and government spending," volunteered as a top priority by 33%. Excessive federal spending, of course, is the main campaign target of both President Ford and former Gov. Ronald Reagan. The President has vetoed a whole spate of bills passed by the Democratic Congress precisely on the grounds that he is trying to cut spending. Reagan has announced that he can cut the federal budget by $70 billion. A substantial 69% of the public believes that government spending is a major cause of inflation.

Whatever advantage Republicans might have on the inflation issue could be blunted by the fact that they have been in the White House and presumably running the country over the past seven years. If the public thinks that inflation has not been handled well, the "in" party may get the blame.

Louis Harris
People Want Action

There have been some other significant shifts in public worries over the past year, as indicated in a nationwide Harris Survey of a cross section of 1,475 adults:

—The issue of integrity in government ranks in third place, with 17% of the people volunteering that it is a most important issue. However, this is down from 22% a year ago and is far below the 43% who singled it out as an issue in 1973 when Watergate was reaching fever pitch. Nonetheless, it would be a mistake to feel that the Watergate episode has passed from the voter's minds. Though President Ford has personally come to symbolize integrity to a majority in the country, 58% continue to criticize him for the pardon of former President Nixon. On balance, the integrity issue will probably help the Democrats in 1976.

—The issue of crime and law and order was volunteered by 17% of the public as a key issue for 1976. This is roughly the same as over the past four years. In the past, it has somewhat helped the Republicans, but the public has become increasingly skeptical that any politician really will make the streets safer or will be capable of reducing the crime rate in the country, particularly at the federal level.

—Foreign policy is volunteered by no more than 5% as one of the most important issues. This is well below the 29% who expressed concern over foreign affairs back in 1972 when this country was still embroiled in Vietnam. However, it is important to point out that foreign policy has a way of being decisive in presidential elections.

In 1960, President Kennedy made much of the purported decline in American prestige and in what he called "the missile gap." In 1964, President Johnson exploited public fears about having Senator Goldwater in the White House, where he would control the atomic bomb. In 1968, lack of confidence in Johnson on Vietnam probably cost Hubert Humphrey the presidency.

Finally, in 1972, President Nixon used his breakthroughs in Russia and China as the main peg of his successful re-election bid. In recent times, Republicans have had a distinct advantage in foreign policy issues, and they will have to make this issue work for them again to emerge victorious next November.

But the economic issue now dwarfs all others, and it will likely be the center of debate in the upcoming highly political months.

Farm Prices Rise 1%

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department said Wednesday that prices farmers get for raw agricultural products rose one per cent from Nov. 15 to Dec. 15 and averaged 5 per cent higher than at the close of 1974.

The department's Crop Reporting Board said that higher prices for cattle, eggs, milk and most commercial vegetables contributed to the increase during the month. Lower prices for hogs, wheat and broilers partially offset the gain.

Farm prices are valuable economic indicators but they often vary widely from month to month and do not necessarily signal change in prices of food or other consumer items which originate on the nations's farms.

Meanwhile, prices that farmers pay out to meet expenses rose one-half of one per cent from Nov. 15 to Dec. 15 and averaged six per cent above a year earlier.

Officials said that farm prices over-all in 1975 — an average of the 12 months — were 81 per cent above a 1967 base used as a standard. In 1974, the 12-month average was up a record of 84 per cent.

The increase from Nov. 15 to Dec. 15 was the first monthly gain in the price index since last September when it rose 3 per cent. It dropped one-half of one per cent in October and another four per cent in November.

Middleman costs for getting farm products from farms and processing them for retail shelves — including transportation, labor, energy and other expenses — have risen consistently in recent years and have a large impact on consumer prices for many items. For example, middleman expenses account for about 60 cents of each $1 shoppers spend for food originating on U.S. farms.

Over a longer period, however, farm prices do have an importa ' bearing on what consumers pay. For example, record grain harvests in 1975 have helped dampen food price increases. The department says that the average gain in 1975 retail food prices may be 8 or 9 per cent, compared with 14.5 per cent increases in each of the two previous years.

The outlook for 1976 food prices is hazy, but department experts say that increases may run at an annual rate of 4 to 5 per cent through the first six months. After that, much depends on 1976 harvests, the general economy and how farmers respond with livestock production.

The report Wednesday said that prices of meat animals as a group on Dec. 15 rose 1 per cent during the month and averaged 24 per cent above Dec. 15, 1974.

Torture Story Puts Strain On Diplomacy

LONDON (AP) — Dr. Sheila Cassidy, a British physician whose report of torture in a Chilean prison set off a diplomatic and political controversy, charged Wednesday that Chile today is a "dictatorship with organized, widespread killing and torture."

"I hope the immense publicity this case has had will draw the attention of the world to the suffering of the people of Chile," the 37-year-old doctor told a news conference.

"I felt compassion for the people who tortured me," she said. "They are sick."

Dr. Cassidy met newsmen in her cottage in southwest England after a political storm blew up over the Labor government's recall of the British ambassador to Chile. Conservatives called the action too hasty and not based on medical evidence of torture. Left-wing Laborites called for tougher reprisals against the Chilean junta.

Dr. Cassidy arrived Tuesday from Chile, which expelled her Monday after nearly two months in detention. A worker in a Roman Catholic mission hospital, she was arrested Nov. 1 after treating a left-wing guerrilla leader who had been wounded in a shootout with authorities in Santiago, Chile's capital.

The Chilean junta, which toppled Marxist President Salvador Allende in 1973, has denied Dr. Cassidy was tortured or mistreated. Chile's ambassador in London, Rear Adm. Kaare Olsen, claimed Wednesday she signed a statement to that effect on her release

Poll Shows Economic Fears Are Dominating Public's Thinking

By LOUIS HARRIS

As Americans anticipate the year ahead, an 85% majority report that the economy is not only their main worry, but it is the one problem they would like to see the person who is elected president in 1976 do something about. Within the 85% who express concern over the economy, 55% are worried about inflation, with a substantial 30% singling out unemployment and job worries.

If these economic fears continue to dominate the thinking of the public in this election year, the Democrats would appear to have a real edge over the Republicans. They would not only gain as the "out" party, but also as the traditional beneficiary of hard times. There is little doubt that public concern over joblessness will aid the Democrats materially.

However, the inflation issue has as much potential for helping the Republicans as it has for helping the Democrats. In second place on the public's roster of concerns are "taxes and government spending," volunteered as a top priority by 33%. Excessive federal spending, of course, is the main campaign target of both President Ford and former Gov. Ronald Reagan. The President has vetoed a whole spate of bills passed by the Democratic Congress precisely on the grounds that he is trying to cut spending. Reagan has announced that he can cut the federal budget by $70 billion. A substantial 69% of the public believes that government spending is a major cause of inflation.

Whatever advantage Republicans might have on the inflation issue could be blunted by the fact that they have been in the White House and presumably running the country over the past seven years. If the public thinks that inflation has not been handled well, the "in" party may get the blame.

Louis Harris
People Want Action

There have been some other significant shifts in public worries over the past year, as indicated in a nationwide Harris Survey of a cross section of 1,475 adults:

—The issue of integrity in government ranks in third place, with 17% of the people volunteering that it is a most important issue. However, this is down from 22% a year ago and is far below the 48% who singled it out as an issue in 1973 when Watergate was reaching fever pitch. Nonetheless, it would be a mistake to feel that the Watergate episode has passed from the voter's minds. Though President Ford has personally come to symbolize integrity to a majority in the country, 58% continue to criticize him for the pardon of former President Nixon. On balance, the integrity issue will probably help the Democrats in 1976.

—The issue of crime and law and order was volunteered by 17% of the public as a key issue for 1976. This is roughly the same as over the past four years. In the past, it has somewhat helped the Republicans, but the public has become increasingly skeptical that any politician really will make the streets safer or will be capable of reducing the crime rate in the country, particularly at the federal level.

—Foreign policy is volunteered by no more than 5% as one of the most important issues. This is well below the 29% who expressed concern over foreign affairs back in 1972 when this country was still embroiled in Vietnam. However, it is important to point out that foreign policy has a way of being decisive in presidential elections.

In 1960, President Kennedy made much of the purported decline in American prestige and in what he called "the missile gap." In 1964, President Johnson exploited public fears about having Senator Goldwater in the White House, where he would control the atomic bomb. In 1968, lack of confidence in Johnson on Vietnam probably cost Hubert Humphrey the presidency.

Finally, in 1972, President Nixon used his breakthroughs in Russia and China as the main peg of his successful re-election bid. In recent times, Republicans have had a distinct advantage in foreign policy issues, and they will have to make this issue work for them again to emerge victorious next November.

But the economic issue now dwarfs all others, and it will likely be the center of debate in the upcoming highly political months.

Engineer Urges County Fight Suit

By NANCY HICKS
Star Staff Writer

County Engineer Marv Nuernberger thinks the county should not take the easy way out in a court fight involving the Roca rock quarry.

The engineer has recommended that the county go to trial on the case, filed in November by Schwarck Quarries, Inc.

The suit, filed in Lancaster County District Court against Nuernberger and county commissioners Bruce Hamilton and Jan Gauger, conteds that Nuernberger failed to comply with state bidding laws when he made a July agreement for crushing rock at the county-owned quarry.

The negotiated contract went to Constructors, Inc. of Lincoln at a price of $1.55 per ton of rock crushed.

The suit contends that the $1.55 price was in excess of market value and in excess of what the county would have paid in public bidding.

In an apparent attempt to settle the suit out of court, Nuernberger said he was persuaded to take the bids on the rock quarry crushing job this month.

And the bids, opened last week, were higher than the original negotiated contract — $1.64 per ton for Schwarck Quarries and $2.18 per ton for Constructor's Inc.

For the taxpayer, even the low bid is an increase of almost $4,000 on the 32,000 tons of limestone expected to be crushed.

In a tentative agreement Schwarck Quarries agreed to drop its suit if the low bid was accepted, Nuernberger said.

But Nuernberger is recommending that the County Board reject both bids and take the case to court.

Only then will the county know whether they can continue with the original, lower negotiated price, he said.

And even if the county board accepts the Schwarck bid, Nuernberger said he feels the law suits will not be over. Constructors, Inc., could file a suit seeking the money they lost in moving their equipment into the quarry and then out again.

Neither Gauger nor County Attorney Ron Lahners would comment on the suit or Nuernberger's recommendation.

But the board will discuss the bids at their Tuesday board meeting.

28 Appointed To Women's Commission

Mayor Helen Boosalis announced Wednesday she has appointed 28 persons including five men to the newly created Lincoln-Lancaster Commission on the Status of Women.

The mayor announced last month that Bobbi McGinn, coordinator for the League of Human Dignity, would be chairperson of the organization.

The purpose of the commission is to identify and solve the problems facing women in a myriad of areas including employment and health services.

Those appointed to the commission:

Midge Alfieri, an estimater for Quality First Electrical Corp.; Lucy Buntain, a part-time instructor at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln; Mary Jo Cerny, a pharmacist, Dee Clouse, an agriculture professor at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln; LaBrena Damian, railroad employe; Alice Dittman, president of Cornhusker Bank; Chris Funk, a caseworker at Child Guidance; and Gretchen Gottschaik, a homemaker.

Helen Haggie, Lincoln Journal reporter; Imogene Haukaas, an employe of the State Welfare Dept.; Donna King, a Goodyear employe; Shirley Kuhle, a salesperson for Town & Country Realty; Martha Rebensdorf, an administrative assistant at the Lincoln Chamber of Commerce; Janet Retzlaff, hairdresser; Lynn Roper, a campaign worker for the United Fund; Pat Lahr Smith, Republican National Committeewoman for Nebraska; Edith Thomas-Harvey, staff member of the State Equal Opportunity Office; Betty Warner, a Waverly homemaker; Kappie Weber, a homemaker; Linda Wilson, a homemaker; Joan Wooten, staff member of the Lincoln Action Program; Judy McDowell, executive director of Lincoln Industries; and Mary Jane Humphreys, a student and homemaker.

The men appointed to the commission: Jerry Aspengren, director of the Child Guidance Office; Gar Donnelson, a Lincoln Telephone and Telegraph official; John Tidball, an insurance executive; Jim Suter, state director of the Comprehensive Health Planning Office; and Roger Knight, a United Church of Christ minister.

Sokol Group May Rebuild

Omaha (AP) — The South Omaha Sokol building committee has recommended rebuilding the organization's hall, which burned recently.

The recommendation will be presented to the membership at a meeting Monday night, committee member George Buglewicz said.

Buglewicz said it will cost at least $250,000 to replace the structure.

About $175,000 has been collected in insurance money and some South Omaha businesses have pledged money to help pay for the rebuilding, he said.

Cheapest Was Really Most Expensive

If you poured down shot after shot of vodka last night and were still sober when your friends started prancing around in lampshades, check the label on the bottle.

Vodka is Russian for "little water." But some manufacturers put a lot of water in, as Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Luke, 4640 Bryan Circle, can testify.

Working on the assumption that "the cheapest vodka tastes as good as the most expensive," Mrs. Luke and her mother recently took advantage of a local liquor store's $3.19 a quart offer. Eight bottles worth.

"What does that taste like?" Luke's mother-in-law asked the next day.

"It tastes like watered down vodka," Luke said.

"Good, because I've been drinking martinis and I don't feel anything."

The small print on the label explained things: "Diluted, 40 proof." U.S. government standards require 80 proof for vodka.

The store manager refused to refund their money. "Vodka is vodka," he said. Another liquor store had never heard of diluted vodka: "if you want it diluted, you'll have to do it yourself."

The State Liquor Commission told Mrs. Luke it was powerless as long as the bottle was labeled as diluted vodka. But she did leave with a complaint form to send to the consumer protection division of the attorney general's office.

"I went to buy the cheapest vodka in the store," Mrs. Luke said. "My husband says I came back with the most expensive."

Had the Lukes bought 80 proof vodka, it would have cost from $3.29 to $6 per quart, instead of the $3.19 for the half-strength watered "little water."

Money Supply Dips $1 Billion

Washington (AP) — The size of the nation's money supply fell $1 billion in the week ended Dec. 17, the Federal Reserve Board said.

The money supply, defined as cash in the public hands plus checking account balances, dropped from an average, seasonally adjusted $296.3 billion to $295.3 billion.

In the three months ended Dec. 17, the supply grew at an annual rate of only 1.6%, well below the Fed's long-term target growth rate of 5 to 7.5%.

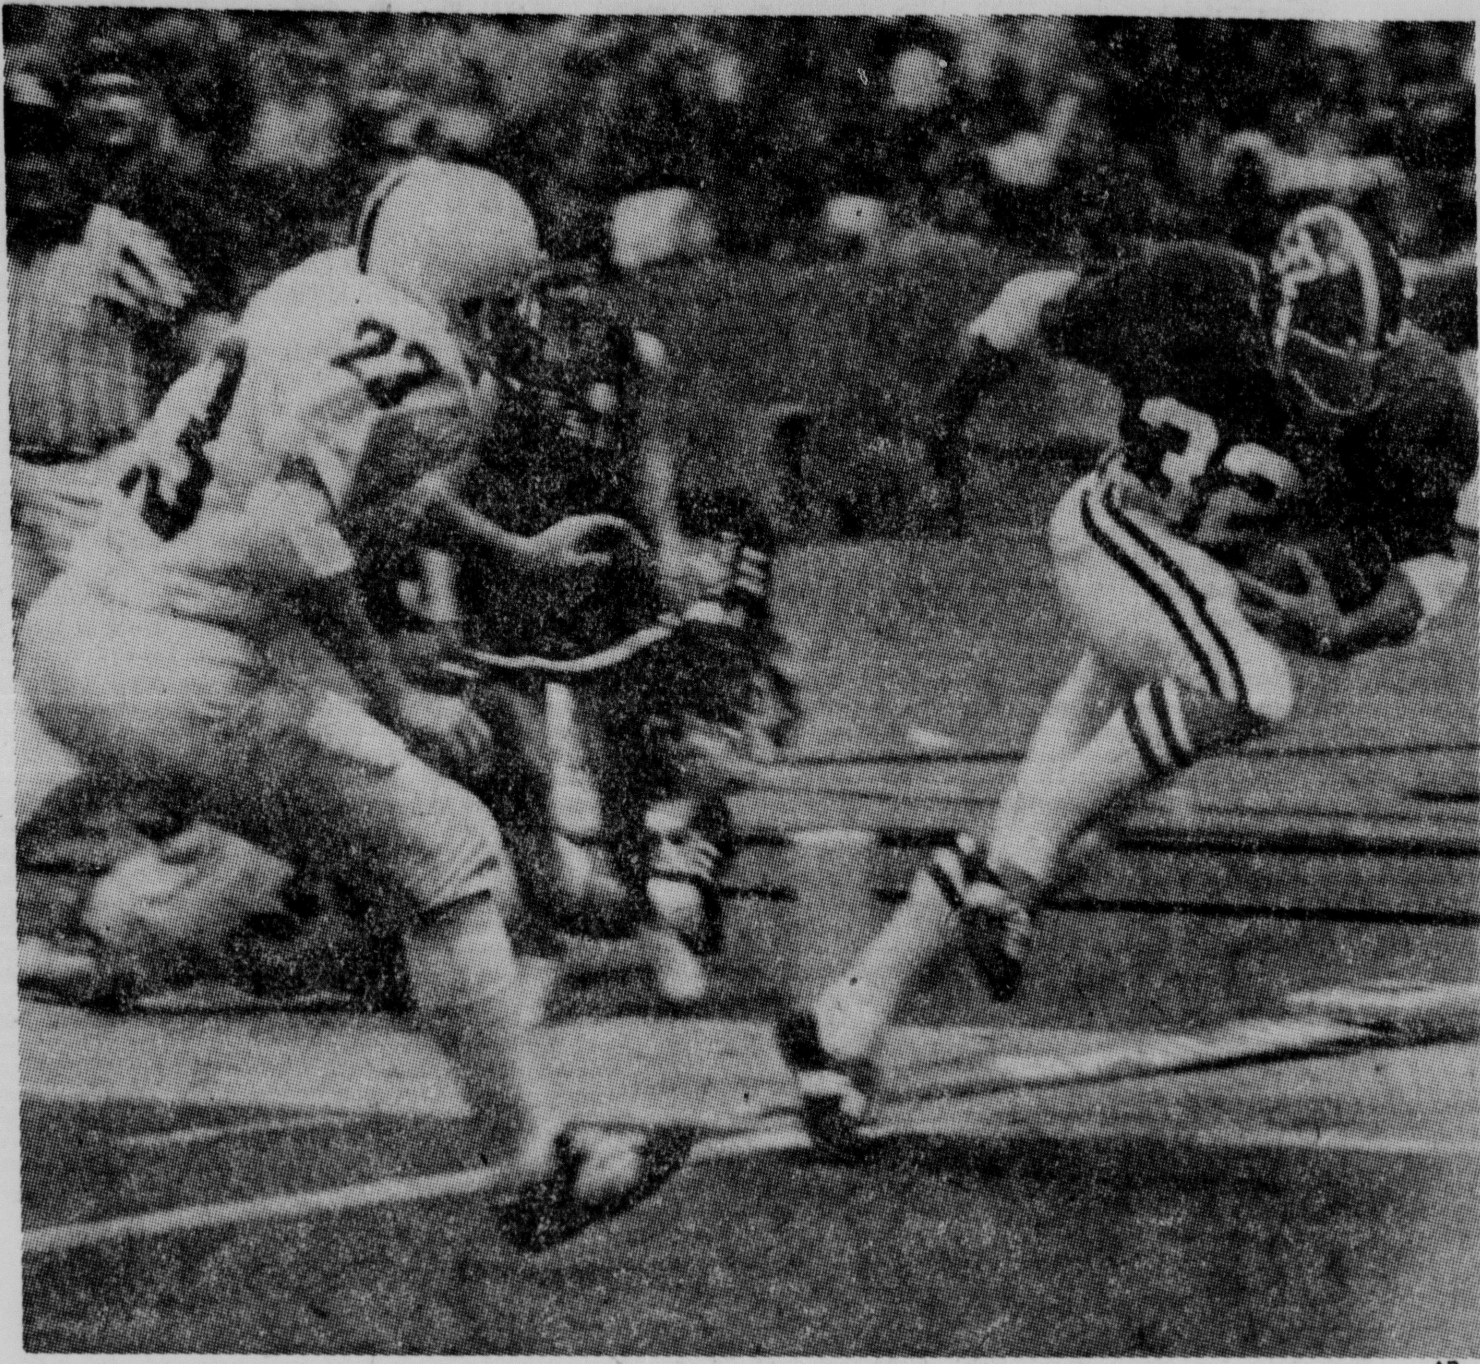
Bear Finally Wins One — Alabama Topples Penn State



AP

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Bear Bryant may have finally discovered the secret of winning a bowl game—leaving his houndstooth hat at home.

The veteran Alabama coach departed from his normal procedure and went hatless as his fourth-ranked Crimson Tide used the pinpoint passing of Richard Todd to trim No. 8-ranked Penn State 13-6 in the Sugar Bowl, ending an eight-year winless drought in postseason competition.

"We were poor dirt farmers at Moro Bottoms, Ark., and Momma taught me never to wear a hat inside a building," Bryant said. "I never forgot."

The hatless Bryant was overjoyed with the triumph in the $163-million Superdome, saying: "The victory was a long time coming and it sure is sweet."

After being accused of handpicking the Nittany Lions as the Alabama foe, Bryant remarked, "Anybody who didn't think Penn State had great football players is an idiot."

Joe Paterno, the Penn State coach who had enjoyed success in bowl competition with a 5-1-1 record going into this game, said: "It was a great football game; it wasn't sloppy. The defense played well on both teams."

And, draped across the facade of the upper deck of the immaculate indoor arena was a hand-written sign that mimicked the bicentennial minutes seen on television.

It said: "Two hundred years ago today, 'Bama won a bowl game. Today, too."

It might have seemed that long to Bryant and Alabama followers.

Todd, who passed for 210 yards, set up two Alabama scores with completions covering 54 and 55 yards as the Crimson Tide won its first bowl victory since a 34-7 triumph over Nebraska in the 1967 Sugar Bowl.

Alabama's 11th straight victory since an opening loss to Missouri came in the first Sugar Bowl game played in the $163-million Louisiana Superdome, a colorful indoor arena that was jammed with a capacity crowd of 75,000.

Penn State, a 13-point underdog, had shut off Alabama's vaunted ground attack, but could not contain Todd, who completed 10 of 12 passes.

Alabama had a 3-0 lead after a bruising defensive battle for the first 30 minutes. Danny Ridgeway's 25-yard field goal was set up by Todd's 54-yard pass to Joe Dale Harris, who got most of the yardage himself.

Penn State, ending its season at 9-3, created little offense until the second half when the Lions moved 44 yards to set up a 42-yard field goal by Chris Bahr, that tied the game late in the third quarter.

But Todd, a unanimous pick as most valuable player in the game, put Alabama ahead again less than three minutes later. He combined with Ozzie Newsome on a 55-yard pass to the Penn State 11. Todd saved the ball on the next play when he recovered Calvin Culliver's fumble on the 14.

On the ensuing play, Mike Stock swept left end for the touchdown and Alabama led 10-3 with 1:42 left in the quarter.

Substitute running back Steve Geise sprinted 29 yards to midfield for Penn State, where All-American Leroy Cook made a touchdown-saving tackle, but the run started a Lion drive that resulted in Bahr's second field goal, a 37-yarder that trimmed the Tide lead to 10-6 four minutes into the final quarter.

It was then that Alabama's vaunted ground attack finally began to move, maintaining possession for eight minutes on a drive to the Penn State eight. Ridgeway closed out the scoring moments later on a 28-yard field goal with 3:19 remaining, ending Alabama's long winless string in bowl competition.

Todd was among 10 Alabama starters slapped on the wrist by Coach Bear Bryant for violating curfew in this fun city last Saturday night.

Despite the curfew violation, Bryant had said his team's preparation for this game was the best in 25 years, since his Kentucky team upset unbeaten Oklahoma 13-7 in the 1951 Sugar Bowl game.

The narrow victory, however, did little to enhance Alabama's slim hopes of capturing a fourth national championship since Bryant had been accused of hand-picking Penn State as his Sugar Bowl foe.

NU Fans To See Another Nissen

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

Nebraska basketball fans will watch another Nissen Saturday night at the NU Coliseum.

This time, it's Rick Nissen, a 6-0 senior from Miller, S.D. He's one of the mainstays for coach Jack Doyle whose Coyotes will meet Nebraska in a 7:35 p.m. match.

Rick's older brother, Al, was a three-year Nebraska standout for coach Joe Cipriano. He started all 26 games his senior year (1972-72) and averaged 12 points a game. Al, as a graduate assistant at NU in 1973, coached the junior varsity.

Rick has started all 76 games in the three seasons prior to this season and has earned the following honors — a North Central Conference team berth, an NCC Holiday Tournament team spot and posts on the all-NCC academic squad and all-American Conference team.

He holds South Dakota records for most assists in one season (178 last year) and career assists (434). He is just the 11th Coyote to score 1,000 career points.

Last season was Nissen's best as a Coyote. He scored 15.2 points a game and averaged 4.2 rebounds as a guard.

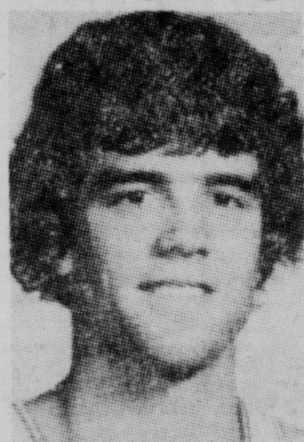
So that's one of the major problems confronting Nebraska in Nissen's second-to-last nonconference game. The final nonconference game will be next Tuesday night when the South Carolina Gamecocks invade the NU Coliseum.

Another standout for the Coyotes is 6-8 senior Joe Mueting, who played high school basketball at Norfolk Catholic.

Through his first six games this season, the 210-pound senior has paced the Coyotes in scoring with a 22-point average and in rebounding with 12.2 Nissen is second in scoring with a 19.2 mark.

Ron Pedersen, a 6-3 junior from Rock Valley, Iowa, is the third in Coyote scoring with a 14.8 average.

The Coyotes have captured five of nine contests, including a 79-75 upset of Iowa State at Ames. Other wins were over Wartburg (91-65), Westmar (112-87), South Dakota Tech (106-72) and Morningside (75-73).



Rick Nissen
Coyote Standout

Their losses were to Tulane University (87-81), South Alabama (86-79) and North Dakota State (90-82) and to South Dakota State (87-67) in the NCC Holiday Tournament at Sioux Falls.

This will be the 33rd meeting in the series that the Huskers lead 27-5. The last time the two schools met was in 1967 when the Huskers defeated South Dakota, 93-61, in Lincoln.

The Coyotes finished fifth in the NCC last season with a 6-8 record. They were 11-14 overall.

COYOTE NOTES — Norman Behring, a native of Grand Island, is a 6-10 junior center. He played junior college basketball at Northeast Technical Community College in Norfolk, where he was named to the Nebraska JC all-conference squad . . . Nissen's grade average last spring was 3.60 in pre-med. Brother Al, formerly a pre-med major at Nebraska, now is a medical student at the University of Nebraska Medical Center in Omaha.

NEBRASKA NOTES — The Nebraska Rebounders have set a Jan. 6 luncheon date at the Villager Luncheon. Speakers will include South Carolina Coach Frank McGuire and NU Coach Joe Cipriano.

UNO Band Gets Trip Opportunity

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—Donations and a grant from the University of Nebraska at Omaha have provided $1,600 for 10 musicians and five cheerleaders to accompany UNO basketball players on their three-game California trip which opens against Pepperdine in Malibu, Calif., Monday.

UNO Alumni Association officials said that the musicians and cheerleaders are each chipping in $20 to make up the total needed for the trip.

The trip won't be exactly as planned. The musicians and cheerleaders will drive instead of fly.

Other games will be at the University of Pacific in Stockton on Jan. 7 and at San Diego University Jan. 11.

"Coaches and players are happy enough money was raised for the band and cheerleaders to make the trip," Coach Bob Hanson said. "Their presence will mean a lot to the team, plus the knowledge many other people helped to make the trip possible."

Pro Hockey On Thin Ice

Toronto (AP) — Hockey's two major leagues refused to comment Wednesday on reports that 17 of 32 clubs that comprise the National Hockey League and World Hockey Association are encountering financial difficulties.

NHL President Clarence Campbell said in Montreal he wasn't going to comment on conjecture.

"The Globe and Mail doesn't know what it's talking about."

The Toronto newspaper said in an unattributed story Wednesday that seven of the 18 NHL teams will be operating in the red by the end of the season, including the Detroit Red Wings, one of six teams that made up the league before expansion in 1967 doubled its membership.

The newspaper suggested NHL team losses will total $4.4 million.

It further said that 10 of the 14 WHA teams will run up losses totaling $7.25 million this season.

The Toronoto Toros, alone, were expected to lose about $2 million on their operations unless attendance at home games picks up. The Toros, who have been averaging about 6,600 at home, must average 10,000 to break even.

Neither Ben Hatskin, the WHA's chief executive, nor Bud Poile, vice-president in charge of hockey operations, was available for comment. They both are in California, apparently to check further with the San Diego Mariner franchise which the Toronto newspaper says will lose $1 million this year.

A spokesman at the WHA's head office here said he has no idea where the newspaper got its figures because the only two WHA officials allowed to discuss the subject — Hatskin and Poile — have been traveling since before Christmas.

Sooner Players Use His Prayers

MIAMI (AP) — Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer, his tongue firmly planted in his cheek, says he has one big advantage over Michigan in the Orange Bowl football game Thursday night.

"I think (senior quarterback) Steve Davis being an ordained Baptist minister gives us a connection — the pipeline he's got," said Switzer, his eyes rolling toward the heavens during Tuesday's coaches luncheon.

Michigan Coach Bo Schembechler, who'll have freshman Rick Leach leading the Wolverines, confirmed, "He's (Leach) not only giving up three years of experience, but divine right.

"I don't know if any other freshman quarterback has been able to take a team into a game like the Orange Bowl," added Schembechler in a more serious vein. Leach led Michigan to an average of almost 29 points a game, but both coaches indicated Michigan's defense was the key.

"We believe in defense because we think you can win defensively easier than you can offensively," said Schembechler, whose 8-1-2 Wolverines have allowed only 215 yards and 10.5 points a game.

"This is the finest defense, regardless of size, we've ever played against at Oklahoma," said Switzer of Michigan's smaller defenders.

Switzer drew "oohs" when he gave the size of his offensive line, ranging from 237 pounds to 290, and got laughter when he insisted, "Size doesn't have a darn thing to do with it, I'm telling you that." Both coaches praised the matchup, with Schembechler saying, "We may have lost the conference...but we darn sure won the opponent."

Michigan, ranked fifth, got into the game after losing the Big Ten title 21-14 to Ohio State. The victory put No. 1 Ohio State in the Rose Bowl against UCLA, a team it beat 41-20 in the regular season.

"I'm extremely pleased to be here and you should be pleased too,'' said Schembechler. "After all you came darn close to getting Woody Hayes."

"Bo, I want to say this — I wish Woody was here," said Switzer of No. 3 Oklahoma (10-1). "The best team in the Big Ten is in Miami, Fla, not in Pasadena. You (Orange Bowl) have the two finest football teams in your game, not only this year, but for the last three years."

Oklahoma, coming off NCAA probation, hasn't played in a bowl game for three years despite a 31-1-1 record under Switzer. Michigan was 38-3-3 the past four years and Big Ten co-champions with Ohio State in 1972-74, but the Buckeyes were given the Rose Bowl nod all three years.

''These youngsters we brought down here are representing three years of frustration...against what we consider the most formidable opponent we could have," said Schembechler.

Switzer said, "Every night I go home, I get down on my knees and pray thanks that this is one game "Bear" Bryant couldn't manipulate."

Russians Tie Montreal, 3-3

MONTREAL (UPI) — "It's better to have a dollar in your pocket than to have nothing at all," said Konstantin Loktev, the head coach of the touring Central Army hockey team Wednesday night after his club battled the NHL Montreal Canadiens to a 3-3 tie.

Boris Aleksandrov got the tying goal at 4:04 of the final period when Montreal goalie Ken Dryden failed to hold onto his shot and the puck trickled into the net.

"I'm very happy with the tie," said Loktev, who added that the Canadiens put up a much stronger showing than the New York Rangers did Sunday night when they fell 7-3.

"Our team could have played better against the Canadiens. This was certainly not our best game, but Montreal was very strong defensively, holding us to only 13 shots and only allowing us seven in the first two periods."

Montreal Coach Scotty Bowman, whose team gathered more points than any other NHL club through the 1975 portion of the season, agreed on his team's performance.

'Chilled' Roses Await OSU

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Ohio State's Buckeyes, the No. 1 ranked college football team in the nation, remained a two-touchdown favorite over UCLA for Thursday's 62nd Rose Bowl game as the weather turned chilly.

Still it will be warm from Midwest viewpoints, with the temperature in the 50's and Coach Woody Hayes' Buckeyes figure to be even hotter.

They're appearing in their fourth straight Rose Bowl and have lost two of the last three in the traditional postseason clashes between the champions of the Big Ten and Pacific-8.

Hayes points out that in 1966, when UCLA made its last appearance in the Pasadena classic, the Bruins had lost to Michigan State 13-3 in the season opener and the Spartans came to California ranked No. 1 in the nation. Marshalled by All-American quarterback Gary Beban, the Bruins upset the Spartans 14-12.

Ohio State soundly defeated UCLA 41-20 earlier this season, but again UCLA has a multi talented quarterback and All-American in John Sciarra as the Bruins try to duplicate 1966 and dump the undefeated Buckeyes. A crowd of 106,000 and a national television audience (NBC-TV) are expected for the 2 p.m. PST kickoff.

"I know UCLA is improved and our players know it," Hayes commented. "But there is no senioritis on this team. If anything they are more dedicated than before."

Heisman Trophy winner Archie Griffin, the tailback voted the nation's best collegian in both 1974 and 1975, heads the potent Buckeye offense, but he's far from alone on attack.

Quarterback Cornelius Greene was voted the outstanding player in the Rose Bowl two years ago and most outstanding in the Big Ten this campaign. And fullback Pete Johnson is a battering ram who led the nation in scoring this season with 25 touchdowns. Two came against UCLA.

UCLA lost only one other game during the season, an upset against Washington, and finished with an 8-2-1 record and ranks 11th nationally going into the Rose Bowl.

"It will take every man playing his best to beat Ohio State," declared 39-year-old Coach Dick Vermeil, in his second season as head man for the Bruins.

The 62-year-old Hayes has headed the Buckeye grid fortunes for a quarter century and appeared in the Rose Bowl on eight occasions.

His first was in 1955 when the Buckeyes beat Southern California 20-7. His latest was last Jan. 1, also against USC when the Trojans won 18-17 in the final minute.

In 1955, the Buckeyes had a Heisman Trophy winner in their backfield, Howard "Hopalong" Cassady. This New Year's Day, Craig Cassady, son of the former great, starts in the defensive secondary. Craig had two interceptions in the Big Ten closing game against Michigan when Ohio State won 21-14 to earn the California trip.

UCLA defensive middle guard Cliff Frazier looks at the Buckeyes and says, "They are not invincible."

And it must be Frazier and his defensive cohorts doing their greatest job if UCLA is to pull an upset. Vermeil thinks his Bruins will score three touchdowns.

UCLA's offense ranked third in the nation averaging 432 yards a game with 329 on the ground as Sciarra spearheaded the Veer-T attack. The quarterback personally accounted for 1,907 yards with 806 running and 1,101 passing.

Halfback Wendell Tyler set a UCLA single season rushing record with 1,216 yards and the Bruins have another fleet runner in Eddie Ayers. Outstanding defensive lineman Randy Cross was a second team All-American and he's recovered from injuries that made him questionable earlier in the month.

In his previous seven appearances in the Rose Bowl, Hayes had guided his Buckeyes to four victories against three defeats, but he's just 1-3 in his last four visits.

UCLA surprised by finishing as co-champion of the Pacific-8 and won the right to represent the conference with a 28-14 triumph over California and a 25-23 final game victory over Southern California, the preseason choice.

Tournament of Roses officials estimated that the stadium attendance record of 106,869 could be better in this renewal.

Handicap No Handicap For Exeter's Manning

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Burress — Mark Manning is shy a left arm and he could stand a few more inches on his 5-7 frame. Otherwise, he just about has it all.

The Exeter High senior, 17, is a "straight A" student, a four-sport letterman, a musician, a pool lifeguard and a never-tiring outdoorsman. Throw in for good measure his coach's summary of "one good head, a competitor who gives everything, a leader respected by everybody.

"Mark is always doing things you don't expect from a kid who is handicapped," said basketball coach Tim Wilbeck. "Like against Clay Center whan an opponent was over-guarding, he just dribbled behind his back and went in for a perfect layup. You can imagine how the crowd loved that."

Within one or two notches of the Eagles' starting five, Mark sees lots of action and is shooting 57 per cent from the floor. His quickness and determination make him Wilbeck's first choice "whenever I need two minutes of real good defense."

Although weighing 120, he was rugged enough in football this year to be chosen a Pioneer all-conference defensive back. His junior year brought another top honor, designation as Exeter's all-sports "team player."

Though his one-armed prowess is probably most remarkable in basketball, Mark has been dazzling spectators in several sports for a dozen years. Bone cancer forced the amputation of his arm — including collar bone and shoulder blade — in March of 1963.

According to his father, Tom, the gritty 4-year-old came home three days after surgery and "began playing almost as though nothing had happened." By second grade he was playing baseball, fielding grounders with his glove and then quickly shedding it to throw.

The fifth in a family of eight, Mark has deliberately been forced to do for himself. His dexterous right hand even manages to maneuver a squirming worm onto a fish hook.

"My dad has a rule that everyone cleans his or her own fish and game, myself included," said the youth, uncomplainingly. "It's good for me to try things against the odds."

So far, he is following his father and well-known grandfather, Earl Manning, into a grain business in tiny Burress. Now down to four houses, the Fillmore County minivillage is remembered for its bustling dance hall of three decades ago.

Agriculture is one of three vocations competing for the youth's future. He also is giving thought to a career in either law or medicine and enrolling at the University of Nebraska, regardless of his choice in majors.

For several years, he was closely watched for a recurrence of the malignancy, both by family physician Dr. Clarence Zimmer of Friend and specialist Dr. P.E. Getscher of Lincoln. He now takes only routine annual physicals the same as the rest of his family.

With basketball and football his favorite sports, he already has earned eight varsity letters and appears a cinch for two more by graduation. His other participation has been in golf and track, his specialties in the latter being the hurdles and triple jump.

As impressive as any of his accomplishments is his attitude. The modest youth shrugs off compliments like water off a duck's back.

"Bad as I hate to admit it, I guess the handicap does slow me down a little," he said. "But I've tried not to let it stop me completely. I'll try most anything just to prove I can do it."

Morning Briefing

A Sports Roundup

BASKETBALL

Nebraska's Cornhuskers were picked to finish fourth in the Big Eight this season in a poll of 50 writers and broadcasters attending the 30th annual Big Eight Preseason Tournament, which Missouri won with a 79-69 win over Kansas Tuesday.

The poll's results, with total points in parentheses are: Missouri (357), Kansas State (340), Kansas (328), Nebraska (237), Oklahoma State (194), Colorado (147), Oklahoma (107) and Iowa State (54).

North Carolina, which won the Far West Classic Title in 1967, will return for the annual college tournament this year. Joining the Tarheels will be Texas A&M, Memphis State, Oral Roberts, Bowling Green and Weber State, along with hosts Oregon and Oregon State.

FOOTBALL

Charley Pell, defensive coordinator at Virginia Tech the past two seasons, will assume the same responsibilities with Clemson coach Red Parker next season.

Texas Christian's first and last All-American football players were inducted Wednesday into the Texas Sports Hall of Fame. Former Dallas Cowboy defensive tackle Bob Lilly and University of Mississippi Athletic Director Johnny Vaught, who was a 1932 All-American guard, were the honored.

Army's All-American halfback of the late 1950s, Pete Dawkins, was named as the 1975 winner of the Walter Camp football award, in commemoration of the Yale coach who developed modern collegiate football.

American Football Conference standouts Terry Bradshaw, Lydell Mitchell and Ken Anderson received a total of 13 ballots for UPI's 1975 conference player of the year award. But Buffalo's O.J. Simpson recorded 26 votes and won the honor for the third time in the last four years.

The White House announced Wednesday that President Ford telephoned Minnesota Vikings quarterback Fran Tarkenton Tuesday night to express condolescences at the death of Tarkenton's father. The Rev. Dallas Tarkenton Sr. died of a heart attack Sunday.

OTHER SPORTS

The New Jersey Supreme Court set Jan. 12 as the date for oral arguments in the Hurricane Carter triple murder case. Carter and codefendant John Artis are seeking a new trial on their convictions for three 1966 killings based on claims of new evidence and improper prosecuting procedure.

Working agreements between nearly 300 mutuel clerks at Ohio's Thistledown Race Track and Northfield Park expired at midnight Wednesday. Both tracks had been scheduled to open Thursday. The clerks plan to vote on new contract offers Thursday.

The Detroit Tigers and the Minnesota Twins will start the regular and secondary phases, respectively, of the major league's 11th annual winter free-agent draft next Wednesday.

Chicago coach Billy Reay, whose Black Hawks will confront the Red Wings of Russia next Wednesday at Chicago, calls the two touring Soviet hockey teams "for real" and says their 44 players "must be considered among the greatest players in the world."

Curt Gowdy, who was eased out of next season's NBC baseball telecasts, will join the ABC Winter Olympics crew at Innsbruck, an ABC spokesman announced Wednesday.

IOC's Killanin Eyes World Sportsmanship

LONDON (AP) — Lord Killanin, the quiet president of the International Olympic Committee, looked beyond he construction crisis in Montreal and appealed Wednesday for sportsmanship throughout the world in a message prepared for the Olympic year.

He made no mention of Montreal's labor pains—construction delays which threaten the opening of the Summer Olympics next July.

Instead the 61-year-old Irishman called for an end to political and racial prejudice in sport and for adherence to the Olympic principles. These are problems which could become serious in 1976—both at the Winter Games at Innsbruck in February and the Summer Games at Montreal.

In his prepared Olympic message, Killanin said:

"As we enter 1976, the year of the 21st Olympiad, I should like to take this opportunity of extending my best wishes to the athletes of the whole world, the international federations, the national Olympic committees and the organizing committees of the Summer and Winter Games, who all have greater responsibilities this year.

"However, I send this message not only to the athletes who may find themselves selected for the games, but also to all, whether young or old, who are interested in sport at all levels, in an effort to find a common denominator which overrides political, religious and racial borders in the modern world.

"On behalf of the International Olympic Committee I appeal to all competitors and officials at Montreal and Innsbruck to support the Olympic principles and rules."

The message was characteristic of Killanin, who has brought his own brand of quiet diplomacy to the leadership of the Olympic movement.

IOC members say the former president, the late Avery Brundage, would by now have been cracking the whip and shouting at organizers in Montreal for all the world to see and hear.

But Killanin believes in preserving a low profile and confines his clashes with Montreal to telephone calls and Telex exchanges. He has had plenty to say to Montreal behind the scenes these last two months, when the Quebec provincial government took the Olympic building projects out of the hands of Montreal's Mayor Jean Drapeau and severely trimmed the building program in a bid to be ready for the games at all.

Nevertheless, the president's New Year's message touched on points that could grow into nightmares before Olympic year is over.

There is scarcely a member of the IOC who is not worried about political troubles intruding into the 1976 Olympics.

Four years ago, on the eve of the Games in Munich, a crisis developed over Rhodesia competing. All the black African countries threatened to walk out of the Games.

The situation was saved at the expense of Rhodesia's exclusion at the last minute. but many members were unhappy. They felt the Olympic principle of sport in the cause of friendship had been violated.

Bethel Wins Chadron Meet

Chadron (AP) — An 11 for 12 free throw line performance by J. C. Evans helped pace Bethel College of Kansas Wednesday night as it downed Northern Montana 76-67 to capture the Chadron State College holiday basketball tournament championship.

Evans captured top scoring honors with 26 points as the Threshers held a persistent edge over the Northern Lights. Bethel led 43-35 at halftime. Tony Coleman provided 17 points for the Northern Lights, with Butch Marshall adding 16.

In consolation matches, Concordia of Minnesota outscored Chadron State College 21-4 from the foul line to defeat the Eagles 85-62 for third place.

Scott Gardner laid in his 21st and 22nd points at the buzzer to give Black Hills State College a 57-55 victory over Colorado Mines for fifth place.

Mt. Marty College won seventh place with a 76-71 win over Concordia College.

Concordia's Norm Roth scored 29 for the Bulldogs, followed by 15 each from Bill Ricketts and Byron Jones.

Concordia led 43-38 at the half.

Mt. Marty's record stands at 2-11, while Concordia falls to 1-10.

Bryant: Bowl Victory Long Time In Coming

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — "This victory has been a long time coming and it's a real sweet one," said Alabama football coach Bear Bryant shortly after his Crimson Tide had given him his first bowl victory since 1967 with a 13-6 triumph over Penn State in the Sugar Bowl Wednesday night.

Since a 34-7 trouncing of Nebraska in 1967, the Tide has been 0-7-1 in post-season action.

"We beat a great football team," Bryant said. "I told coach Joe Paterno after the game that I'm glad we don't have to prepare for him in another week. They did one terrific job defensing us."

Penn State stifled Alabama's wishbone offense for three quarters but couldn't cope with the passing of quarterback Richard Todd. Todd set up an early field goal with a 54-yard pass and a second half touchdown with a 55-yard aerial.

Todd called a time out and went to the sidelines just before he launched the bomb that set up Mike Stock's scoring sweep—the only touchdown of the game.

"Coach Bryant said for him just to take off," said Todd, meaning the coach had called a pass play. "I just smiled and said 'OK.'"

Bryant sipped a soda in a steamy interview room just off the showers in the lower levels of the Superdome.

Bryant evaded references to the fact that some 30 of his players missed curfew at one time or another during the week before the game.

However, he reshuffled his starting lineup, moving three curfew breakers into a reserve capacity.

One of those moved up to a starting role was defensvie back Mark Prudhomme who intercepted a pass inside the five-yard line to kill a Penn State drive.

"I'd have been embarrassed if he had caught it," said Prudhomme.

His interception was not as easy as he made it sound. He shared possession of the football with the Penn State receiver until he yanked it free.

Meanwhile, "we felt we needed a break and they didn't give us one," said Penn State Coach Joe Paterno.

"The biggest thing was that Alabama made no mistakes," he said. "A turnover in one or two places and it might have been different."

Alabama had been 13-point favorite over the Nittany Lions, a match involving two defensive teams with the Crimson Tide holding a decisive advantage offensively.

But Paterno, who has a history of getting his team ready to play bowl games, said of his offensive unit:

"We were a little ragged in the first half at times. But generally I thought we played as well as we could, considering the type of personnel we have on our offensive unit."

The Nittany Lions trailed 3-0 at halftime, earned a 3-3 tie on Chris Bahr's field goal in the third quarter, but then fell behind for good when Alabama's Richard Todd set up a touchdown with a 55-yard pass to Ozzie Newsome at the Penn State 11.

The play carried over freshman Billy Crummy, pressed into service when starter Tom Odell left with a rib injury on the last play of the first quarter.

"The freshman took the bite and the kid was open," Paterno said. "It was a tough spot, but he'll learn from it."

Engineer Urges County Fight Suit

By NANCY HICKS
Star Staff Writer

County Engineer Marv Nuernberger thinks the county should not take the easy way out in a court fight involving the Roca rock quarry.

The engineer has recommended that the county go to trial on the case, filed in November by Schwarck Quarries, Inc.

The suit, filed in Lancaster County District Court against Nuernberger and county commissioners Bruce Hamilton and Jan Gauger, conteds that Nuernberger failed to comply with state bidding laws when he made a July agreement for crushing rock at the county-owned quarry.

The negotiated contract went to Constructors, Inc. of Lincoln at a price of $1.55 per ton of rock crushed.

The suit contends that the $1.55 price was in excess of market value and in excess of what the county would have paid in public bidding

In an apparent attempt to settle the suit out of court, Nuernberger said he was persuaded to take the bids on the rock quarry crushing job this month

And the bids, opened last week, were higher than the original negotiated contract — $1.64 per ton for Schwarck Quarries and $2.18 per ton for Constructor's Inc.

For the taxpayer, even the low bid is an increase of almost $4,000 on the 32,000 tons of limestone expected to be crushed.

In a tentative agreement Schwarck Quarries agreed to drop its suit if the low bid was accepted, Nuernberger said.

But Nuernberger is recommending that the County Board reject both bids and take the case to court.

Only then will the county know whether they can continue with the original, lower negotiated price, he said

And even if the county board accepts the Schwarck bid, Nuernberger said he feels the law suits will not be over. Constructors, Inc., could file a suit seeking the money they lost in moving their equipment into the quarry and then out again

Neither Gauger nor County Attorney Ron Lahners would comment on the suit or Nuernberger's recommendation.

But the board will discuss the bids at their Tuesday board meeting.

28 Appointed To Women's Commission

Mayor Helen Boosalis announced Wednesday she has appointed 28 persons including five men to the newly created Lincoln-Lancaster Commission on the Status of Women.

The mayor announced last month that Bobbi McGinn, coordinator for the League of Human Dignity, would be chairperson of the organization.

The purpose of the commission is to identify and solve the problems facing women in a myriad of areas including employment and health services.

Those appointed to the commission:

Midge Alfieri, an estimater for Quality First Electrical Corp.; Lucy Buntain, a part-time instructor at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln; Mary Jo Cerny, a pharmacist, Dee Clouse, an agriculture professor at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln; LaBrena Damian, railroad employe; Alice Dittman, president of Cornhusker Bank; Chris Funk, a caseworker at Child Guidance; and Gretchen Gottschalk, a homemaker.

Helen Haggie, Lincoln Journal reporter; Imogene Haukaas, an employe of the State Welfare Dept.; Donna King, a Goodyear employe; Shirley Kuhle, a salesperson for Town & Country Realty, Martha Rebensdorf, an administrative assistant at the Lincoln Chamber of Commerce; Janet Retzlaff, hairdresser; Lynn Roper, a campaign worker for the United Fund, Pat Lahr Smith, Republican National Committeewoman for Nebraska, Edith Thomas-Harvey, staff member of the State Equal Opportunity Office; Betty Warner, a Waverly homemaker; Kappie Weber, a homemaker; Linda Wilson, a homemaker; Joan Wooten, staff member of the Lincoln Action Program; Judy McDowell, executive director of Lincoln Industries, and Mary Jane Humphreys, a student and homemaker

The men appointed to the commission Jerry Aspengren, director of the Child Guidance Office Gar Donnelson, a Lincoln Telephone and Telegraph official, John Tidball an insurance executive, Jim Suter, state director of the Comprehensive Health Planning Office, and Roger Knight a United Church of Christ minister

Sokol Group May Rebuild

Omaha (AP) — The South Omaha Sokol building committee has recommended rebuilding the organization's hall, which burned recently

The recommendation will be presented to the membership at a meeting Monday night, committee member George Buglewicz said

Buglewicz said it will cost at least $250,000 to replace the structure

About $175,000 has been collected in insurance money and some South Omaha businesses have pledged money to help pay for the rebuilding, he said.

Cheapest Was Really Most Expensive

If you poured down shot after shot of vodka last night and were still sober when your friends started prancing around in lampshades, check the label on the bottle.

Vodka is Russian for "little water." But some manufacturers put a lot of water in, as Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Luke, 4640 Bryan Circle, can testify.

Working on the assumption that "the cheapest vodka tastes as good as the most expensive," Mrs. Luke and her mother recently took advantage of a local liquor store's $3 19 a quart offer. Eight bottles worth.

"What does that taste like?" Luke's mother-in-law asked the next day.

"It tastes like watered down vodka," Luke said.

"Good, because I've been drinking martinis and I don't feel anything."

The small print on the label explained things: "Diluted, 40 proof." U.S. government standards require 80 proof for vodka.

The store manager refused to refund their money. "Vodka is vodka," he said. Another liquor store had never heard of diluted vodka: "If you want it diluted, you'll have to do it yourself."

The State Liquor Commission told Mrs. Luke it was powerless as long as the bottle was labeled as diluted vodka. But she did leave with a complaint form to send to the consumer protection division of the attorney general's office.

"I went to buy the cheapest vodka in the store," Mrs. Luke said. "My husband says I came back with the most expensive."

Had the Lukes bought 80 proof vodka, it would have cost from $3.29 to $6 per quart, instead of the $3.19 for the half-strength watered "little water."

Money Supply Dips $1 Billion

Washington (AP) — The size of the nation's money supply fell $1 billion in the week ended Dec. 17, the Federal Reserve Board said.

The money supply, defined as cash in the public hands plus checking account balances, dropped from an average, seasonally adjusted $296.3 billion to $295.3 billion.

In the three months ended Dec. 17, the supply grew at an annual rate of only 1.6%, well below the Fed's long-term target growth rate of 5 to 7.5%.

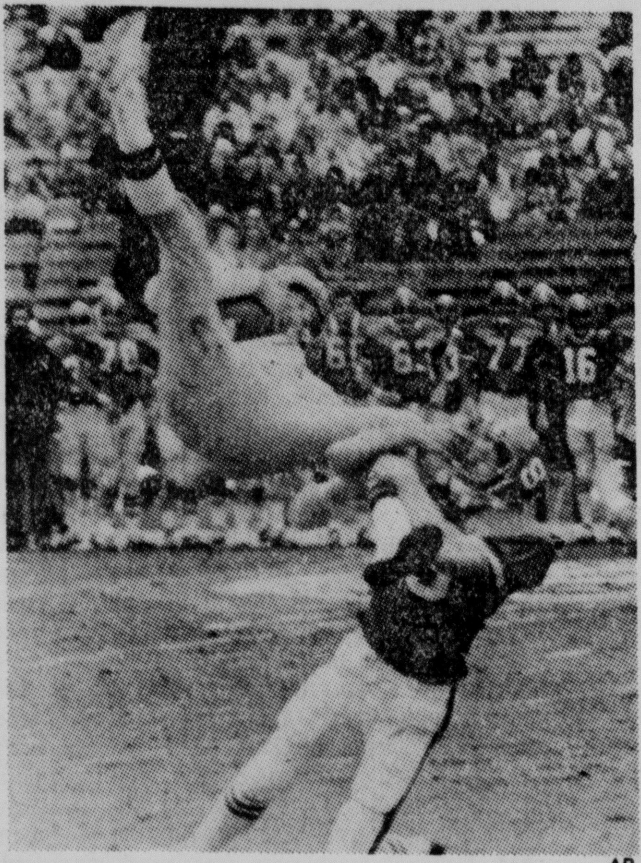
'Mud Passing Attack' Sparks West Virginia

ATLANTA (AP) — "We have a good mud passing attack," said West Virginia Coach Bobby Bowden after his Mountaineers scored on a pair of touchdown bombs to defeat North Carolina State 13-10 Wednesday in the eighth annual Peach Bowl college football game.

Quarterback Dan Kendra lofted scoring strikes of 39 yards to running back Arthur Owens and 50 yards to 6-foot-6 split end Scott MacDonald on a field only partially dried after hours of steady rain to give the Mountaineers, primarily a running team, the victory.

"The mud helped neutralize their secondary," Bowden said.

"I'm shellshocked," said Lou Holtz, head coach of the Wolfpack. "I was surprised they threw as much as they did, but we were stopping their running plays."



AP

West Virginia's Scott MacDonald (84) is hit hard while going high for a pass in the Peach Bowl. Making the play for North Carolina State is Dave Roberts.

Bowden said Kendra's first touchdown toss was the turning point of the game. The Wolfpack was leading 10-0 and threatening to run away from the slightly underdog Mountaineers when Kendra connected on a pass to Owens as the final seconds of the first half ticked away. Owens outraced defensive back Ralph Stringer down the left sideline, took the pass at the one and stepped across the goal with no time left in the half.

The second touchdown toss by Kendra, who completed 12 of 28 passes for 202 yards, came midway in the fourth quarter.

MacDonald, who caught five passes for 110 yards and a touchdown, leaped up between several defenders to snare the pass, bobbled the ball for several steps and then raced the final 20 yards touched only by Eddie Poole, who made a futile desperation dive at the 10.

Ricky Adams went over from the one the first time N. C. State had the ball to cap a 73-yard drive and put the Wolfpack ahead until midway in the final quarter. The drive was keyed by Dave Buckey's 17-yard pass to his twin brother, Don Buckey.

Jerry Scherrill added a 21-yard field goal for the Wolfpack in the second quarter.

Also in the second quarter, the Mountaineers moved from their own 23 to the Wolfpack 19 where Bill McKenzie missed wide to the left on a 35-yard field goal attempt.

Kendra, selected the game's most valuable offensive player, completed 12 of 28 passes for 202 yards. N.C. State's Ted Brown was the game's leading rusher with 159 yards on 29 carries.

The game was a replay of the 1972 Peach Bowl battle won by N.C. State, 49-13.

Top Ten Athletes Selected

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Two Ohio State athletes and one each from Southern Cal, UCLA and Augustana of South Dakota have been selected for the 1975 College Athletics' Top Ten by the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

The NCAA's top 10 is rounded out by five standout college performers who completed their eligibility 25 years ago.

The NCAA said Wednesday that the awards for college athletes who performed during 1975 will be presented to football running back Archie Griffin and diver Tim Moore of Ohio State; Marvin Cobb, baseball and football, Southern Cal; Bruce Hamming, basketball, Augustana, and John Sciarra, football, UCLA.

Named for silver anniversary honors were: Wade R. Stinson, Kansas football, now president of the United Missouri Bank of St. Louis; Napoleon A. Bell, Mount Union football and track, now a Columbus, Ohio, lawyer; Ernest J. Curtis, Vanderbilt football and basketball, now corporate marketing manager for International Paper Co. in Chicago; Samuel H. Greenwalt, Pennsylvania football and squash, now executive vice president of Michigan National Bank in Detroit, and Ross J. Pritchard, Arkansas football and track, now president of Arkansas State University.

The Top Ten athletes will be honored at a banquet Jan. 16 in St. Louis during the NCAA's 70th annual convention.

Tax Lien Filed Against Spurs

Denver (AP) — Denver officials have filed a $47,334 tax lien against the Denver Spurs to recover part of $80,000 the city says the World Hockey Association team owes for "seat taxes."

A report by Auditor John Dee shows that the team owes a total of $80,275 for the season as of Nov. 30, but the report includes no data for December.

The lien was filed by Howard Davey, supervisor of sales and occupational taxes, after the Spurs failed to respond to a notice that the team was delinquent on the taxes.

He said the taxes had been collected from ticket holders but had not been forwarded to the city, as the law requires.

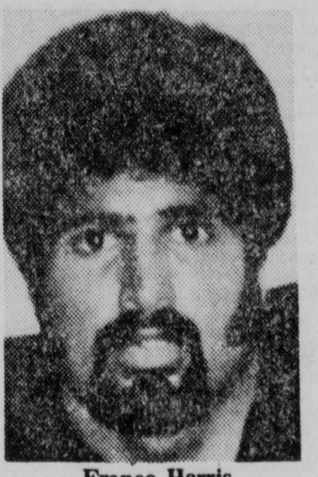
Harris Paces Pittsburgh's Attack

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pittsburgh's Franco Harris rushed for 111 yards in last year's American Conference championship game against Oakland, a big reason why the Steelers defeated the Raiders.

In all, the Steelers picked up 224 yards on the ground while holding the Raiders to a meager 29.

Oakland obviously will try to change things Sunday when the two teams meet in a repeat performance of the AFC championship, and to do that they'll have to stop Harris.

Since mid-season, Harris has been averaging 118 yards per game. During the regular season he gained 1,246 yards, second only to O.J. Simpson, and scored 10 touchdowns along the way.



Franco Harris
Steeler Standout

But the Steelers figure they have a similar challenge with the Raiders running attack.

"We have to stop that running," says Steeler linebacker Andy Russell. "We can't allow them to run. And we have to put some heat on Ken Stabler. And we have to keep Cliff Branch and Fred Bilentnikoff from getting too open. And we have to play great on the special teams."

The game will be Pittsburgh's third in four years in the conference title game and the third straight for the Raiders.

The Steelers had to come from behind with three fourth-quarter touchdowns to win 24-13 in Oakland last year.

The Raiders have never won a postseason game outside of Oakland, losing five times, including once in Pittsburgh in 1972 on Franco Harris'miracle catch with five seconds left.

Oakland Coach John Madden says he knows what the Raiders are up against Sunday at Three Rivers Stadium.

"They're just good at everything — strong and explosive," he said. "And they've got everything going for them — an extra day's rest and playing back there."

Madden acknowledges that he's apprehensive.

"It boils down to who plays the best that day," he said. "We both have the capacity to beat each other. You just hope to hell you're playing well that day."

"It's a big guessing game. Out there two years ago, they kept us off balance and beat us. Threw a lot on first down. Threw underneath when we all dropped back into the deep coverages."

But when it's all over, perhaps the one thing which will stand out again is the rushing statistics.

Bear Finally Wins One — Alabama Topples Penn State

THE LINCOLN STAR
Sports
Thursday, January 1, 1976 27

Alabama's Mike Stock (32) sprints across the goal line on a 14-yard run. At left is Penn State's Bill Crummy (23).

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Bear Bryant may have finally discovered the secret of winning a bowl game—leaving his houndstooth hat at home.

The veteran Alabama coach departed from his normal procedure and went hatless as his fourth-ranked Crimson Tide used the pinpoint passing of Richard Todd to trim No. 8-ranked Penn State 13-6 in the Sugar Bowl, ending an eight-year winless drought in postseason competition.

"We were poor dirt farmers at Moro Bottoms, Ark , and Momma taught me never to wear a hat inside a building," Bryant said. "I never forgot."

The hatless Bryant was overjoyed with the triumph in the $163-million Superdome, saying· "The victory was a long time coming and it sure is sweet."

After being accused of handpicking the Nittany Lions as the Alabama foe, Bryant remarked, "Anybody who didn't think Penn State had great football players is an idiot."

Joe Paterno, the Penn State coach who had enjoyed success in bowl competition with a 5-1-1 record going into this game, said· "It was a great football game, it wasn't sloppy. The defense played well on both teams."

And, draped across the facade of the upper deck of the immaculate indoor arena was a hand-written sign that mimicked the bicentennial minutes seen on television.

It said "Two hundred years ago today, 'Bama won a bowl game. Today, too."

It might have seemed that long to Bryant and Alabama followers

Todd, who passed for 210 yards, set up two Alabama scores with completions covering 54 and 55 yards as the Crimson Tide won its first bowl victory since a 34-7 triumph over Nebraska in the 1967 Sugar Bowl.

Alabama's 11th straight victory since an opening loss to Missouri came in the first Sugar Bowl game played in the $163-million Louisiana Superdome, a colorful indoor arena that was jammed with a capacity crowd of 75,000.

Penn State, a 13-point underdog, had shut off Alabama's vaunted ground attack, but could not contain Todd, who completed 10 of 12 passes

Alabama had a 3-0 lead after a bruising defensive battle for the first 30 minutes Danny Ridgeway's 25-yard field goal was set up by Todd's 54-yard pass to Joe Dale Harris, who got most of the yardage himself

Penn State, ending its season at 9-3, created little offense until the second half when the Lions moved 44 yards to set up a 42-yard field goal by Chris Bahr, that tied the game late in the third quarter.

But Todd, a unanimous pick as most valuable player in the game, put Alabama ahead again less than three minutes later. He combined with Ozzie Newsome on a 55-yard pass to the Penn State 11. Todd saved the ball on the next play when he recovered Calvin Culliver's fumble on the 14.

On the ensuing play, Mike Stock swept left end for the touchdown and Alabama led 10-3 with 1:42 left in the quarter.

Substitute running back Steve Geise sprinted 29 yards to midfield for Penn State, where All-American Leroy Cook made a touchdown-saving tackle, but the run started a Lion drive that resulted in Bahr's second field goal, a 37-yarder that trimmed the Tide lead to 10-6 four minutes into the final quarter

It was then that Alabama's vaunted ground attack finally began to move, maintaining possession for eight minutes on a drive to the Penn State eight Ridgeway closed out the scoring moments later on a 28-yard field goal with 3 19 remaining, ending Alabama's long winless string in bowl competition.

Todd was among 10 Alabama starters slapped on the wrist by Coach Bear Bryant for violating curfew in this fun city last Saturday night

Despite the curfew violation, Bryant had said his team's preparation for this game was the best in 25 years, since his Kentucky team upset unbeaten Oklahoma 13-7 in the 1951 Sugar Bowl game

The narrow victory, however, did little to enhance Alabama s slim hopes of capturing a fourth national championship since Bryant had been accused of hand-picking Penn State as his Sugar Bowl foe

NU Fans To See Another Nissen

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

Nebraska basketball fans will watch another Nissen Saturday night at the NU Coliseum.

This time, it's Rick Nissen, a 6-0 senior from Miller, S.D. He's one of the mainstays for coach Jack Doyle whose Coyotes will meet Nebraska in a 7.35 p.m match

Rick's older brother, Al, was a three-year Nebraska standout for coach Joe Cipriano. He started all 26 games his senior year (1972-72) and averaged 12 points a game. Al, as a graduate assistant at NU in 1973, coached the junior varsity

Rick has started all 76 games in the three seasons prior to this season and has earned the following honors — a North Central Conference team berth, an NCC Holiday Tournament team spot and posts on the all-NCC academic squad and all-American Conference team.

He holds South Dakota records for most assists in one season (178 last year) and career assists (434). He is just the 11th Coyote to score 1,000 career points.

Last season was Nissen's best as a Coyote. He scored 15.2 points a game and averaged 4.2 rebounds as a guard.

So that's one of the major problems confronting Nebraska in Nissen's second-to-last nonconference game. The final nonconference game will be next Tuesday night when the South Carolina Gamecocks invade the NU Coliseum

Another standout for the Coyotes is 6-8 senior Joe Mueting, who played high school basketball at Norfolk Catholic.

Through his first six games this season, the 210-pound senior has paced the Coyotes in scoring with a 22-point average and in rebounding with 12 2 Nissen is second in scoring with a 19.2 mark.

Ron Pedersen, a 6-3 junior from Rock Valley, Iowa, is the third in Coyote scoring with a 14.8 average.

The Coyotes have captured five of nine contests, including a 79-75 upset of Iowa State at Ames. Other wins were over Wartburg (91-65), Westmar (112-87), South Dakota Tech (106-72) and Morningside (75-73).

Their losses were to Tulane University (87-81), South Alabama (86-79) and North Dakota State (90-82) and to South Dakota State (87-67) in the NCC Holiday Tournament at Sioux Falls.

This will be the 33rd meeting in the series that the Huskers lead 27-5. The last time the two schools met was in 1967 when the Huskers defeated South Dakota, 93-61, in Lincoln.

The Coyotes finished fifth in the NCC last season with a 6-8 record. They were 11-14 overall.

COYOTE NOTES — Norman Behring, a native of Grand Island, is a 6-10 junior center. He played junior college basketball at Northeast Technical Community College in Norfolk, where he was named to the Nebraska JC all-conference squad . . . Nissen's grade average last spring was 3.60 in pre-med. Brother Al, formerly a pre-med major at Nebraska, now is a medical student at the University of Nebraska Medical Center in Omaha.

NEBRASKA NOTES — The Nebraska Rebounders have set a Jan. 6 luncheon date at the Villager Luncheon. Speakers will include South Carolina Coach Frank McGuire and NU Coach Joe Cipriano

UNO Band Gets Trip Opportunity

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—Donations and a grant from the University of Nebraska at Omaha have provided $1,600 for 10 musicians and five cheerleaders to accompany UNO basketball players on their three-game California trip which opens against Pepperdine in Malibu, Calif., Monday.

UNO Alumni Association officials said that the musicians and cheerleaders are each chipping in $20 to make up the total needed for the trip.

The trip won't be exactly as planned. The musicians and cheerleaders will drive instead of fly.

Other games will be at the University of Pacific in Stockton on Jan 7 and at San Diego University Jan. 11.

"Coaches and players are happy enough money was raised for the band and cheerleaders to make the trip," Coach Bob Hanson said. "Their presence will mean a lot to the team, plus the knowledge many other people helped to make the trip possible."

Sooner Players Use His Prayers

MIAMI (AP) — Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer, his tongue firmly planted in his cheek, says he has one big advantage over Michigan in the Orange Bowl football game Thursday night.

"I think (senior quarterback) Steve Davis being an ordained Baptist minister gives us a connection — the pipeline he's got," said Switzer, his eyes rolling toward the heavens during Tuesday's coaches luncheon.

Michigan Coach Bo Schembechler, who'll have freshman Rick Leach leading the Wolverines, confirmed, "He's (Leach) not only giving up three years of experience, but divine right.

"I don't know if any other freshman quarterback has been able to take a team into a game like the Orange Bowl," added Schembechler in a more serious vein. Leach led Michigan to an average of almost 29 points a game, but both coaches indicated Michigan's defense was the key.

"We believe in defense because we think you can win defensively easier than you can offensively," said Schembechler, whose 8-1-2 Wolverines have allowed only 215 yards and 10.5 points a game.

"This is the finest defense, regardless of size, we've ever played against at Oklahoma," said Switzer of Michigan's smaller defenders.

Switzer drew "oohs" when he gave the size of his offensive line, ranging from 237 pounds to 290, and got laughter when he insisted, "Size doesn't have a darn thing to do with it, I'm telling you that." Both coaches praised the matchup, with Schembechler saying, "We may have lost the conference...but we darn sure won the opponent."

Michigan, ranked fifth, got into the game after losing the Big Ten title 21-14 to Ohio State. The victory put No. 1 Ohio State in the Rose Bowl against UCLA, a team it beat 41-20 in the regular season.

"I'm extremely pleased to be here and you should be pleased too," said Schembechler. "After all you came darn close to getting Woody Hayes."

"Bo, I want to say this — I wish Woody was here," said Switzer of No 3 Oklahoma (10-1). "The best team in the Big Ten is in Miami, Fla, not in Pasadena. You (Orange Bowl) have the two finest football teams in your game, not only this year, but for the last three years."

Oklahoma, coming off NCAA probation, hasn't played in a bowl game for three years despite a 31-1-1 record under Switzer. Michigan was 38-3-3 the past four years and Big Ten cochampions with Ohio State in 1972-74, but the Buckeyes were given the Rose Bowl nod all three years.

"These youngsters we brought down here are representing three years of frustration...against what we consider the most formidable opponent we could have," said Schembechler.

Switzer said, "Every night I go home, I get down on my knees and pray thanks that this is one game "Bear" Bryant couldn't manipulate"

Russians Tie Montreal, 3-3

MONTREAL (UPI) — "It's better to have a dollar in your pocket than to have nothing at all," said Konstantin Loktev, the head coach of the touring Central Army hockey team Wednesday night after his club battled the NHL Montreal Canadiens to a 3-3 tie

Boris Aleksandrov got the tying goal at 4.04 of the final period when Montreal goalie Ken Dryden failed to hold onto his shot and the puck trickled into the net

"I'm very happy with the tie," said Loktev, who added that the Canadiens put up a much stronger showing than the New York Rangers did Sunday night when they fell 7-3

"Our team could have played better against the Canadiens This was certainly not our best game, but Montreal was very strong defensively, holding us to only 13 shots and only allowing us seven in the first two periods"

Montreal Coach Scotty Bowman, whose team gathered more points than any other NHL club through the 1975 portion of the season, agreed on his team s performance

Pro Hockey On Thin Ice

Toronto (AP) — Hockey's two major leagues refused to comment Wednesday on reports that 17 of 32 clubs that comprise the National Hockey League and World Hockey Association are encountering financial difficulties.

NHL President Clarence Campbell said in Montreal he wasn't going to comment on conjecture.

"The Globe and Mail doesn't know what it's talking about"

The Toronto newspaper said in an unattributed story Wednesday that seven of the 18 NHL teams will be operating in the red by the end of the season, including the Detroit Red Wings, one of six teams that made up the league before expansion in 1967 doubled its membership.

The newspaper suggested NHL team losses will total $4.4 million.

It further said that 10 of the 14 WHA teams will run up losses totaling $7.25 million this season.

The Toronoto Toros, alone, were expected to lose about $2 million on their operations unless attendance at home games picks up. The Toros, who have been averaging about 6,600 at home, must average 10,000 to break even.

Neither Ben Hatskin, the WHA's chief executive, nor Bud Poile, vice-president in charge of hockey operations, was available for comment. They both are in California, apparently to check further with the San Diego Mariner franchise which the Toronto newspaper says will lose $1 million this year.

A spokesman at the WHA's head office here said he has no idea where the newspaper got its figures because the only two WHA officials allowed to discuss the subject — Hatskin and Poile — have been traveling since before Christmas.

Handicap No Handicap For Exeter's Manning

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Burress — Mark Manning is shy a left arm and he could stand a few more inches on his 5-7 frame Otherwise, he just about has it all

The Exeter High senior, 17, is a "straight A" student, a four-sport letterman, a musician, a pool lifeguard and a never-tiring outdoorsman. Throw in for good measure his coach's summary of "one good head, a competitor who gives everything, a leader respected by everybody

"Mark is always doing things you don't expect from a kid who is handicapped," said basketball coach Tim Wilbeck "Like against Clay Center whan an opponent was over-guarding, he just dribbled behind his back and went in for a perfect layup. You can imagine how the crowd loved that"

Within one or two notches of the Eagles' starting five, Mark sees lots of action and is shooting 57 per cent from the floor. His quickness and determination make him Wilbeck's first choice "whenever I need two minutes of real good defense."

Although weighing 120, he was rugged enough in football this year to be chosen a Pioneer all-conference defensive back. His junior year brought another top honor, designation as Exeter's all-sports "team player."

Though his one-armed prowess is probably most remarkable in basketball, Mark has been dazzling spectators in several sports for a dozen years. Bone cancer forced the amputation of his arm — including collar bone and shoulder blade — in March of 1963

According to his father, Tom, the gritty 4-year-old came home three days after surgery and "began playing almost as though nothing had happened." By second grade he was playing baseball, fielding grounders with his glove and then quickly shedding it to throw.

The fifth in a family of eight, Mark has deliberately been forced to do for himself His dexterous right hand even manages to maneuver a squirming worm onto a fish hook.

"My dad has a rule that everyone cleans his or her own fish and game, myself included," said the youth, uncomplainingly. "It's good for me to try things against the odds."

So far, he is following his father and well-known grandfather, Earl Manning, into a grain business in tiny Burress Now down to four houses, the Fillmore County minivillage is remembered for its bustling dance hall of three decades ago.

Agriculture is one of three vocations competing for the youth's future He also is giving thought to a career in either law or medicine and enrolling at the University of Nebraska, regardless of his choice in majors

For several years, he was closely watched for a recurrence of the malignancy both by family physician Dr Clarence Zimmer of Friend and specialist Dr P E Getscher of Lincoln He now takes only routine annual physicals the same as the rest of his family

With basketball and football his favorite sports he already has earned eight varsity letters and appears a cinch for two more by graduation His other participation has been in golf and track his specialties in the latter being the hurdles and triple jump

As impressive as any of his accomplishments is his attitude The modest youth shrugs off compliments like water off a duck's back

Bad as I hate to admit it, I guess the handicap does slow me down a little he said But I've tried not to let it stop me completely I'll try most anything just to prove I can do it.

'Chilled' Roses Await OSU

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Ohio State's Buckeyes, the No. 1 ranked college football team in the nation, remained a two-touchdown favorite over UCLA for Thursday's 62nd Rose Bowl game as the weather turned chilly.

Still it will be warm from Midwest viewpoints, with the temperature in the 50's and Coach Woody Hayes' Buckeyes figure to be even hotter

They're appearing in their fourth straight Rose Bowl and have lost two of the last three in the traditional postseason clashes between the champions of the Big Ten and Pacific-8

Hayes points out that in 1966, when UCLA made its last appearance in the Pasadena classic, the Bruins had lost to Michigan State 13-3 in the season opener and the Spartans came to California ranked No 1 in the nation Marshalled by All-American quarterback Gary Beban, the Bruins upset the Spartans 14-12

Ohio State soundly defeated UCLA 41-20 earlier this season, but again UCLA has a multi talented quarterback and All-American in John Sciarra as the Bruins try to duplicate 1966 and dump the undefeated Buckeyes A crowd of 106,000 and a national television audience (NBC-TV) are expected for the 2 p.m. PST kickoff

"I know UCLA is improved and our players know it," Hayes commented. "But there is no senioritis on this team. If anything they are more dedicated than before."

Heisman Trophy winner Archie Griffin, the tailback voted the nation's best collegian in both 1974 and 1975, heads the potent Buckeye offense, but he's far from alone on attack.

Quarterback Cornelius Greene was voted the outstanding player in the Rose Bowl two years ago and most outstanding in the Big Ten this campaign And fullback Pete Johnson is a battering ram who led the nation in scoring this season with 25 touchdowns Two came against UCLA.

UCLA lost only one other game during the season, an upset against Washington, and finished with an 8-2-1 record and ranks 11th nationally going into the Rose Bowl

"It will take every man playing his best to beat Ohio State," declared 39-year-old Coach Dick Vermeil, in his second season as head man for the Bruins

The 62-year-old Hayes has headed the Buckeye grid fortunes for a quarter century and appeared in the Rose Bowl on eight occasions

His first was in 1955 when the Buckeyes beat Southern California 20-7 His latest was last Jan 1, also against USC when the Trojans won 18-17 in the final minute

In 1955, the Buckeyes had a Heisman Trophy winner in their backfield, Howard "Hopalong" Cassady. This New Year s Day, Craig Cassady, son of the former great, starts in the defensive secondary. Craig had two interceptions in the Big Ten closing game against Michigan when Ohio State won 21-14 to earn the California trip

And it must be Frazier and his defensive cohorts doing their greatest job if UCLA is to pull an upset. Vermeil thinks his Bruins will score three touchdowns

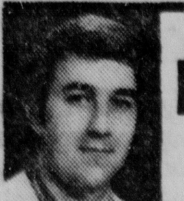
UCLA's offense ranked third in the nation averaging 432 yards a game with 329 on the ground as Sciarra spearheaded the Veer-T attack. The quarterback personally accounted for 1,907 yards with 806 running and 1,101 passing

Halfback Wendell Tyler set a UCLA single season rushing record with 1,216 yards and the Bruins have another fleet runner in Eddie Ayers Outstanding defensive lineman Randy Cross was a second team All-American and he's recovered from injuries that made him questionable earlier in the month

In his previous seven appearances in the Rose Bowl, Hayes had guided his Buckeyes to four victories against three defeats, but he's just 1-3 in his last four visits

UCLA surprised by finishing as cochampion of the Pacific-8 and won the right to represent the conference with a 28-14 triumph over California and a 25-23 final game victory over Southern California, the preseason choice.

Tournament of Roses officials estimated that the stadium attendance record of 106,869 could be better in this renewal.



It's All Outdoors

By Tom Vint
Outdoor Editor

It's a New Year!

It's a new year for the state's thousands of outdoor purists and that means renewal of hunting and fishing permits for 1976.

The fishing, hunting and combination licenses remain the same price they were last year: $4.50 for resident hunters, $8 for a combination and $4 for just fishing. Also, you can tack on the $1 Upland Game Bird Stamp for any additional hunting you want to do this year.

Hunting pressure is at an annual low this time of year with only rabbit, crow, squirrel and quail season still open for upland game pursuers. Raccoon, opossum and coyote are getting attention from fur chasers and trapping season remains open on mink, muskrat, beaver, raccoon and opossum.

Perhaps the most chilling of all the outdoor activities to help pass the winter months is ice fishing. This teeth-chattering pastime is gaining popularity, although the Game and Parks Commission says ice conditions still aren't what they'd label "extra safe" for the hole-chipping anglers.

As a preview for the ice fishing season, Pawnee Lake north of Emerald appears on top to retain its crappie title with best fishing from sundown to midnight, with small minnows the most productive bait.

Branched Oak, which gave up dozens of Master Angler northern pike awards through the ice in recent years, will be the northern fisherman's No. 1 pick, although West Twin Lake is also good. West Twin's fish won't be nearly as large, however.

Branched Oak is also the best lake for big bluegill through the ice, and, like Pawnee, will yield an occasional walleye.

Oh, Deer!

On another subject, it has been said, and I even remember it being written somewhere, that the whitetail deer is one of the most adaptable of all wildlife species.

Some even speculate this species will be the last surviving animal on the face of the earth if coyotes don't edge it out. The whitetail's adaptability, its prolific nature and its need for management controls (hunting is currently the main control) could be exemplified by this year's deer harvest in a number of midwestern states.

Missouri is the leader for deer harvest for neighbor states. This past season, over 51,000 deer were taken during the firearm season alone. Biologists say the harvest didn't put a significant dent in the state's herd.

Nebraska did okay, although weather conditions weren't favorable for hunters afield. The state's hunters took some 16,121 deer during the nine-day season, up from last year's 15,992. Over 58% of the hunters scored.

Minnesota edged Missouri in total number of deer taken, but its success percentage was only 21% to over 50 for Missourians. Minnesotans took 63,555 deer this year.

Iowans, with a new split season this year, bagged a suspected new high of the corn-fed critters for some of the best wild game eating anyone could find.

The figures appear to be staggering when totaled, especially when you can bet states like Pennsylvania, Colorado, Wyoming, Montana and probably a few others did as well or better.

Millions of deer are taken annually. Without the harvest by hunters, deer herds would multiply to the point of massive dieoffs due to starvation or disease. And the herds would soon cause tremendous depredation problems to farmers and ranchers.

Husker Women To Play Jennies

By United Press International

The Bicentennial year women's athletic season will begin Saturday when the Nebraska team faces the Jennies from Central Missouri State College.

The tip-off, featuring athletic director Bob Devaney, will be the preliminary to the men's varsity basketball game.

The team enters the new year with a 4-2 record and also a new player. Jan Zink, a senior from Sterling, will be the latest addition to the team.

Last semester, Zink was a first string starter on the Husker volleyball team which represented the region in Princeton, N.J., at the national AIAW tourney.

The tournament extended the volleyball season and prevented her from working out with the basketball team.

Alcott Named LPGA Rookie

Norwalk, Conn. (AP) — Amy Alcott, who won the Orange Blossom Classic at St. Petersburg, Fla., in her third outing, has been named rookie of the year on the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour.

The 19-year-old Miss Alcott earned $26,798, the most ever for a rookie.

1975 Termed Exciting Year

NEW YORK (AP) — Hello, 1976. Good-bye, 1975. The kid will have a hard time matching you.

You were really a beaut.

You brought us the greatest heavyweight fight of the century, the most exciting baseball World Series in decades, a Masters golf finish that will live forever in history and individual feats of transcendant grandeur.

You freed the athletic slaves and flushed out the coffers at Fort Knox to pay salaries of the super stars. You brought women's lib to full fruition in the form of a lissome tennis miss with a two-fisted backhand who won more official money than male stars in either tennis or golf.

The year's single outstanding spectacle was a tie between the third Muhammad Ali-Joe Frazier fight in Manila and the sixth game of the World Series in Boston, followed closely by Jack Nicklaus' dramatic victory over Johnny Miller and Tom Weiskopf in the Masters.

From the bare-knuckle days of John L. Sullivan to the modern "float like a butterfly, sting like a bee" syndrome, there have been many great heavyweight fights—involving Dempsey, Tunney, Joe Louis and Rocky Marciano—but none to compare with the slugging match staged by Ali and Smokin' Joe in sultry Manila on Oct. 1.

Never before in the ring had two muscled punchers of more than 200 pounds sustained such furious action for 15 rounds. It was a duel of Howitzers at two paces. Neither had a knee touch the ground. Ali won and modestly acknowledged, "Joe could have whupped any other man on earth."

The same slambang, do-or-die effort surfaced—with bats and balls instead of fists—three weeks later in the sixth game of perhaps the greatest of World Series. The Boston Red Sox finally won on Carlton Fisk's 12th-inning home run, setting up a climactic seventh game won by the Cincinnati Reds.

The largest audience in history—more than 75 million— witnessed the climactic game on television. Baseball came alive again.

Individual stars blossomed in clusters, making it difficult to pick the Athlete of the Year. How could anyone ignore Ali, the champion who came back? Rookie Fred Lynn of the Red Sox swept the MVP and Rookie awards in the American League, an accomplishment that escaped such stars as Ted Williams and Joe DiMaggio.

Fran Tarkenton of the Vikings wiped out Johnny Unitas' all-time passing marks in football and George Blanda started on his second 2,000 points in scoring. Nicklaus sank a 40-putt on the 16th hole to win the most stirring Masters, added the PGA and missed the other two events of the Grand Slam—the U. S. and British Opens—by the total margin of three strokes. He won his 16th major title and earned $298,149.17 for the year.

But even the great Nicklaus was shaded in official money winnings by tennis star Chris Evert, who collected $360,227. It was a milestone for the women's campaign to gain parity in big time sports.

There was almost as much action in the courts as on the playing fields. Peter Seitz, an arbitrator, made free agents of pitchers Catfish Hunter, Andy Messersmith and Dave McNally, striking perhaps a fatal blow at baseball's untouchable reserve clause. Federal Judge Earl R. Larson of Minneapolis delivered a similar blow to pro football by ruling the Rozelle Rule illegal.

Law suits and counter suits flourished. Athletes sued leagues. Leagues sued leagues. Leagues sued athletes. The World Football League folded. The American Basketball Association lost franchises. Lawyers got rich.

Yet with the sports picture in a state of unrest and the country in the throes of a peculiar inflation-recession bind, money flowed like heady wine.

Pele came out of retirement to sign a $4.5 million contract with the Cosmos soccer team. Catfish Hunter, given his freedom, signed for $3.75 million with the New York Yankees. Broadway Joe Namath, 32 and with a pair of gimpy knees, decided to play football two more years with the New York Jets at $450,000 a year—a record.

There were negative as well as positive aspects. The World Series was marred by controversy involving an umpire's call at home plate and the umpire, Larry Barnett, received death threats. Football owners and coaches were fined for criticizing officiating.

Death took such personalities as Casey Stengel, Avery Brundage, Ezzard Charles, auto racers Mark Donahue and Graham Hill and runner Steve Prefontaine, the great filly Ruffian and a Georgia preacher, Dallas Tarkenton, on the day his son lost a football game.

A Sports Roundup

BASKETBALL

Nebraska's Cornhuskers were picked to finish fourth in the Big Eight this season in a poll of 50 writers and broadcasters attending the 30th annual Big Eight Preseason Tournament, which Missouri won with a 79-69 win over Kansas Tuesday.

The poll's results, with total points in parentheses are: Missouri (357), Kansas State (340), Kansas (328), Nebraska (237), Oklahoma State (194), Colorado (147), Oklahoma (107) and Iowa State (54)

North Carolina, which won the Far West Classic Title in 1967, will return for the annual college tournament this year. Joining the Tarheels will be Texas A&M, Memphis State, Oral Roberts, Bowling Green and Weber State, along with hosts Oregon and Oregon State.

FOOTBALL

Charley Pell, defensive coordinator at Virginia Tech the past two seasons, will assume the same responsibilities with Clemson coach Red Parker next season.

Texas Christian's first and last All-American football players were inducted Wednesday into the Texas Sports Hall of Fame. Former Dallas Cowboy defensive tackle Bob Lilly and University of Mississippi Athletic Director Johnny Vaught, who was a 1932 All-American guard, were the honored.

Army's All-American halfback of the late 1950s, Pete Dawkins, was named as the 1975 winner of the Walter Camp football award, in commemoration of the Yale coach who developed modern collegiate football.

American Football Conference standouts Terry Bradshaw, Lydell Mitchell and Ken Anderson received a total of 13 ballots for UPI's 1975 conference player of the year award. But Buffalo's O.J. Simpson recorded 26 votes and won the honor for the third time in the last four years.

The White House announced Wednesday that President Ford telephoned Minnesota Vikings quarterback Fran Tarkenton Tuesday night to express condolescences at the death of Tarkenton's father. The Rev. Dallas Tarkenton Sr. died of a heart attack Sunday.

OTHER SPORTS

The New Jersey Supreme Court set Jan. 12 as the date for oral arguments in the Hurricane Carter triple murder case. Carter and codefendant John Artis are seeking a new trial on their convictions for three 1966 killings based on claims of new evidence and improper prosecuting procedure.

Working agreements between nearly 300 mutuel clerks at Ohio's Thistledown Race Track and Northfield Park expired at midnight Wednesday. Both tracks had been scheduled to open Thursday. The clerks plan to vote on new contract offers Thursday.

The Detroit Tigers and the Minnesota Twins will start the regular and secondary phases, respectively, of the major league's 11th annual winter free-agent draft next Wednesday.

Chicago coach Billy Reay, whose Black Hawks will confront the Red Wings of Russia next Wednesday at Chicago, calls the two touring Soviet hockey teams "for real" and says their 44 players "must be considered among the greatest players in the world."

Curt Gowdy, who was eased out of next season's NBC baseball telecasts, will join the ABC Winter Olympics crew at Innsbruck, an ABC spokesman announced Wednesday.

IOC's Killanin Eyes World Sportsmanship

LONDON (AP) — Lord Killanin, the quiet president of the International Olympic Committee, looked beyond he construction crisis in Montreal and appealed Wednesday for sportsmanship throughout the world in a message prepared for the Olympic year.

He made no mention of Montreal's labor pains—construction delays which threaten the opening of the Summer Olympics next July.

Instead the 61-year-old Irishman called for an end to political and racial prejudice in sport and for adherence to the Olympic principles. These are problems which could become serious in 1976—both at the Winter Games at Innsbruck in February and the Summer Games at Montreal.

In his prepared Olympic message, Killanin said:

"As we enter 1976, the year of the 21st Olympiad, I should like to take this opportunity of extending my best wishes to the athletes of the whole world, the international federations, the national Olympic committees and the organizing committees of the Summer and Winter Games, who all have greater responsibilities this year.

"However, I send this message not only to the athletes who may find themselves selected for the games, but also to all, whether young or old, who are interested in sport at all levels, in an effort to find a common denominator which overrides political, religious and racial borders in the modern world.

"On behalf of the International Olympic Committee I appeal to all competitors and officials at Montreal and Innsbruck to support the Olympic principles and rules."

The message was characteristic of Killanin, who has brought his own brand of quiet diplomacy to the leadership of the Olympic movement.

IOC members say the former president, the late Avery Brundage, would by now have been cracking the whip and shouting at organizers in Montreal for all the world to see and hear.

But Killanin believes in preserving a low profile and confines his clashes with Montreal to telephone calls and Telex exchanges. He has had plenty to say to Montreal behind the scenes these last two months, when the Quebec provincial government took the Olympic building projects out of the hands of Montreal's Mayor Jean Drapeau and severely trimmed the building program in a bid to be ready for the games at all.

Nevertheless, the president's New Year's message touched on points that could grow into nightmares before Olympic year is over.

There is scarcely a member of the IOC who is not worried about political troubles intruding into the 1976 Olympics.

Four years ago, on the eve of the Games in Munich, a crisis developed over Rhodesia competing. All the black African countries threatened to walk out of the Games.

The situation was saved at the expense of Rhodesia's exclusion at the last minute, but many members were unhappy. They felt the Olympic principle of sport in the cause of friendship had been violated.

Bethel Wins Chadron Meet

Chadron (AP) — An 11 for 12 free throw line performance by J. C. Evans helped pace Bethel College of Kansas Wednesday night as it downed Northern Montana 76-67 to capture the Chadron State College holiday basketball tournament championship.

Evans captured top scoring honors with 26 points as the Threshers held a persistent edge over the Northern Lights. Bethel led 43-35 at halftime. Tony Coleman provided 17 points for the Northern Lights, with Butch Marshall adding 16.

In consolation matches, Concordia of Minnesota outscored Chadron State College 21-4 from the foul line to defeat the Eagles 85-62 for third place.

Scott Gardner laid in his 21st and 22nd points at the buzzer to give Black Hills State College a 57-55 victory over Colorado Mines for fifth place.

Mt. Marty College won seventh place with a 76-71 win over Concordia College.

Concordia's Norm Roth scored 29 for the Bulldogs, followed by 15 each from Bill Ricketts and Byron Jones.

Concordia led 43-38 at the half.

Mt. Marty's record stands at 2-11, while Concordia falls to 1-10.

Bryant: Bowl Victory Long Time In Coming

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — "This victory has been a long time coming and it's a real sweet one," said Alabama football coach Bear Bryant shortly after his Crimson Tide had given him his first bowl victory since 1967 with a 13-6 triumph over Penn State in the Sugar Bowl Wednesday night.

Since a 34-7 trouncing of Nebraska in 1967, the Tide has been 0-7-1 in post-season action.

"We beat a great football team," Bryant said. "I told coach Joe Paterno after the game that I'm glad we don't have to prepare for him in another week. They did one terrific job defensing us."

Penn State stifled Alabama's wishbone offense for three quarters but couldn't cope with the passing of quarterback Richard Todd. Todd set up an early field goal with a 54-yard pass and a second half touchdown with a 55-yard aerial.

Todd called a time out and went to the sidelines just before he launched the bomb that set up Mike Stock's scoring sweep—the only touchdown of the game.

"Coach Bryant said for him just to take off," said Todd, meaning the coach had called a pass play. "I just smiled and said 'OK.' "

Bryant sipped a soda in a steamy interview room just off the showers in the lower levels of the Superdome.

Bryant evaded references to the fact that some 30 of his players missed curfew at one time or another during the week before the game.

However, he reshuffled his starting lineup, moving three curfew breakers into a reserve capacity.

One of those moved up to a starting role was defensvie back Mark Prudhomme who intercepted a pass inside the five-yard line to kill a Penn State drive.

"I'd have been embarrassed if he had caught it," said Prudhomme.

His interception was not as easy as he made it sound. He shared possession of the football with the Penn State receiver until he yanked it free.

Meanwhile, "we felt we needed a break and they didn't give us one," said Penn State Coach Joe Paterno.

"The biggest thing was that Alabama made no mistakes," he said. "A turnover in one or two places and it might have been different."

Alabama had been 13-point favorite over the Nittany Lions, a match involving two defensive teams with the Crimson Tide holding a decisive advantage offensively.

But Paterno, who has a history of getting his team ready to play bowl games, said of his offensive unit:

"We were a little ragged in the first half at times. But generally I thought we played as well as we could, considering the type of personnel we have on our offensive unit."

The Nittany Lions trailed 3-0 at halftime, earned a 3-3 tie on Chris Bahr's field goal in the third quarter, but then fell behind for good when Alabama's Richard Todd set up a touchdown with a 55-yard pass to Ozzie Newsome at the Penn State 11.

The play carried over freshman Billy Crummy, pressed into service when starter Tom Odell left with a rib injury on the last play of the first quarter.

"The freshman took the bite and the kid was open," Paterno said. "It was a tough spot, but he'll learn from it."

Smith Resigns SMU Position

Dave Smith
Resigns Post

DALLAS (AP) — Dave Smith resigned under pressure Tuesday night after three turbulent seasons as head football coach at Southern Methodist University, which included probation because of a dollars-for-tackles program.

SMU was slapped with a two-year probation by the National Collegiate Athletic Association for giving cash to specialty team members during the 1973 season. The school's probation had been scheduled to be lifted Jan. 7, 1976. However, SMU was summoned before the NCAA Committee on Infractions Dec. 17 to answer new allegations regarding recruiting.

Smith, who had compiled a 16-15-2 record after succeeding Hayden Fry, had two years left on his contract. Athletic Director Dick Davis and associate directors Jim Brock and Louis Mann were retained.

Davis said the departure of Smith did not involve the current NCAA investigation of SMU, adding that Smith has "-been under considerable pressure for a lengthy period of time. I don't mean from the university or anything, but there have been a lot of problems."

Davis said Dr. James Zumberge, SMU president, said, "The resignation of Coach Smith and its acceptance by the university are the results of an overall review of the situation by all concerned. The mutual decision is based on an agreement in which SMU will honor its present contractual agreement with Coach Smith, which runs through 1977."

Smith released a prepared statement, saying, "I leave this great institution with mixed emotions. I am extremely proud of the progress of the SMU football program during the past three years I have served as head coach. Thanks to the dedication and the work of a great staff of assistants, we have seen the football program upgraded and become much stronger under sometimes extremely difficult circumstances.

"The fact that we had a winning record over the three-year period is also a tribute to the tremendously fine young men it was my privilege to be associated with on the field of play.

"I am hopeful the wholesome and prideful football program my staff and I have worked so hard to attain will be continued."

Smith, who came to SMU from Oklahoma State, was a former assistant at SMU under Fry, now head coach at North Texas State.

Saints Fail To Meet Payroll

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — The Minnesota Fighting Saints of the World Hockey Association failed to meet their $140,000 semi-monthly payroll Wednesday. But the club avoided folding when its players voted to keep playing without pay while attempts to raise new funds continued.

The Fighting Saints, who have lost $4.9 million in the last three years, had to borrow $200,000 to meet the two previous payrolls. This time, they were unable to produce the needed funds and would have folded without the agreement of their players to forego pay and keep playing.

Team captain Ted Hampson, appearing at a news conference here, said, "We believe in the potential of this franchise and would like to grow with the team and the community. We expect to be here for the rest of this year . . . or as long as it takes.

"Therefore, in spite of the fact that we did not receive our paychecks today, and don't know the prospect of future pay, we intend to continue playing as we work out our financial problems," he said.

Team president Wayne Belisle, appearing with Hampson, would not say when he thought the club could raise the money it needs. But he said, "I feel that we are very close to turning the financial situation around. Our attendance is up, the team is playing exciting hockey. But without the vote of support of the players today, there wouldn't be a franchise in St. Paul tomorrow."

Belisle did not say how much money is needed to keep the club in business.

Hogs Seek Top 10 Rating Against Georgia

DALLAS (AP) — Arkansas was a touchdown favorite over Georgia in the 40th Cotton Bowl Classic New Year's Day with little at stake but pride and a chance to jump into the Top 10 in the final college football rankings.

The 18th-ranked Arkansas Razorbacks and their strong running game and "Swarming Red Ant" defense joust the 12th-ranked Bulldogs, who rallied around brilliant broken field runner Glynn Harrison and their "Junkyard Dog" defense.

Both teams battled longshot odds on the path to the Cotton Bowl.

Arkansas shocked then second-ranked Texas A&M 31-6 on Dec. 6 to throw the Southwest Conference championship in a three-way tie with the Aggies and Texas Longhorns. Arkansas got the Cotton Bowl berth because they hadn't played in the classic since 1966.

Georgia began the year picked for the Southeast Conference's second division but tied for runnerup. Each team brings a 9-2 record into the game which is expected to draw a sellout crowd of 72,000 for the 1 p.m. CST nationally televised kickoff.

Georgia was at least the Cotton Bowl's third choice as a guest team. Notre Dame and Southern California were being strongly considered but both suffered losses on bowl picking Saturday in November.

Cotton Bowl officials were on hand to extend an invitation to the Fighting Irish but Notre Dame was beaten by Pittsburgh.

Georgia was invited the next day over the telephone without the Cotton Bowl officials ever seeing the Bulldogs play in person.

"We have a lot of incentive going into this game because we know a lot of people don't think we should be here," said Harrison.

Coach Vince Dooley, who saw his Bulldogs drop the Tangerine Bowl to Miami of Ohio last year, worked his team hard in preparing for the Razorbacks.

"We don't want a repeat of last year," said Dooley.

Harrison was more candid: "We neglected practice and it cost us."

Arkansas also feels it has something to prove.

"There's some talk we backed into the Cotton Bowl but we beat some mighty fine football teams to get here," said Arkansas Coach Frank Broyles. "The last poll is the one that counts. I think we're a football team that can play with anybody in America."

"A lot has been written about how we backed into the Cotton Bowl and I think it will definitely be an incentive," said Dooley.

Besides "outcast" tags, the teams bear other similarities. Both rely on quick, gambling defenses and ground-oriented defenses with strong-running quarterbacks at the helm.

Ray Goff, Georgia's steady quarterback, expects a lot of points on the board.

"I think we're going to score 20 or more," said Goff.

Arkansas quarterback Scott Bull predicts flatly "I don't see anyway Georgia can stop our running game."

Senior Ike Forte, bothered by dislocated toes, freshman Michael Forrest, and steady Rolland Fuchs give the Razorbacks some runners who can cover the real estate.

"I don't care if they move the ball because we always come up with the big play when we need it," said Bulldog safety Bill Krug.

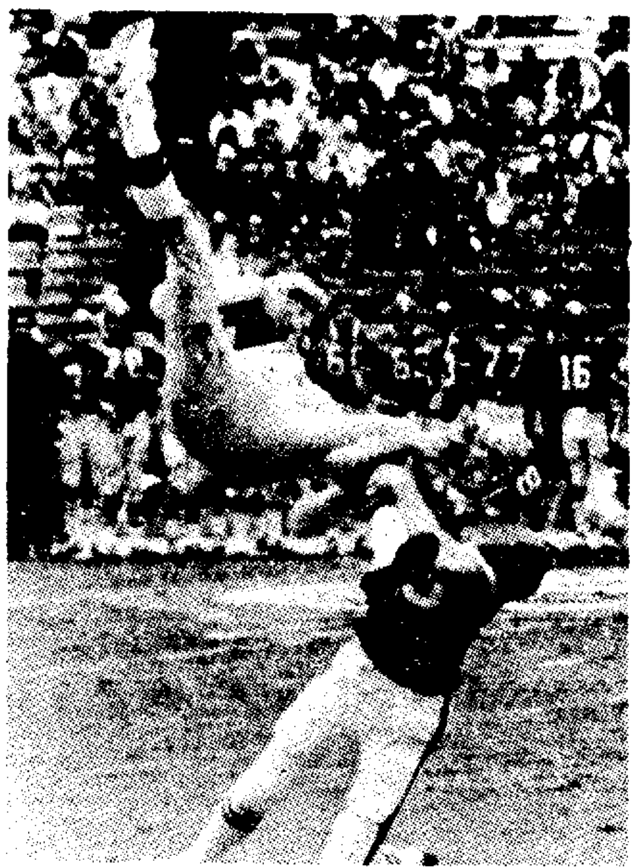
'Mud Passing Attack' Sparks West Virginia

ATLANTA (AP) — "We have a good mud passing attack," said West Virginia Coach Bobby Bowden after his Mountaineers scored on a pair of touchdown bombs to defeat North Carolina State 13-10 Wednesday in the eighth annual Peach Bowl college football game.

Quarterback Dan Kendra lofted scoring strikes of 39 yards to running back Arthur Owens and 50 yards to 6-foot-6 split end Scott MacDonald on a field only partially dried after hours of steady rain to give the Mountaineers, primarily a running team, the victory.

"The mud helped neutralize their secondary," Bowden said.

"I'm shellshocked," said Lou Holtz, head coach of the Wolfpack. "I was surprised they threw as much as they did, but we were stopping their running plays."



AP

West Virginia's Scott MacDonald (84) is hit hard while going high for a pass in the Peach Bowl. Making the play for North Carolina State is Dave Roberts.

Bowden said Kendra's first touchdown toss was the turning point of the game. The Wolfpack was leading 10-0 and threatening to run away from the slightly underdog Mountaineers when Kendra connected on a pass to Owens as the final seconds of the first half ticked away. Owens outraced defensive back Ralph Stringer down the left sideline, took the pass at the one and stepped across the goal with no time left in the half.

The second touchdown toss by Kendra, who completed 12 of 28 passes for 202 yards, came midway in the fourth quarter.

MacDonald, who caught five passes for 110 yards and a touchdown, leaped up between several defenders to snare the pass, bobbled the ball for several steps and then raced the final 20 yards touched only by Eddie Poole, who made a futile desperation dive at the 10.

Ricky Adams went over from the one the first time N. C. State had the ball to cap a 73-yard drive and put the Wolfpack ahead until midway in the final quarter. The drive was keyed by Dave Buckey's 17-yard pass to his twin brother, Don Buckey.

Jerry Scherrill added a 21-yard field goal for the Wolfpack in the second quarter.

Also in the second quarter, the Mountaineers moved from their own 23 to the Wolfpack 19 where Bill McKenzie missed wide to the left on a 35-yard field goal attempt.

Kendra, selected the game's most valuable offensive player, completed 12 of 28 passes for 202 yards. N.C. State's Ted Brown was the game's leading rusher with 159 yards on 29 carries.

The game was a replay of the 1972 Peach Bowl battle won by N.C. State, 49-13.

Top Ten Athletes Selected

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Two Ohio State athletes and one each from Southern Cal, UCLA and Augustana of South Dakota have been selected for the 1975 College Athletics' Top Ten by the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

The NCAA's top 10 is rounded out by five standout college performers who completed their eligibility 25 years ago.

The NCAA said Wednesday that the awards for college athletes who performed during 1975 will be presented to football running back Archie Griffin and diver Tim Moore of Ohio State; Marvin Cobb, baseball and football, Southern Cal; Bruce Hamming, basketball, Augustana, and John Sciarra, football, UCLA.

Named for silver anniversary honors were: Wade R. Stinson, Kansas football, now president of the United Missouri Bank of St. Louis; Napoleon A. Bell, Mount Union football and track, now a Columbus, Ohio, lawyer; Ernest J. Curtis, Vanderbilt football and basketball, now corporate marketing manager for International Paper Co. in Chicago; Samuel H. Greenwalt, Pennsylvania football and squash, now executive vice president of Michigan National Bank in Detroit, and Ross J. Pritchard, Arkansas football and track, now president of Arkansas State University.

The Top Ten athletes will be honored at a banquet Jan. 16 in St. Louis during the NCAA's 70th annual convention.

Tax Lien Filed Against Spurs

Denver (AP) — Denver officials have filed a $47,334 tax lien against the Denver Spurs to recover part of $80,000 the city says the World Hockey Association team owes for "seat taxes."

A report by Auditor John Dee shows that the team owes a total of $80,275 for the season as of Nov. 30, but the report includes no data for December.

The lien was filed by Howard Davey, supervisor of sales and occupational taxes, after the Spurs failed to respond to a notice that the team was delinquent on the taxes.

He said the taxes had been collected from ticket holders but had not been forwarded to the city, as the law requires.

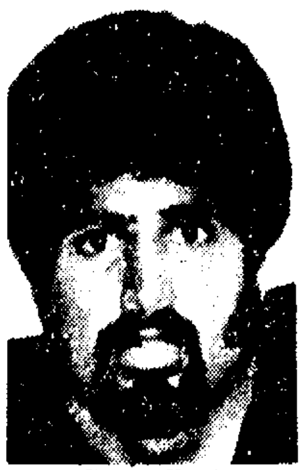
Harris Paces Pittsburgh's Attack

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pittsburgh's Franco Harris rushed for 111 yards in last year's American Conference championship game against Oakland, a big reason why the Steelers defeated the Raiders.

In all, the Steelers picked up 224 yards on the ground while holding the Raiders to a meager 29.

Oakland obviously will try to change things Sunday when the two teams meet in a repeat performance of the AFC championship, and to do that they'll have to stop Harris.

Since mid-season, Harris has been averaging 118 yards per game. During the regular season he gained 1,246 yards, second only to O.J. Simpson, and scored 10 touchdowns along the way.



Franco Harris
Steeler Standout

But the Steelers figure they have a similar challenge with the Raiders running attack.

"We have to stop that running," says Steeler linebacker Andy Russell. "We can't allow them to run. And we have to put some heat on Ken Stabler. And we have to keep Cliff Branch and Fred Bilentnikoff from getting too open. And we have to play great on the special teams."

The game will be Pittsburgh's third in four years in the conference title game and the third straight for the Raiders.

The Steelers had to come from behind with three fourth-quarter touchdowns to win 24-13 in Oakland last year.

The Raiders have never won a postseason game outside of Oakland, losing five times, including once in Pittsburgh in 1972 on Franco Harris'miracle catch with five seconds left.

Oakland Coach John Madden says he knows what the Raiders are up against Sunday at Three Rivers Stadium.

"They're just good at everything — strong and explosive," he said. "And they've got everything going for them — an extra day's rest and playing back there."

Madden acknowledges that he's apprehensive.

"It boils down to who plays the best that day," he said. "We both have the capacity to beat each other. You just hope to hell you're playing well that day."

"It's a big guessing game. Out there two years ago, they kept us off balance and beat us. Threw a lot on first down. Threw underneath when we all dropped back into the deep coverages."

But when it's all over, perhaps the one thing which will stand out again is the rushing statistics.

IRS Employes Human; They Make Mistakes

By JANE BRYANT QUINN

Jane Bryant Quinn

New York — The Internal Revenue Service sometimes makes mistakes on the tax advice they give to people. "They're human, like everyone else," says Don J. Summa, managing partner of the Newark, N.J. office of the accounting firm Arthur Young and Co. "They might give you the right answer. On the other hand, you could get someone who isn't well acquainted with the aspect of the law you've asked about, or who hasn't understood all the facets of the question."

That's just what happened to me last week. In double-checking a question about Individual Retirement Accounts with the Internal Revenue Service in Washington, I asked exactly when the IRA contribution had to be made for it to be tax-deductible this year.

The IRS's Wilson Fadely, whose job is to answer questions like that from people like me, told me the contribution didn't have to be made until the tax return was due. That's how it works with Keogh plans for the self-employed. You may choose to establish your total income for the year before making the Keogh contribution, so you'll know exactly how much you're allowed to put in. I reported this in a recent column.

"But it doesn't work that way with IRAs," an embarrassed Mr. Fadely now tells me. With IRAs, you have to have your contribution in by the end of the year to make it tax-deductible. If you make too large a contribution, there's a penalty of 6% on the excess. The IRS is now working on a regulation that provides a method for withdrawing any inadvertent excess, as required by law.

Unfair To IRA-Holders

It is unfair to some IRA-holders to make them put their contribution in by yearend. Those of you who get regular paychecks can accurately anticipate your income and make the proper contribution (up to 15% of earnings, with a cap on contributions of $1,500). But many of you have income that is irregular, depending on fees, commissions, and partnership distributions. You may not know by the last week in December exactly what your earned income will be. Therefore, you can't be sure exactly how much you can set aside for your IRA.

People with Keogh plans (who are often wealthier than people who set up IRAs) are permitted to wait until tax time before making their contribution. Those of you with IRAs should be allowed the same consideration — but it's going to take an act of Congress to get it for you.

Being misled by the Internal Revenue Service is a real problem for taxpayers as well as reporters. The tax laws are complex, and many of the people who answer questions and fill in tax returns are not as well-trained as you might believe.

To study its own performance, IRS agents go incognito to offices in various cities, carrying a specific set of tax problems to be entered on a return. The problems always include deductions not considered run-of-the-mill, like, for example, moving expenses. In 1974, the IRS gave incorrect advice on 87% of the test returns; in 1975, the error rate was 72%.

As part of its Taxpayer Compliance Measurement Program, the IRS monitors hundreds of thousands of tax returns, and singles out the error rate for all preparers. In 1971, the last year for which this data has been published, IRS preparers made technical errors on 74% of the returns that itemized deductions. On tax returns that used the standard deduction but had some special wrinkle, like income from a source other than wages, the IRS's error rate was 15%. The combined error rate was 55%.

By contrast, commercial preparers and similar tax assistants had an overall error rate of 71%; public accountants, 69%; lawyers, 66%; and certified public accountants, 62%.

So what is the beleaguered taxpayer to do? Summa advises that if your tax return includes deductions that are in any way out of the ordinary, don't go by the IRS's word alone. Depending on your income and the amount of money in question, you should also consult a tax preparer (ask for the most senior person in the office), tax attorney or a certified public accountant.

Stock Mart's Annual Gain Was Biggest In 21 Years

New York (AP) — The beleaguered stock market, encouraged by the economy's effort to recover from the recession, rallied in 1975 to record its best annual gain in 21 years.

But at yearend it still had a great deal left to do to repair all the damage of the 1973-74 bear market.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks finished the year at 852.41, up 236.17 from its 1974 close. Thus it just managed to recoup its 1974 loss of 234.62 points.

According to calculations by Ken Ward at Reynolds Securities, that represented the largest yearly point gain for the popular measure of market trends.

The percentage gain of slightly less than 40 per cent posted by the Dow was its third best on record, surpassed by a 44 per cent rise in 1954 and a 67 per cent jump in 1933.

"The size of the gain of course reflects an extremely low starting point," observed Heinz H. Biel, a Wall Street veteran with the firm of Hoppin, Watson Inc. "If you look at it over the longer term, the market now is no higher than it was several years ago."

And it was still a painful distance from its closing peak of 1,051.70 reached on Jan. 11, 1973.

That fact was all too clear to investors in a major stock like General Motors. In the high 50s late in December, the stock had doubled from its late-1974 low, but was still down severely from the 113¾ level it reached a decade ago.

The year split almost evenly into two parts for the market — a booming first half which culminated in a peak closing reading in the Dow of 881.81 on July 15, and a drab second half in which it never reached that height again.

In the first half of the year, noted Raymond F. DeVoe Jr. at Spencer, Trask & Co., "the market was accurately forecasting a turn in the economy from recession to recovery.

"But the market always has a way of overdoing things, and it got way ahead of itself and became vulnerable to the problems that are bound to come up."

The key problem this time, analysts generally agreed, was New York City's brush with financial collapse. This produced a series of showdowns with default that kept the market off-balance for most of the autumn.

Thus, despite two major positive influences — a reduced rate of inflation and interest rates sharply below their record levels of 1974 — any investors who missed the upsurge in prices in the first quarter had a tough assignment making many profits from the market during the year.

"We've had so many traumas in the last few years — Watergate, the oil embargo, and so on — that it's led people to be very nervous about staying in the market too long," said DeVoe.

Thanks largely to the hectic rally in the first few months, New York Stock Exchange trading volume easily surpassed the previous annual record of 4.14 billion shares set in 1972, reaching an estimated total of 4.7 billion.

Seven times in the first quarter daily volume topped the 30-million-share mark — something it had done only once before, in August of 1971 when then-President Nixon announced a new economic program that included a freeze on wages and prices.

A new daily standard of 35.16 million shares was established on Feb. 13. That heavy volume, combined with rising stock prices, brought some impressive profits for brokers, who had been struggling against their own private recession for several years.

But Wall Streeters were something less than exultant, facing as they were a new set of competitive pressures brought on by the opening up of full price competition in the industry.

Starting May 1, when the Securities and Exchange Commission ordered that the previous fixed commission schedule on most transactions be dissolved, brokers embarked on a free-swinging price war for the business of their biggest customers, the investing institutions.

At yearend it still remained to be seen whether the new competitive pressures would prompt the rush of brokerage house liquidations and mergers that some had predicted.

Much less in doubt was another troublesome issue for both the securities industry and the market itself — the disenchantment of the individual investor.

An NYSE study out in early November found a shrinkage in the number of individuals owning stock from 30.85 million in early 1970 to 25.21 million as of mid-1975.

Over the same period, according to the NYSE, the average age of shareholders climbed from 48 to 53.

That suggested a particularly glaring gap between Wall Street and the younger people of the nation, who would seem to hold a big part of the market's future in their hands.

Firm Will Continue Storz Beer

Omaha (AP) — Storz beer will continue to be brewed by the company that has purchased Grain Belt Brewers, Inc., of Minneapolis, it was announced here.

Russell Cleary, president of the G. Heileman Brewing Co. of La Crosse, Wis., had announced earlier that his firm would purchase the Grain Belt brands and other Grain Belt assets. Grain Belt's Minneapolis brewery will be closed.

Grain Belt took over operation of the Storz Brewery in 1967 from a group of Iowa investors who purchased it from the Storz family in 1966.

"We plan to keep the Storz brand alive," said Cleary, adding that beer will be produced at Heileman breweries in St. Paul, Minn., and La Crosse, Wis., and sold through the same wholesalers who handled it for Grain Belt.

Church Sets Hild Exhibit

An exhibit of watercolors and mixed media drawings done by Glenn Hild will open Saturday at First-Plymouth Congregational Church, 20th and D.

Hild, a graduate student at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, was the Vreeland Award winner in 1975.

The exhibit will run through Jan. 26.

Stock Market Drifts Higher, Ends Mixed

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market moved ahead unevenly Wednesday in a drifting session that concluded its best year's showing in two decades.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials settled for a close of 852.41, unchanged on the day. But other market measures showed a considerably brighter picture.

In the over-all count on the New York Stock Exchange, for example, advances outnumbered declines 1,154 to 363 among the 1,885 issues traded.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index rose .42 to 90.19, and the NYSE's composite index climbed .27 to 47.64.

Big Board volume was a moderate 16.97 shares, up just a little from Tuesday's total of 16.04 million.

The Dow wound up the year with a net gain of 236.17 points, which just managed to offset 1974's drop of 234.62, and at the same time represented the average's biggest annual point gain on record.

The upsurge, nearly all of which came early in the year, translated into a 38.3 per cent gain. According to statistics provided by Ken Ward of Reynolds Securities, that percentage showing ranked third on the all-time list, behind 44 per cent rise in 1954 and a 67 per cent jump in 1933.

Investors seemed preoccupied during the day with last-minute maneuvering for tax and other reasons before the end of the year, and the market showed little response to any economic news.

There was no noticeable pick-up in selling, for instance, when the Commerce Department reported that orders received by the nation's manufacturers had declined in November while factory inventories rose.

Brokers pointed out that the wide spread between advances and declines seemed partly to reflect bargaining hunting in a wide range of secondary issues, a number of which had been depressed by yearend tax selling.

Typical issues which appeared to be rebounding from tax-loss selling included G.D. Searle, up ⅛ at 15⅛; Chrysler, ahead ¼ at 10⅛, and Louisiana-Pacific, ⅜ higher at 12¼.

Ryder System was the Big Board volume leader, up ⅜ at 9¼ in trading marked by several medium-sized blocks.

The company said it knew of no explanation for the heavy activity in its shares, which carried them to a new high for the year of 9½ during the day.

Missouri River Shipping Tops 2 Million Tons

By United Press International

Omaha (UPI) — Commercial shipments on the Missouri River exceeded 2,000,000 tons during the 1975 shipping season, marking the 13th time that has happened in the last 15 years, the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers said Wednesday.

However, the total of 2,327,765 tons was 9.87% below last year's 2,582,799 tons.

The record year was 1971 when 2,791,929 tons were carried on the Missouri.

The corps said annual totals did not include about 4,000,000 tons of sand, gravel, crushed rock and other materials used in waterway improvements and other regional construction.

Upstream tonnage for this year was 1,010,961 carried in 793 barges, compared to 1,316,804 tons carried downstream in 1,115 barges.

Farm products — corn, wheat, sorghum and soybeans — were the major commodity, the corps said. They accounted for more than 830,000 downbound tons.

Ranking second were chemicals and related products with a total in excess of 466,000 tons, most of it shipped upstream. Food and related products were a close third with almost 460,000 tons, 62% headed downstream.

Beatrice Sun Sold To Stauffer

Topeka, Kan. (AP) — Stauffer Publications Inc., Topeka, announced Wednesday purchase of the Beatrice, Neb., Daily Sun from Robert S. and George P. Marvin, owners and copublishers of the 11,000-circulation newspaper.

No purchase price was announced.

The Daily Sun becomes Stauffer Publications' third Nebraska daily newspaper. The company owns 14 other daily papers, five radio stations, one television station and a regional weekly newspaper in eight Midwestern states.

The announcement said Kent R. Thomas, 44, editor and publisher of the Stauffer-owned York, Neb., News-Times for the past nine years, would be publisher of the Daily Sun.

Robert J. Marvin will continue as managing editor of the Sun under the new ownership, the announcement said.

Succeeding Thomas as general manager of the York newspaper will be Donald I. Gillen, 48, news editor of that paper more than six years.

The Beatrice paper was founded by the Marvin brothers' grandfather, G. P. Marvin, and was published for many years by the founder's son, E. M. Marvin.

Thomas, a native of Salina, Kan., and a 1957 graduate of the University of Kansas William Allen White School of Journalism, is a director of the Nebraska Press Assn. and a past president of the Nebraska Associated Press Managing Editors Assn. and the Nebraska Outstate Daily Publishers Assn.

Gillen is a graduate of the University of Nebraska School of Journalism and was a News-Times reporter in the early 1950s.

Also effective Jan. 1 is appointment of A. Hubert Foster from advertising manager to business manager of the News-Times. Foster, 58, is a native of York, Neb.

Barrow, Gilt Prices Climb

Omaha, Neb. (AP) — Barrows and gilts were moderately active at prices 50 cents to $1.00 higher on the Omaha Livestock Market Wednesday.

With 2,500 hogs on offer, a large share of 200-250 lb offerings were $1.00 higher.

U.S. 1-3s weighing 195-230 lb sold for $49.00-49.50. Sows were 50 to 75 cents higher, with 325-600 lb offerings bringing $39.25-39.50.

A few loads of steers and very small receipts of heifers were mostly steady Wednesday. With 1,000 cattle and calves on offer utility and commercial cows were moderately active at steady prices. Canners and cutters sold rather slow at steady to 50 cent lower tickets.

Choice 1,050-1,250 lb steers brought $44.00-45.25; mixed good and choice offerings rang up $43.00-44.00. A few lots of choice 850-1,000 lb heifers sold for $42.00-43.00. Utility and commercial cows brought $22.00-25.00, with a few at $25.50-26.00.

An offering of 50 sheep was not enough for an adequate market test.

The market estimates receipt Friday of 1,300 cattle and calves, including 1,000 feeders; 2,500 hogs, and no sheep.

Time-Life Books Considers Move From New York

NEW HAVEN (AP) — A spokesman for Time-Life Books says the company is considering moving its New York City operation to New Haven sometime in 1977.

An official of Time-Life-Books, a division of Time, Inc., said New Haven and San Francisco are two sites the publishing firm is considering to save money.

New Haven city planning officials accompanied Mrs. Joan Manley, president of Time-Life Books, on a recent inspection of downtown office sites, according to officials.

The move would involve some 300 editorial employes now based in the Time-Life Building in Rockefeller Center but would not involve printing functions.

Author's Wife Asks Divorce

Los Angeles (AP) — Mickey Spillane, author of a series of detective novels, has been sued for divorce by his actress wife, Shari.

In the Los Angeles Superior Court suit, Mrs. Spillane cited irreconcilable differences as the reason for seeking an end to her 11-year marriage to the 57-year-old author.

Grain, Soybean Prices Higher

Chicago (AP) — Grain and soybean prices moved higher on the Chicago Board of Trade Wednesday.

After an uncertain opening, wheat futures advanced steadily during the day and closed in a 2 to 5 cent a bushel range higher.

Corn was up by about the same amount.

Sources said both commodities appeared to have been affected by some talk of a possible threat of the world market losing access to Argentine grains. There also were reports of some modest export activity in wheat.

Soybean futures also closed stronger in the abbreviated New Year's Eve session. Soybean oil was about steady while meal prices were mixed.

Iced broilers declined in price.

At the close, wheat was 2¼ to 5 cents a bushel higher, March 3.36; corn was 1¼ to 4½ higher, March 2.61½; oats were ¾ to 1½ higher, March 1.46 and soybeans were 1 to 3 higher, January 4.49.

It's All Outdoors

By Tom Vint
Outdoor Editor

It's a New Year!

It's a new year for the state's thousands of outdoor purists and that means renewal of hunting and fishing permits for 1976

The fishing hunting and combination licenses remain the same price they were last year $4 50 for resident hunters $8 for a combination and $4 for just fishing Also, you can tack on the $1 Upland Game Bird Stamp for any additional hunting you want to do this year

Hunting pressure is at an annual low this time of year with only rabbit crow squirrel and quail season still open for upland game pursuers Raccoon, opossum and coyote are getting attention from fur chasers and trapping season remains open on mink, muskrat, beaver, raccoon and opossum

Perhaps the most chilling of all the outdoor activities to help pass the winter months is ice fishing. This teeth-chattering pastime is gaining popularity, although the Game and Parks Commission says ice conditions still aren't what they'd label "extra safe" for the hole-chipping anglers.

As a preview for the ice fishing season, Pawnee Lake north of Emerald appears on top to retain its crappie title with best fishing from sundown to midnight, with small minnows the most productive bait

Branched Oak which gave up dozens of Master Angler northern pike awards through the ice in recent years, will be the northern fisherman s No 1 pick, although West Twin Lake is also good West Twin's fish won't be nearly as large, however

Branched Oak is also the best lake for big bluegill through the ice, and, like Pawnee, will yield an occasional walleye

Oh, Deer!

On another subject, it has been said, and I even remember it being written somewhere that the whitetail deer is one of the most adaptable of all wildlife species

Some even speculate this species will be the last surviving animal on the face of the earth if coyotes don't edge it out. The whitetail s adaptability, its prolific nature and its need for management controls (hunting is currently the main control) could be exemplified by this year's deer harvest in a number of midwestern states.

Missouri is the leader for deer harvest for neighbor states This past season, over 51,000 deer were taken during the firearm season alone Biologists say the harvest didn't put a significant dent in the state's herd

Nebraska did okay, although weather conditions weren't favorable for hunters afield. The state's hunters took some 16,121 deer during the nine-day season, up from last year's 15,992. Over 58% of the hunters scored.

Minnesota edged Missouri in total number of deer taken, but its success percentage was only 21% to over 50 for Missourians Minnesotans took 63,555 deer this year

Iowans, with a new split season this year, bagged a suspected new high of the corn-fed critters for some of the best wild game eating anyone could find.

The figures appear to be staggering when totaled, especially when you can bet states like Pennsylvania, Colorado, Wyoming, Montana and probably a few others did as well or better

Millions of deer are taken annually. Without the harvest by hunters, deer herds would multiply to the point of massive dieoffs due to starvation or disease And the herds would soon cause tremendous depredation problems to farmers and ranchers

Husker Women To Play Jennies

By United Press International

The Bicentennial year women's athletic season will begin Saturday when the Nebraska team faces the Jennies from Central Missouri State College

The tip-off, featuring athletic director Bob Devaney, will be the preliminary to the men's varsity basketball game

The team enters the new year with a 4-2 record and also a new player Jan Zink, a senior from Sterling, will be the latest addition to the team

Last semester, Zink was a first string starter on the Husker volleyball team which represented the region in Princeton, N J , at the national AIAW tourney

The tournament extended the volleyball season and prevented her from working out with the basketball team

Alcott Named LPGA Rookie

Norwalk Conn (AP) — Amy Alcott, who won the Orange Blossom Classic at St Petersburg, Fla , in her third outing, has been named rookie of the year on the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour

The 19-year-old Miss Alcott earned $26,798, the most ever for a rookie

1975 Termed Exciting Year

NEW YORK (AP) — Hello, 1976 Good-bye, 1975 The kid will have a hard time matching you

You were really a beaut

You brought us the greatest heavyweight fight of the century, the most exciting baseball World Series in decades, a Masters golf finish that will live forever in history and individual feats of transcendant grandeur

You freed the athletic slaves and flushed out the coffers at Fort Knox to pay salaries of the super stars You brought women's lib to full fruition in the form of a lissome tennis miss with a two-fisted backhand who won more official money than male stars in either tennis or golf

The year s single outstanding spectacle was a tie between the third Muhammad Ali-Joe Frazier fight in Manila and the sixth game of the World Series in Boston, followed closely by Jack Nicklaus' dramatic victory over Johnny Miller and Tom Weiskopf in the Masters

From the bare-knuckle days of John L. Sullivan to the modern "float like a butterfly, sting like a bee" syndrome, there have been many great heavyweight fights—involving Dempsey, Tunney, Joe Louis and Rocky Marciano—but none to compare with the slugging match staged by Ali and Smokin' Joe in sultry Manila on Oct 1

Never before in the ring had two muscled punchers of more than 200 pounds sustained such furious action for 15 rounds It was a duel of Howitzers at two paces Neither had a knee touch the ground Ali won and modestly acknowledged, "Joe could have whupped any other man on earth."

The same slambang, do-or-die effort surfaced—with bats and balls instead of fists—three weeks later in the sixth game of perhaps the greatest of World Series. The Boston Red Sox finally won on Carlton Fisk's 12th-inning home run, setting up a climactic seventh game won by the Cincinnati Reds.

The largest audience in history—more than 75 million— witnessed the climactic game on television. Baseball came alive again.

Individual stars blossomed in clusters, making it difficult to pick the Athlete of the Year How could anyone ignore Ali, the champion who came back? Rookie Fred Lynn of the Red Sox swept the MVP and Rookie awards in the American League, an accomplishment that escaped such stars as Ted Williams and Joe DiMaggio.

Fran Tarkenton of the Vikings wiped out Johnny Unitas' all-time passing marks in football and George Blanda started on his second 2,000 points in scoring. Nicklaus sank a 40-putt on the 16th hole to win the most stirring Masters, added the PGA and missed the other two events of the Grand Slam—the U. S. and British Opens—by the total margin of three strokes. He won his 16th major title and earned $298,149 17 for the year

But even the great Nicklaus was shaded in official money winnings by tennis star Chris Evert, who collected $360,227 It was a milestone for the women's campaign to gain parity in big time sports.

There was almost as much action in the courts as on the playing fields Peter Seitz, an arbitrator, made free agents of pitchers Catfish Hunter, Andy Messersmith and Dave McNally, striking perhaps a fatal blow at baseball's untouchable reserve clause. Federal Judge Earl R Larson of Minneapolis delivered a similar blow to pro football by ruling the Rozelle Rule illegal.

Law suits and counter suits flourished Athletes sued leagues. Leagues sued leagues. Leagues sued athletes The World Football League folded. The American Basketball Association lost franchises. Lawyers got rich.

Yet with the sports picture in a state of unrest and the country in the throes of a peculiar inflation-recession bind, money flowed like heady wine

Pele came out of retirement to sign a $4.5 million contract with the Cosmos soccer team. Catfish Hunter, given his freedom, signed for $3 75 million with the New York Yankees. Broadway Joe Namath, 32 and with a pair of gimpy knees, decided to play football two more years with the New York Jets at $450,000 a year—a record

There were negative as well as positive aspects The World Series was marred by controversy involving an umpire's call at home plate and the umpire, Larry Barnett, received death threats. Football owners and coaches were fined for criticizing officiating

Death took such personalities as Casey Stengel, Avery Brundage, Ezzard Charles, auto racers Mark Donahue and Graham Hill and runner Steve Prefontaine, the great filly Ruffian and a Georgia preacher, Dallas Tarkenton, on the day his son lost a football game

Closings Not Forced

Washington (UPI) — Federal laws designed to clean up the air and water have had only a minimal impact in terms of forcing companies out of business, the Environmental Protection Agency said.

Venezuela Oil Is Nationalized

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — Venezuela took possession of its giant oil industry Thursday, ending 61 years of domination by international companies, and entered a new era of state management of its most important resource.

The industry that averages 2.3 million barrels a day, Latin America's largest and worth some $5 billion, legally passed into state hands at one minute after midnight.

More than 30 companies, including Creole, a subsidiary of Exxon and the country's largest producer, and affiliates of Royal Dutch Shell, Gulf, Texaco, Mobil, Sun, Phillips, Sinclair, Amoco and Chevron turned their property over to 14 newly formed state operating companies.

President Carlos Andres Perez was scheduled to unfurl a red, blue and yellow Venezuelan flag Thursday on a hill overlooking the Zumaque No. 1 well in the western state of Zulia. Drilled in 1914 by Shell Caribbean Petroleum Co., the well was the country's first commercial producer.

The televised New Year's Day ceremonies were to be attended by top government, civic, church and military leaders as well as some 70 foreign guests. They were to include representatives of fellow nations of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, political and labor leaders.

The ceremonies terminated a nationalization process, in the works since the 1960s, that has enjoyed overwhelming public support. A law ordering all private companies to turn over concessions and property to the state, was passed by congress and signed by Perez last August.

The names of the foreign firms have been quietly removed from oil industry facilities and gas stations throughout the country and have been replaced by the names of the new state companies that are taking their places — Lagoven (Creole), Maraven (Shell), Meneven (Gulf), Llanoven (Mobil), Deltaven (Texaco) and Palmaven (Sun).

Venezuelan executives, most of whom occupied high posts in the foreign companies, already have taken their places in offices formerly occupied by U.S. and European directors.

The state companies will work under direction of Petroleos de Venezuela, a state holding company which will handle overall management of the industry. Heading the company is Rafael Alfonzo Ravard, a retired army general and highly respected administrator.

The foreign companies are receiving slightly more than $1 billion in compensation from the government, payable in cash and bonds. The first payment, totaling some $100 million, was to be made Thursday.

Despite the takeover, some foreign companies will remain and are expected to play a vital role in the industry, which provides more than 90 per cent of Venezuela's foreign exchange and earned the government $8.5 billion in 1974 and an estimated $7.5 billion in 1975.

Most of the some 500 foreigners among the 23,000 oil industry employes will remain here and be transferred to affiliates being formed to represent the foreign firms here.

The government already has agreed to sell about 1.5 million barrels of oil daily to the international firms during the first three months of this year at existing price levels set by OPEC. The oil is destined to supply traditional markets in the United States, which buys some 1.1 million barrels a day, and Canada, which purchases 350,000 barrels.

Firemen Rush To The Rescue

Smith Resigns SMU Position

Dave Smith
Resigns Post

DALLAS (AP) — Dave Smith resigned under pressure Tuesday night after three turbulent seasons as head football coach at Southern Methodist University, which included probation because of a dollars-for-tackles program.

SMU was slapped with a two-year probation by the National Collegiate Athletic Association for giving cash to specialty team members during the 1973 season. The school's probation had been scheduled to be lifted Jan. 7, 1976. However, SMU was summoned before the NCAA Committee on Infractions Dec. 17 to answer new allegations regarding recruiting.

Smith, who had compiled a 16-15-2 record after succeeding Hayden Fry, had two years left on his contract. Athletic Director Dick Davis and associate directors Jim Brock and Louis Mann were retained.

Davis said the departure of Smith did not involve the current NCAA investigation of SMU, adding that Smith has "-been under considerable pressure for a lengthy period of time I don't mean from the university or anything, but there have been a lot of problems."

Davis said Dr. James Zumberge, SMU president, said, "The resignation of Coach Smith and its acceptance by the university are the results of an overall review of the situation by all concerned. The mutual decision is based on an agreement in which SMU will honor its present contractual agreement with Coach Smith, which runs through 1977."

Smith released a prepared statement, saying, "I leave this great institution with mixed emotions. I am extremely proud of the progress of the SMU football program during the past three years I have served as head coach. Thanks to the dedication and the work of a great staff of assistants, we have seen the football program upgraded and become much stronger under sometimes extremely difficult circumstances.

"The fact that we had a winning record over the three-year period is also a tribute to the tremendously fine young men it was my privilege to be associated with on the field of play.

"I am hopeful the wholesome and prideful football program my staff and I have worked so hard to attain will be continued."

Smith, who came to SMU from Oklahoma State, was a former assistant at SMU under Fry, now head coach at North Texas State.

Saints Fail To Meet Payroll

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — The Minnesota Fighting Saints of the World Hockey Association failed to meet their $140,0 0 0 semimonthly payroll Wednesday. But the club avoided folding when its players voted to keep playing without pay while attempts to raise new funds continued.

The Fighting Saints, who have lost $4.9 million in the last three years, had to borrow $200,000 to meet the two previous payrolls. This time, they were unable to produce the needed funds and would have folded without the agreement of their players to forego pay and keep playing.

Team captain Ted Hampson, appearing at a news conference here, said, "We believe in the potential of this franchise and would like to grow with the team and the community. We expect to be here for the rest of this year . . . or as long as it takes.

"Therefore, in spite of the fact that we did not receive our paychecks today, and don't know the prospect of future pay, we intend to continue playing as we work out our financial problems," he said.

Team president Wayne Belisle, appearing with Hampson, would not say when he thought the club could raise the money it needs. But he said, "I feel that we are very close to turning the financial situation around. Our attendance is up, the team is playing exciting hockey. But without the vote of support of the players today, there wouldn't be a franchise in St. Paul tomorrow."

Belisle did not say how much money is needed to keep the club in ousiness.

Hogs Seek Top 10 Rating Against Georgia

DALLAS (AP) — Arkansas was a touchdown favorite over Georgia in the 40th Cotton Bowl Classic New Year's Day with little at stake but pride and a chance to jump into the Top 10 in the final college football rankings.

The 18th-ranked Arkansas Razorbacks and their strong running game and "Swarming Red Ant" defense joust the 12th-ranked Bulldogs, who rallied around brilliant broken field runner Glynn Harrison and their "Junkyard Dog" defense.

Both teams battled longshot odds on the path to the Cotton Bowl.

Arkansas shocked then second-ranked Texas A&M 31-6 on Dec. 6 to throw the Southwest Conference championship in a three-way tie with the Aggies and Texas Longhorns. Arkansas got the Cotton Bowl berth because they hadn't played in the classic since 1966.

Georgia began the year picked for the Southeast Conference's second division but tied for runnerup. Each team brings a 9-2 record into the game which is expected to draw a sellout crowd of 72,000 for the 1 p.m. CST nationally televised kickoff.

Georgia was at least the Cotton Bowl's third choice as a guest team. Notre Dame and Southern California were being strongly considered but both suffered losses on bowl picking Saturday in November.

Cotton Bowl officials were on hand to extend an invitation to the Fighting Irish but Notre Dame was beaten by Pittsburgh.

Georgia was invited the next day over the telephone without the Cotton Bowl officials ever seeing the Bulldogs play in person.

"We have a lot of incentive going into this game because we know a lot of people don't think we should be here," said Harrison.

Coach Vince Dooley, who saw his Bulldogs drop the Tangerine Bowl to Miami of Ohio last year, worked his team hard in preparing for the Razorbacks.

"We don't want a repeat of last year," said Dooley.

Harrison was more candid: "We neglected practice and it cost us."

Arkansas also feels it has something to prove.

"There's some talk we backed into the Cotton Bowl but we beat some mighty fine football teams to get here," said Arkansas Coach Frank Broyles. "The last poll is the one that counts. I think we're a football team that can play with anybody in America."

"A lot has been written about how we backed into the Cotton Bowl and I think it will definitely be an incentive," said Dooley.

Besides "outcast" tags, the teams bear other similarities. Both rely on quick, gambling defenses and ground-oriented defenses with strong-running quarterbacks at the helm.

Ray Goff, Georgia's steady quarterback, expects a lot of points on the board.

"I think we're going to score 20 or more," said Goff.

Arkansas quarterback Scott Bull predicts flatly "I don't see anyway Georgia can stop our running game."

Senior Ike Forte, bothered by dislocated toes, freshman Michael Forrest, and steady Rolland Fuchs give the Razorbacks some runners who can cover the real estate.

"I don't care if they move the ball because we always come up with the big play when we need it," said Bulldog safety Bill Krug.

HCV — HOME COURT VALUE TPR — TEAM POWER RATING

Thus, team with Power Rating of 6 would be 7-point favorite over team with rating of 13 if game were played on neutral court. Give allotted points for Home Court Value to Home Team Number in brackets indicates final 1974-75 Rating.

By JANE BRYANT QUINN

Jane Bryant Quinn

New York — The Internal Revenue Service sometimes makes mistakes on the tax advice they give to people "They re human, like everyone else says Don J Summa, managing partner of the Newark, N J office of the accounting firm Arthur Young and Co "They might give you the right answer On the other hand, you could get someone who isn t well acquainted with the aspect of the law you've asked about, or who hasn't understood all the facets of the question "

That's just what happened to me last week In double-checking a question about Individual Retirement Accounts with the Internal Revenue Service in Washington, I asked exactly when the IRA contribution had to be made for it to be tax-deductible this year

The IRS's Wilson Fadely, whose job is to answer questions like that from people like me, told me the contribution didn't have to be made until the tax return was due That's how it works with Keogh plans for the self-employed You may choose to establish your total income for the year before making the Keogh contribution, so you'll know exactly how much you're allowed to put in I reported this in a recent column

"But it doesn't work that way with IRAs," an embarrassed Mr Fadely now tells me With IRAs, you have to have your contribution in by the end of the year to make it tax-deductible If you make too large a contribution, there's a penalty of 6% on the excess The IRS is now working on a regulation that provides a method for withdrawing any inadvertent excess, as required by law

Unfair To IRA-Holders

It is unfair to some IRA-holders to make them put their contribution in by yearend Those of you who get regular paychecks can accurately anticipate your income and make the proper contribution (up to 15% of earnings, with a cap on contributions of $1,500) But many of you have income that is irregular, depending on fees, commissions, and partnership distributions You may not know by the last week in December exactly what your earned income will be Therefore, you can't be sure exactly how much you can set aside for your IRA

People with Keogh plans (who are often wealthier than people who set up IRAs) are permitted to wait until tax time before making their contribution Those of you with IRAs should be allowed the same consideration — but it's going to take an act of Congress to get it for you

Being misled by the Internal Revenue Service is a real problem for taxpayers as well as reporters The tax laws are complex, and many of the people who answer questions and fill in tax returns are not as well-trained as you might believe

To study its own performance, IRS agents go incognito to offices in various cities, carrying a specific set of tax problems to be entered on a return The problems always include deductions not considered run-of-the-mill, like, for example, moving expenses In 1974, the IRS gave incorrect advice on 87% of the test returns, in 1975, the error rate was 72%

As part of its Taxpayer Compliance Measurement Program, the IRS monitors hundreds of thousands of tax returns, and singles out the error rate for all preparers In 1971, the last year for which this data has been published, IRS preparers made technical errors on 74% of the returns that itemized deductions On tax returns that used the standard deduction but had some special wrinkle, like income from a source other than wages, the IRS's error rate was 15% The combined error rate was 55%

By contrast, commercial preparers and similar tax assistants had an overall error rate of 71%, public accountants, 69%, lawyers, 66%, and certified public accountants, 62%

So what is the beleaguered taxpayer to do? Summa advises that if your tax return includes deductions that are in any way out of the ordinary, don't go by the IRS's word alone Depending on your income and the amount of money in question, you should also consult a tax preparer (ask for the most senior person in the office), tax attorney or a certified public accountant

Stock Mart's Annual Gain Was Biggest In 21 Years

New York (AP) — The beleaguered stock market, encouraged by the economy's effort to recover from the recession, rallied in 1975 to record its best annual gain in 21 years.

But at yearend it still had a great deal left to do to repair all the damage of the 1973-74 bear market

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks finished the year at 852 41, up 236 17 from its 1974 close Thus it just managed to recoup its 1974 loss of 234 62 points.

According to calculations by Ken Ward at Reynolds Securities, that represented the largest yearly point gain for the popular measure of market trends

The percentage gain of slightly less than 40 per cent posted by the Dow was its third best on record, surpassed by a 44 per cent rise in 1954 and a 67 per cent jump in 1933

"The size of the gain of course reflects an extremely low starting point," observed Heinz H Biel, a Wall Street veteran with the firm of Hoppin, Watson Inc "If you look at it over the longer term, the market now is no higher than it was several years ago "

And it was still a painful distance from its closing peak of 1,051 70 reached on Jan 11, 1973

That fact was all too clear to investors in a major stock like General Motors In the high 50s late in December, the stock had doubled from its late-1974 low, but was still down severely from the 113¾ level it reached a decade ago

The year split almost evenly into two parts for the market — a booming first half which culminated in a peak closing reading in the Dow of 881 81 on July 15 and a drab second half in which it never reached that height again

In the first half of the year noted Raymond F DeVoe Jr at Spencer Trask & Co "the market was accurately forecasting a turn in the economy from recession to recovery

But the market always has a way of overdoing things and it got way ahead of itself and became vulnerable to the problems that are bound to come up

The key problem this time analysts generally agreed was New York City s brush with financial collapse This produced a series of showdowns with default that kept the market off-balance for most of the autumn

Thus, despite two major positive influences — a reduced rate of inflation and interest rates sharply below their record levels of 1974 — any investors who missed the upsurge in prices in the first quarter had a tough assignment making many profits from the market during the year

"We've had so many traumas in the last few years — Watergate, the oil embargo, and so on — that it's led people to be very nervous about staying in the market too long," said DeVoe

Thanks largely to the hectic rally in the first few months, New York Stock Exchange trading volume easily surpassed the previous annual record of 4 14 billion shares set in 1972, reaching an estimated total of 4 7 billion

Seven times in the first quarter daily volume topped the 30-million-share mark — something it had done only once before, in August of 1971 when then-President Nixon announced a new economic program that included a freeze on wages and prices

A new daily standard of 35 16 million shares was established on Feb 13 That heavy volume, combined with rising stock prices, brought some impressive profits for brokers, who had been struggling against their own private recession for several years

But Wall Streeters were something less than exultant, facing as they were a new set of competitive pressures brought on by the opening up of full price competition in the industry

Starting May 1, when the Securities and Exchange Commission ordered that the previous fixed commission schedule on most transactions be dissolved brokers embarked on a free-swinging price war for the business of their biggest customers the investing institutions

At yearend it still remained to be seen whether the new competitive pressures would prompt the rush of brokerage house liquidations and mergers that some had predicted

Much less in doubt was another troublesome issue for both the securities industry and the market itself — the disenchantment of the individual investor

An NYSE study out in early November found a shrinkage in the number of individuals owning stock from 30 85 million in early 1970 to 25 21 million as of mid-1975

Over the same period, according to the NYSE, the average age of shareholders climbed from 48 to 53

That suggested a particularly glaring gap between Wall Street and the younger people of the nation, who would seem to hold a big part of the market's future in their hands

Firm Will Continue Storz Beer

Omaha (AP) — Storz beer will continue to be brewed by the company that has purchased Grain Belt Brewers, Inc, of Minneapolis, it was announced here

Russell Cleary, president of the G Heileman Brewing Co of La Crosse, Wis, had announced earlier that his firm would purchase the Grain Belt brands and other Grain Belt assets Grain Belt's Minneapolis brewery will be closed

Grain Belt took over operation of the Storz Brewery in 1967 from a group of Iowa investors who purchased it from the Storz family in 1966

"We plan to keep the Storz brand alive," said Cleary, adding that beer will be produced at Heileman breweries in St Paul, Minn and La Crosse, Wis, and sold through the same wholesalers who handled it for Grain Belt

Stock Market Drifts Higher, Ends Mixed

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market moved ahead unevenly Wednesday in a drifting session that concluded its best year's showing in two decades

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials settled for a close of 852 41, unchanged on the day But other market measures showed a considerably brighter picture

In the over-all count on the New York Stock Exchange, for example, advances outnumbered declines 1,154 to 363 among the 1,885 issues traded

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index rose 42 to 90 19, and the NYSE's composite index climbed 27 to 47 64

Big Board volume was a moderate 16 97 shares, up just a little from Tuesday's total of 16 04 million

The Dow wound up the year with a net gain of 236 17 points, which just managed to offset 1974's drop of 234 62, and at the same time represented the average's biggest annual point gain on record

The upsurge, nearly all of which came early in the year, translated into a 38 3 per cent gain According to statistics provided by Ken Ward of Reynolds Securities, that percentage showing ranked third on the all-time list, behind 44 per cent rise in 1954 and a 67 per cent jump in 1933

Investors seemed preoccupied during the day with last-minute maneuvering for tax and other reasons before the end of the year, and the market showed little response to any economic news

There was no noticeable pick-up in selling, for instance, when the Commerce Department reported that orders received by the nation's manufacturers had declined in November while factory inventories rose.

Brokers pointed out that the wide spread between advances and declines seemed partly to reflect bargaining hunting in a wide range of secondary issues, a number of which had been depressed by yearend tax selling

Typical issues which appeared to be rebounding from tax-loss selling included G.D. Searle, up ⅛ at 15⅛, Chrysler, ahead ¼ at 10⅛, and Louisiana-Pacific, ⅜ higher at 12¼

Ryder System was the Big Board volume leader, up ⅜ at 9¼ in trading marked by several medium-sized blocks

The company said it knew of no explanation for the heavy activity in its shares, which carried them to a new high for year of 9½ during the day

Missouri River Shipping Tops 2 Million Tons

By United Press International

Omaha (UPI) — Commercial shipments on the Missouri River exceeded 2,000,000 tons during the 1975 shipping season, marking the 13th time that has happened in the last 15 years, the U S Army Corps of Engineers said Wednesday

However, the total of 2,327 765 tons was 9 87% below last year s 2 582,799 tons

The record year was 1971 when 2 791,929 tons were carried on the Missouri

The corps said annual totals did not include about 4,000 000 tons of sand, gravel, crushed rock and other materials used in waterway improvements and other regional construction

Upstream tonnage for this year was 1 010 961 carried in 793 barges, compared to 1,316 804 tons carried downstream in 1,115 barges

Farm products — corn wheat, sorghum and soybeans — were the major commodity, the corps said They accounted for more than 830 000 downbound tons

Ranking second were chemicals and related products with a total in excess of 466 000 tons most of it shipped upstream Food and related products were a close third with almost 460 000 tons 62% headed downstream

Beatrice Sun Sold To Stauffer

Topeka, Kan (AP) — Stauffer Publications Inc, Topeka, announced Wednesday purchase of the Beatrice, Neb. Daily Sun from Robert S and George P Marvin, owners and copublishers of the 11,000-circulation newspaper

No purchase price was announced

The Daily Sun becomes Stauffer Publications' third Nebraska daily newspaper The company owns 14 other daily papers, five radio stations, one television station and a regional weekly newspaper in eight Midwestern states

The announcement said Kent R Thomas, 44, editor and publisher of the Stauffer-owned York, Neb, News-Times for the past nine years, would be publisher of the Daily Sun.

Robert J Marvin will continue as managing editor of the Sun under the new ownership, the announcement said

Succeeding Thomas as general manager of the York newspaper will be Donald I Gillen, 48, news editor of that paper more than six years

The Beatrice paper was founded by the Marvin brothers' grandfather, G P Marvin, and was published for many years by the founder's son, E M Marvin

Thomas, a native of Salina, Kan and a 1957 graduate of the University of Kansas William Allen White School of Journalism is a director of the Nebraska Press Assn and a past president of the Nebraska Associated Press Managing Editors Assn and the Nebraska Outstate Daily Publishers Assn

Gillen is a graduate of the University of Nebraska School of Journalism and was a News-Times reporter in the early 1950s

Also effective Jan 1 is appointment of A Hubert Foster from advertising manager to business manager of the News-Times Foster 58, is a native of York Neb

Barrow, Gilt Prices Climb

Omaha, Neb (AP) — Barrows and gilts were moderately active at prices 50 cents to $1 00 higher on the Omaha Livestock Market Wednesday

With 2,500 hogs on offer, a large share of 200-250 lb offerings were $1 00 higher

U S. 1-3s weighing 195-230 lb sold for $49.00-49 50 Sows were 50 to 75 cents higher, with 325-600 lb offerings bringing $39.25-39 50

A few loads of steers and very small receipts of heifers were mostly steady Wednesday. With 1,000 cattle and calves on offer utility and commercial cows were moderately active at steady prices Canners and cutters sold rather slow at steady to 50 cent lower tickets

Choice 1,050-1,250 lb steers brought $44 00-45 25, mixed good and choice offerings rang up $43 00-44.00 A few lots of choice 850-1,000 lb heifers sold for $42 00-43.00. Utility and commercial cows brought $22 00-25.00, with a few at $25 50-26 00

An offering of 50 sheep was not enough for an adequate market test

The market estimates receipt Friday of 1,300 cattle and calves, including 1,000 feeders, 2,500 hogs, and no sheep

Time-Life Books Considers Move From New York

NEW HAVEN (AP) — A spokesman for Time-Life Books says the company is considering moving its New York City operation to New Haven sometime in 1977

An official of Time-Life-Books, a division of Time, Inc, said New Haven and San Francisco are two sites the publishing firm is considering to save money

New Haven city planning officials accompanied Mrs Joan Manley, president of Time-Life Books, on a recent inspection of downtown office sites, according to officials

The move would involve some 300 editorial employes now based in the Time-Life Building in Rockefeller Center but would not involve printing functions

Author's Wife Asks Divorce

Los Angeles (AP) — Mickey Spillane, author of a series of detective novels has been sued for divorce by his actress wife, Shari

In the Los Angeles Superior Court suit Mrs Spillane cited irreconcilable differences as the reason for seeking an end to her 11-year marriage to the 57-year-old author

Grain, Soybean Prices Higher

Chicago (AP) — Grain and soybean prices moved higher on the Chicago Board of Trade Wednesday

After an uncertain opening, wheat futures advanced steadily during the day and closed in a 2 to 5 cent a bushel range higher

Corn was up by about the same amount.

Sources said both commodities appeared to have been affected by some talk of a possible threat of the world market losing access to Argentine grains There also were reports of some modest export activity in wheat

Soybean futures also closed stronger in the abbreviated New Year's Eve session Soybean oil was about steady while meal prices were mixed.

Iced broilers declined in price

At the close, wheat was 2¼ to 5 cents a bushel higher, March 3 36, corn was 1¼ to 4½ higher, March 2 61½, oats were ¾ to 1½ higher, March 1 46 and soybeans were 1 to 3 higher, January 4 49

Closings Not Forced

Washington (UPI) — Federal laws designed to clean up the air and water have had only a minimal impact in terms of forcing companies out of business, the Environmental Protection Agency said

Venezuela Oil Is Nationalized

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — Venezuela took possession of its giant oil industry Thursday, ending 61 years of domination by international companies, and entered a new era of state management of its most important resource

The industry that averages 2.3 million barrels a day, Latin America's largest and worth some $5 billion, legally passed into state hands at one minute after midnight

More than 30 companies, including Creole, a subsidiary of Exxon and the country's largest producer, and affiliates of Royal Dutch Shell, Gulf, Texaco, Mobil, Sun, Phillips, Sinclair, Amoco and Chevron turned their property over to 14 newly formed state operating companies

President Carlos Andres Perez was scheduled to unfurl a red, blue and yellow Venezuelan flag Thursday on a hill overlooking the Zumaque No 1 well in the western state of Zulia Drilled in 1914 by Shell Caribbean Petroleum Co, the well was the country's first commercial producer

The televised New Year's Day ceremonies were to be attended by top government civic church and military leaders as well as some 70 foreign guests They were to include representatives of fellow nations of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries political and labor leaders

The ceremonies terminated a nationalization process in the works since the 1960s that has enjoyed overwhelming public support A law ordering all private companies to turn over concessions and property to the state was passed by congress and signed by Perez last August

The names of the foreign firms have been quietly removed from oil industry facilities and gas stations throughout the country and have been replaced by the names of the new state companies that are taking their places — Lagoven (Creole), Maraven (Shell), Meneven (Gulf), Llanoven (Mobil), Deltaven (Texaco) and Palmaven (Sun).

Venezuelan executives, most of whom occupied high posts in the foreign companies, already have taken their places in offices formerly occupied by U.S. and European directors

The state companies will work under direction of Petroleos de Venezuela, a state holding company which will handle overall management of the industry. Heading the company is Rafael Alfonzo Ravard, a retired army general and highly respected administrator

The foreign companies are receiving slightly more than $1 billion in compensation from the government, payable in cash and bonds. The first payment, totaling some $100 million, was to be made Thursday

Despite the takeover, some foreign companies will remain and are expected to play a vital role in the industry, which provides more than 90 per cent of Venezuela's foreign exchange and earned the government $8.5 billion in 1974 and an estimated $7.5 billion in 1975

Most of the some 500 foreigners among the 23,000 oil industry employes will remain here and be transferred to affiliates being formed to represent the foreign firms here

The government already has agreed to sell about 1.5 million barrels of oil daily to the international firms during the first three months of this year at existing price levels set by OPEC The oil is destined to supply traditional markets in the United States which buys some 1.1 million barrels a day, and Canada which purchases 350,000 barrels

Firemen Rush To The Rescue

Washington (UPI) — Ron Nessen decided Wednesday a New Year's Eve blaze would look and feel good He lighted the wood in the fireplace in his White House office The ensuing smoke brought the Executive Protection Service fire fighters on the run

Italian Automobile Insurance To Rise

Rome (AP) — Automobile insurance rates in Italy are to rise 15%, the Ministry of Industry announced.

The increases will be allowed from the day of publication of the ministry's decree in the official Gazette, expected within 24 hours.

Trade Deficit Shrunk

Hong Kong (AP) — Hong Kong suffered a trade deficit of $37.8 million in November, compared with $39.2 million in the same period last year.

Warranty Must Be Simpler

. . . In 1977

WASHINGTON (AP) — New regulations aimed at making product warranties more understandable to consumers both before and after the sale were announced Tuesday by the Federal Trade Commission.

One key rule, effective Jan. 1, 1977, provides that any warranty on an item costing more than $15 must disclose "in simple and readily understood language" such information as:

— What is covered, and, where necessary for clarification, what is excluded from warranty protection.

— What the warrantor will do in the event of a defect, including a statement of what items or services will be paid for or replaced by the warrantor.

— A step-by-step explanation of what the purchaser should do to get the warranty honored.

Another new regulation, also effective as of 1977, requires sellers to make warranties available for inspection by prospective buyers through one of four ways. He can display the warranty next to the product, maintain a central notebook containing all product warranties, display a package containing the warranty text or display a sign containing the text.

Catalog and mail order sellers must print the warranty in the catalog or solicitation or else stipulate that the warranty is available free on request before purchase.

The rules are designed to implement a new federal law that was chiefly sponsored by Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash.

Volume Of New Orders Slips 0.5%

Washington (AP) — The government reported Wednesday that the volume of new orders received by factories slipped for the second time in three months during November, primarily because of a drop among durable goods manufacturers.

The total drop in new orders amounted to 0.5%, making it the steepest decline since a 2.8% drop in March. New orders had slipped 0.2% in September.

The decline left the volume of orders in November at a seasonally adjusted rate of $86 billion.

The Commerce Department said the drop in orders for the durable goods sector, which includes heavy machinery, automobiles and other big-ticket items with a life expectancy of three years or more, was 2.6%. That also was the biggest drop since March, when the category fell 3.7%.

The latest drop left the volume of new orders for durable goods at $41.3 billion, the lowest point since June, when the volume stood at $39.7 billion.

Demand for durable goods is a key indicator of future economic health, particularly because the durable goods include the machinery and other capital goods which business uses to increase production and generate new jobs.

With consumer spending providing the main thrust for the economic recovery so far, most economists consider a pickup in business spending essential to sustain the recovery.

At the same time it reported on the new orders, the department said the backlog of unfilled orders held by manufacturers declined by 0.8% to $118.8 billion. Shipments slipped 0.8% to $87 billion. The backlog of stocks of raw materials and finished goods on hand increased by 0.1% to $146 billion.

The report showed the first rise in eight months for manufacturers' inventories in October. October inventory adjustments had originally been reported as a $96 million decline, but the department revised that to show a $97 million advance.

Canadian Newsprint Shipments Way Off

Montreal (AP) — Canadian newsprint shipments to all markets in November totaled 448,467 tons, down 13.4% from October and 41% below November 1974, according to the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association.

Ski Clinic Postponed

The Free Ski Clinic co-sponsored by the Lincoln Parks and Recreation Department and Lawlors scheduled for Sunday, Jan. 4, at the Auld Recreation Center has been postponed. The Ski Clinic will be rescheduled at a later date — to be announced.

12% Activists

New York (UPI) — A survey by "Progressive Grocer" indicates that about 12% of grocery shoppers are consumer activists. They tend to be younger than nonactivists, use shopping lists less but mechanical counters more, and outspend nonactivists. The study of weekend shoppers showed activists spent $30.16, compared with $26.94 by nonactivists. In one way, both groups are alike. They worry about the same things, but activists worry more than their opposite numbers about the cost of energy and food.

Closed Service Honors Murdered CIA Agent

Washington (UPI) — In a private ceremony on the closed grounds of the Central Intelligence Agency, his former colleagues and his two sons Wednesday honored the memory of Richard S. Welch, the agency's station chief murdered last week in Athens.

The ceremony took place in the white-domed auditorium just aside the CIA's headquarters in Langley, Va. The public and reporters were barred because among those who attended were others whose identity as CIA agents has not been revealed.

A CIA spokesman later described the scene:

"There was a gathering in the auditorium. A full house. People turned away. The two sons were there, Marine Lt. Patrick Welch and Nicholas, a student at Leeds University, England."

Patrick, 23, and only recently commissioned, accompanied his father's body back on a special Air Force plane Tuesday prior to burial Friday, at President Ford's request, in Arlington National Cemetery.

"The service opened with the singing of the national anthem followed by introductory remarks by the director for operations (William E. Nelson)," the spokesman said "Then there were remarks by Bill Colby (CIA Director William E. Colby) who talked about his (Welch's) scholarship, his knowledge of foreign affairs."

Welch, a classic Greek scholar before he entered intelligence work, was also fluent in French and Spanish.

The spokesman said Welch already had the Intelligence Medal of Merit and commendations from ambassadors under whom he served.

"He will be getting posthumously the Intelligence Star," he said. "That will be the 32nd star (ever awarded)."

There is a role of honor in the CIA building with a remembrance book containing the names of some of those who died in agency service but others are known only to the CIA and the families concerned.

Welch was identified by an Athens newspaper as the chief CIA operative in Greece after his intelligence connections were previously revealed by an American "adversary" quarterly called Counterspy.

Identities Of Gresham Crash Dead Released

Gresham (AP) — Identification was released Wednesday of the two men killed Tuesday in a one-car accident southeast of Gresham.

The York County sheriff's office said the victims, both passengers in the auto, were Harry "Burt" Edgerley, 50, of York and Richard Gruber, 41, of rural Waco.

Investigating officers said the car, driven by Robert Burnham, 41, of York, went out of control and sideswiped a bridge. Burnham was treated for minor injuries and released from a York hospital.

Ray Sullivan of rural Waco, another passenger, was hospitalized in Lincoln where he was listed in fair condition.

Man Killed By Hit-Run Driver

Omaha (UPI) — Charles Lantry, 72, was killed Wednesday evening by a hit and run driver on an Omaha street, police said.

A police spokesman said Lantry was killed instantly. Investigators were looking for medium blue pickup truck, possibly a four-wheel drive vehicle.

Mental Patients To Get Rehearing

. . . Ruling Wiped Out State Law

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

More than 100 people who have been involuntarily committed for being mentally ill probably will get a chance to have another hearing.

A Christmas Eve ruling by a three-judge panel wiped out portions of Nebraska's mental health laws. The ruling may mean that a number of people committed by the Lancaster County Mental Health Board must receive a new hearing, officials report.

County District Court Clerk Kandra Hahn said the records aren't clear as to how many people have been committed to the Lincoln Regional Center and Hastings by the board. But, Ms. Hahn estimated, more than 100 people are involved.

Ms. Hahn supports the ruling from the federal judges because now someone charged as mentally ill "will have at least the same rights afforded to an accused criminal."

'Due Process Denied'

The three-judge panel in Omaha said present procedures deny people due process of law.

The judges cited inadequate notice of a Mental Health Board hearing, no opportunity to cross-examine witnesses, failure to establish that the subject is dangerous to himself or others, no protection from involuntarily administered drugs, no time limits on when hearings are held and failure to give the person the assistance of an attorney.

Before the ruling, the Lancaster and Douglas county mental health boards could commit a person even if the person wasn't present. The boards didn't have to prove that the person would pose a threat.

Now, the judges said, the board must clearly establish that a person "poses a present serious threat of substantial harm to other persons or to himself, as manifested by a recent overt act or threat."

Definition Is Problem

Ms. Hahn said the big problem now is to define just what that threat might be.

"Is anyone who drinks and drives dangerous?" she asked, noting that many people brought before the board are people with drinking problems.

An example might be, she said, the case of an alcoholic lying in the street.

"He has demonstrated he has endangered himself," she said.

In response to the judges' request for an answer from the two counties involved, Deputy County Atty. Bob Gibson wrote that in order for a person to be committed as mentally ill, the danger of harm must be "both real and immediate."

The Mental Health Board will have to develop guidelines to determine what types of behavior are likely to pose those threats, Gibson said.

Pre-Hearing Needed

The judges' ruling also mandated that the mental health boards hold a pre-hearing in addition to a final hearing. The preliminary inquiry must be held within five days to determine if the person is mentally ill and if the "threat of harm" exists.

A final hearing then, must be held within 14 days after that inquiry.

The net effect of that order, Ms. Hahn explained, is to give people "time to defend themselves."

The double hearing may prove to be a disadvantage, however.

Since there can be up to 19 days before a person is involuntarily committed, a person who needs treatment will not receive it during that time. At any point, a person can agree to submit to treatment.

Notification To Change

The ruling also requires a new notification system be set up to insure that a person finds out about both hearings and has time to prepare for those hearings.

The written notification also will tell the person being accused of mentally illness that he is entitled to a lawyer and can have one appointed if he can't afford one.

The judges also barred the physician member of the Mental Health Board from voting on that person's commitment, as he has been done in the past.

That means, Ms. Hahn said, that Dr. Robert Osborne no longer will be able to vote to commit a person he has examined. The other two members of the Lancaster County Mental Health Board are attorney Robert Camp and Ms. Hahn.

No Cases Yet

The board began operating under the new procedures this week. But, they haven't had a case so far. And, the details on how to hold hearings for that 100 or so people already committed haven't been ironed out yet.

Nevertheless, Ms. Hahn predicts a rash of cases will be brought before them in January.

"Business is slow during the holiday season," she said. But soon, people who have problems or those who decide to do something about someone they think has problems will keep the board busy.

The judges' ruling, Ms. Hahn said, "came just in time for the new push."

Thousands Are Losing Pensions

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thousands of workers are losing their pension plans as private companies terminate the coverage in unexpectedly high numbers, Rep. Charles A. Vanik said.

He said as many as 39,000 employes may have lost pension benefits during December alone because an estimated 1,300 private companies ended their pension plans.

Since the new federal pension plan went into effect less than 16 months ago, Vanik said, "approximately 5,600 private pension plans have been terminated — more than four times the expected rate of termination."

"As a result," he said, "many of the 160,000 employes who had been covered by those plans now face an uncertain retirement future."

He said the government's Pension Benefit Guaranty Corp. has been processing termination notices at an escalating rate, with 450 plans dissolved in the days immediately before and after Chrstmas.

Most of these plans covered an average of 30 workers, said Vanik, who is chairman of the oversight subcommittee of the House Ways and Means Committee.

An official of the Pension Benefit Guaranty Corp. said Vanik's figures appear "fairly close to the way it's been running, give or take 100 or so."

He said most pension plans operate on a calendar year so it would be understandable that if a company wanted to phase out its plan, it would do so now. In addition, as of Jan. 1, pension plans must conform to most aspects of the new federal law or agree to do so retroactively.

About half of the companies terminating their plans gave poor economic conditions as the reason or the actual shutdown of a plant or an entire business. The others said the reasons varied from the complicated requirements of the new law plus the rising fees of actuaries, accountants and attorneys who work on various parts of the plans.

Vanik said Congress recently heard pension plan administrators testify that the complicated compliance forms were being simplified with special urgency on streamlining procedures which small firms use to certify their pension plans.

He said the government is committed to smoothing out the procedures so that small as well as large pension plans can flourish.

"I urge all employers who may be tempted to terminate pension plans to look at the good faith efforts of the government agencies during recent weeks to improve the administration of the Pension Reform Act," Vanik said.

"I believe that these actions remove any excuse for terminating such plans," he said.

If a company seems on the verge of closing out its pension plan right now, Vanik said, the workers should demand a close accounting of the reasons.

Lone Gunman Robs Big Red

A lone gunman escaped with an undetermined amount of cash after robbing the Big Red Liquor Store at 3239 S. 13th Wednesday night.

Lincoln Police are looking for a black male in his early 20's, 6'1", 180 lbs. wearing a blue shirt-jacket, a blue stocking cap and a blue muffler, in connection with the incident.

Freeze The Cheese

New York (UPI) — Some cheeses can be frozen in small pieces without damaging the texture, says the Dairy Council of Metropolitan New York. If they are packaged in moisture-proof wrapping, frozen quickly and stored at zero degrees Fahrenheit or below, at least nine varieties freeze well. They are brick, cheddar, edam, gouda, mienster, port du salut, swiss, provolone and mozzarella.

Warranty Must Be Simpler

. . . In 1977

WASHINGTON (AP) — New regulations aimed at making product warranties more understandable to consumers both before and after the sale were announced Tuesday by the Federal Trade Commission

One key rule, effective Jan 1, 1977 provides that any warranty on an item costing more than $15 must disclose 'in simple and readily understood language such information as

— What is covered, and, where necessary for clarification, what is excluded from warranty protection

— What the warrantor will do in the event of a defect including a statement of what items or services will be paid for or replaced by the warrantor

— A step-by-step explanation of what the purchaser should do to get the warranty honored

Another new regulation, also effective as of 1977, requires sellers to make warranties available for inspection by prospective buyers through one of four ways He can display the warranty next to the product, maintain a central notebook containing all product warranties, display a package containing the warranty text or display a sign containing the text

Catalog and mail order sellers must print the warranty in the catalog or solicitation or else stipulate that the warranty is available free on request before purchase

The rules are designed to implement a new federal law that was chiefly sponsored by Sen Warren G Magnuson, D-Wash

Volume Of New Orders Slips 0.5%

Washington (AP) — The government reported Wednesday that the volume of new orders received by factories slipped for the second time in three months during November, primarily because of a drop among durable goods manufacturers

The total drop in new orders amounted to 0 5%, making it the steepest decline since a 2 8% drop in March New orders had slipped 0 2% in September

The decline left the volume of orders in November at a seasonally adjusted rate of $86 billion.

The Commerce Department said the drop in orders for the durable goods sector, which includes heavy machinery, automobiles and other big-ticket items with a life expectancy of three years or more, was 2 6% That also was the biggest drop since March, when the category fell 3 7%

The latest drop left the volume of new orders for durable goods at $41 3 billion, the lowest point since June, when the volume stood at $39 7 billion

Demand for durable goods is a key indicator of future economic health, particularly because the durable goods include the machinery and other capital goods which business uses to increase production and generate new jobs

With consumer spending providing the main thrust for the economic recovery so far, most economists consider a pickup in business spending essential to sustain the recovery

At the same time it reported on the new orders, the department said the backlog of unfilled orders held by manufacturers declined by 0 8% to $118 8 billion Shipments slipped 0 8% to $87 billion The backlog of stocks of raw materials and finished goods on hand increased by 0 1% to $146 billion

The report showed the first rise in eight months for manufacturers inventories in October October inventory adjustments had originally been reported as a $96 million decline but the department revised that to show a $97 million advance

Canadian Newsprint Shipments Way Off

Montreal (AP — Canadian newsprint shipments to all markets in November totaled 448 467 tons down 13 4% from October and 41% below November 1974 according to the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association

Nothing Links FBI To King's Murder

©The New York Times

Washington — For nearly eight years the assassination of the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. has puzzled many private citizens and even some government officials who were skeptical that James Earl Ray, an escape ex-convict with no obvious antipathy toward the black civil rights leader, had been the lone assassin, despite Ray's own admission of guilt in court.

Last month when the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence disclosed that the Federal Bureau of Investigation had carried out a secret six-year effort to discredit publicly Dr. King, questions suddenly were being asked in official quarters: Might the FBI itself have been involved in some way in the murder of King at a Memphis motel on April 4, 1968?

Pressure for an investigation of the FBI's harassment of King was immediate. The Senate committee considered extending its own investigation but decided to leave it to some agency that could prosecute, if evidence warranted. Within days, the Justice Department's Civil Rights Division opened an examination — the first ever — of the 96-volume archive the FBI had compiled on King in the decade preceding his death.

About the same time, The New York Times began its own inquiry into the case. Although limited by Ray's refusal to talk with reporters and by lack of access to the still-classified Justice Department and FBI files, reporters investigated many of the baffling, still-unanswered questions about Ray's possible motives, movements, money and connections, as well as the activities of the FBI.

After numerous interviews over the last six weeks with present and former officials of the Justice Department and the FBI, lawyers and others familiar with the case, the Times found no evidence that would implicate the FBI either directly or indirectly in the killing.

Sources familiar with the investigation by the Senate select committee asserted that they had found no evidence of FBI complicity in the portion of the King file they had examined.

Many of the FBI personnel who talked to The Times emphasized that they worked on the King murder case with no preconceptions about whether a conspiracy had existed.

As one put it, "We didn't have the slightest damned idea who or what" was behind the killing at the outset, and he noted that many possibiliites were considered, including the likelihood that the killer was an agent of a foreign power, but discarded such theories as contradictory evidence mounted.

One facet of the Justice Department's current internal review is the question of whether the animosity evidenced by J. Edgar Hoover, the late FBI director, and other high bureau officials toward King created a climate within the bureau that resulted in an investigation of his death that was not thorough and expeditious enough.

But a number of former FBI agents and others, including Justice Department officials who read the product of the FBI's investigation as it flowed into headquarters in 1968, insisted that the bureau's efforts to find King's killer had been unstinting.

Several former FBI and Justice Department officials noted that whatever Hoover's views might have been, the pressure on the bureau to find the killer had been intense, both from Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark and President Johnson.

"People were saying we wouldn't crack the case because Hoover didn't like King," a former FBI official said, "and he (Hoover) made it very apparent (within the FBI) that we had to solve it."

"We followed shotgun leads, wasting manpower and money like it was going out of style", the man said.

The FBI's hunt for King's killer was one of the most comprehensive "special," or high-priority, investigations in the bureau's history, involving at its peak some 3,000 agents — then about half the bureau's total number — more than 30,000 interviews of individuals believed to have knowledge of the case, and a cost of nearly $1.5 million over two months.

Several officials, in discounting speculation about the bureau's involvement in the King killing, pointed out that if, inconceivably, the bureau had chosen to arrange for such a murder it presumably could have developed a more sophisticated and far less risky method than the employment of a bumbling ex-convict with a hunting rifle.

Several past and present Justice Department lawyers pointed out that, to take a cynical view, whatever the degree of Hoover's personal dislike for King, it would not have been in the FBI director's interest to see the black leader martyred, but rather to relay to King every threat brought to the bureau's attention in the hope of frightening him out of the civil rights movement.

New York — Physicists in the United States and Europe believe they have produced for the first time particles of matter displaying an elusive property called "charm."

The development is being described as a landmark by theorists who see in it support for their view that all the heavier particles of matter are formed of four basic subunits called "quarks."

According to their theory, the quarks are the very essence of matter and control a wide range of natural phenomena. One of these four quarks, which they have named the "charmed quark," would play its own special role.

While the quarks so far have eluded direct observation, the theory has gained considerable acceptance in the scientific world.

The existence of the property called charm, definable only in terms of phenomena on the subatomic level, was suggested in 1964 by Drs. James D. Bjorken, now at Stanford University, and Sheldon L. Glashow, now at Harvard. It was not then related to the quark theory but was proposed as an explanation for certain interactions between colliding particles.

Charm would be an "indestructible" property of certain particles that would survive the transformations occurring in a collision in much the way an electric charge does. The sum of the electric charges carried by particles emerging from such an event always equals the sum of charges on the original particles.

Not much attention was paid to the charm idea until November 1974 when two completely unexpected particles were discovered. Their existence could be explained if they were formed of a charmed quark mated with a charmed antiquark. Some six particles of this type have now been discovered.

It is well established that for every particle of ordinary matter there must be an antiparticle that is identical but opposite in such respects as electric charge or spin. The mating of a charmed quark with a charmed antiquark would not outwardly display charm because the antiquark would cancel the charm of the quark.

The discoveries reported this week are of particles that apparently display charm. They are, however, so short-lived that their characteristics can be deduced only from their decay products.

The American experiments were conducted at the Fermi National Accelerator Laboratory in Batavia, Ill., which has the world's most powerful atom-smashing beam. Participants were from the University of California at Berkeley, the Universities of Hawaii and Wisconsin, and CERN, the European nuclear research center near Geneva, where the European experiments were conducted.

Dr. Benjamin W. Lee, theorist at the Fermi Lab, said:

"In attempts to reach a unified understanding of all forces acting among subatomic particles, theorists have felt a need for another kind of quark recently christened as a charmed quark. They argue that there must exist a family of new particles which contain charmed quarks."

These, he said, are the so-called "charmed particles." And, he added, the events observed at the Fermi Lab "seem to fit into the predicted behavior of a charmed particle."

In a telephone interview, however, he pointed out that some of the experimental results had not been fully explained by existing theory.

12% Activists

New York (UPI) — A survey by "Progressive Grocer" indicates that about 12% of grocery shoppers are consumer activists They tend to be younger than nonactivists, use shopping lists less but mechanical counters more, and outspend nonactivists. The study of weekend shoppers showed activists spent $30 16, compared with $26.94 by nonactivists. In one way, both groups are alike. They worry about the same things, but activists worry more than their opposite numbers about the cost of energy and food.

Closed Service Honors Murdered CIA Agent

Washington (UPI) — In a private ceremony on the closed grounds of the Central Intelligence Agency, his former colleagues and his two sons Wednesday honored the memory of Richard S Welch, the agency's station chief murdered last week in Athens.

The ceremony took place in the white-domed auditorium just aside the CIA's headquarters in Langley, Va. The public and reporters were barred because among those who attended were others whose identity as CIA agents has not been revealed

A CIA spokesman later described the scene

"There was a gathering in the auditorium. A full house People turned away The two sons were there. Marine Lt Patrick Welch and Nicholas, a student at Leeds University England "

Patrick, 23, and only recently commissioned, accompanied his father's body back on a special Air Force plane Tuesday prior to burial Friday, at President Ford's request, in Arlington National Cemetery.

"The service opened with the singing of the national anthem followed by introductory remarks by the director for operations (William E Nelson)," the spokesman said "Then there were remarks by Bill Colby (CIA Director William E. Colby) who talked about his (Welch's) scholarship, his knowledge of foreign affairs "

Welch, a classic Greek scholar before he entered intelligence work, was also fluent in French and Spanish

The spokesman said Welch already had the Intelligence Medal of Merit and commendations from ambassadors under whom he served

"He will be getting posthumously the Intelligence Star," he said "That will be the 32nd star (ever awarded) "

There is a role of honor in the CIA building with a remembrance book containing the names of some of those who died in agency service but others are known only to the CIA and the families concerned.

Welch was identified by an Athens newspaper as the chief CIA operative in Greece after his intelligence connections were previously revealed by an American "adversary" quarterly called Counterspy.

Identities Of Gresham Crash Dead Released

Gresham (AP) — Identification was released Wednesday of the two men killed Tuesday in a one-car accident southeast of Gresham.

The York County sheriff's office said the victims, both passengers in the auto, were Harry "Burt" Edgerley, 50, of York and Richard Gruber, 41, of rural Waco

Investigating officers said the car, driven by Robert Burnham, 41, of York, went out of control and sideswiped a bridge. Burnham was treated for minor injuries and released from a York hospital.

Ray Sullivan of rural Waco, another passenger, was hospitalized in Lincoln where he was listed in fair condition.

Man Killed By Hit-Run Driver

Omaha (UPI) — Charles Lantry, 72, was killed Wednesday evening by a hit and run driver on an Omaha street, police said.

A police spokesman said Lantry was killed instantly. Investigators were looking for medium blue pickup truck, possibly a four-wheel drive vehicle

Social Security Maximum Higher

WASHINGTON (AP) — If the government stopped making Social Security deductions from your paycheck in 1975 because you earned more than the maximum $14,100, your take home pay will shrink a bit next week when the deductions resume.

And in 1976 the deductions at the rate of 5.85% of gross wages won't stop until your income reaches $15,300.

That means that the maximum Social Security deduction for the year, which was $824.85 in 1975, will go to $895.05 in 1976, even though the rate stays the same.

Higher rates were imposed by Congress to finance increased benefits but even so the system was expected to pay out $3 billion more than it took in during 1975.

Meanwhile for the estimated 24.4 million retired and disabled persons on Medicare who have signed up for optional health insurance coverage, increases will go into effect in July. The premiums will be $7.20 a month, compared to $6.70 monthly premiums for the first half of the year.

Persons who paid their total Social Security tax before year's end because their income passed $14,100 received a temporary increase in their take-home pay. They'll lose that now.

An individual making $300 a week in 1975 stopped paying Social Security taxes on Sept. 5, the date at which he reached the ceiling. But under the increase, the same person this year will pay until Dec. 17.

Persons earning less than $14,100, or about $270 a week last year, won't be affected. They will be paying Social Security tax all year at the same amount as in 1975 because their annual salary does not get above the cutoff.

Sen. Church Takes Name Off Massachusetts Ballot

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Frank Church asked on Wednesday that his name be removed from the March 2 Massachusetts presidential primary ballot.

The Idaho Democrat said that before entering an active race for the presidency he intends to complete the work of the Select Senate Committee on Intelligence Activities.

He is chairman of the committee, which is scheduled to end its inquiry on Feb. 29.

In a statement, Church said he had written to Paul Guzzi, Massachusetts secretary of state, to withdraw his name from the primary ballot.

"I had very much hoped to enter this primary, because so many generous friends in Massachusetts have been urging me to do so," he wrote Guzzi.

"Were it open to me to enter any of the early primaries, Massachsuetts would have been my choice," Church said.

"However, I have reviewed the matter carefully, and it is apparent that time will simply not allow me both to finish the committee's work and to engage in an active campaign."

"I do not believe it would be right to leave unfinished a task entrusted to me by the Senate in order to run for higher office," Church said.

Means Receives Prison Term Of Four Years

Sioux Falls, S.D. (AP) — American Indian Movement leader Russell Means was sentenced Wednesday on a rioting charge to four years in prison.

Circuit Court Judge Richard Braithwaite, who earlier found Means guilty in a 1974 Minnehaha County Courthouse battle between police and AIM sympathizers, imposed the sentence. Means' lawyers said they would appeal.

Before sentencing, Means had requested probation so he could continue his Indian work and fight several other pending court cases.

He remained free on bond pending a hearing later today.

'Pregnancy Not A Bar To Being A Cheerleader'

Topeka, Kan. (AP) — Kansas Atty. Gen. Curt Schneider said in effect that schools cannot bar a girl from being a cheerleader merely because she is pregnant.

"School board or district rules, regulations or policy guidelines which exclude, prohibit or limit the right or capability of students who are married, pregnant or unwed parents to participate in non-academic or extracurricular school-sponsored or related activities are violative of the equal protection clause of the U.S. Constitution," Schneider said.

Schneider said that since such rules, regulations or policy guidelines are in violation of the federal constitutional provision, they are, "therefore, void and without force or effect."

The attorney general said that in the case of rules affecting only pregnant women, their promulgation is prohibited specifically by federal law known as Title IX.

Schneider's opinion was in response to Paul McNall, superintendent of the unified school district at Sharon Springs, Kan.

Astronaut Remarries In Mexico

Cabo San Lucas, Baja California (UPI) — Astronaut Edwin E. (Buzz) Aldrin Jr., who with Neil Armstrong in 1969 was the first man to land on the moon, was married in this Mexican resort Wednesday to interior decorator Beverly Van Zile.

It was the second marriage for both. They will make their home in Los Angeles.

Aldrin was divorced earlier this month from his first wife, Joan. They are the parents of two sbns and a daughter.

Aldrin, who made news after his historic space flight with marital and psychological problems, wrote an autobiography in 1973 titled "Return to Earth."

The book was filmed as a television movie and will be seen in May.

Childhood Love Blossoms Anew

BELLEVUE, Wash. (AP) — After 59 years of marriage, widower Ashley Holden "began to realize the tragedy of living alone during the sunset years."

Holden's mind drifted back to his early romance, the one that began in 1906 when he, then 12, met Emily Horton Wilbanks, then 9.

After a little hunting, Holden found his childhood sweetheart here. They will be married on Sunday.

"We began to see each other, finally decided to get married," said Mrs. Wilbanks, who had been married 52 years. "It seemed like a good idea, to spend what little time we have left, together. I thought we knew each other so well, it seemed good and right, and I hope it is."

Mental Patients To Get Rehearing

. . . Ruling Wiped Out State Law

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

More than 100 people who have been involuntarily committed for being mentally ill probably will get a chance to have another hearing.

A Christmas Eve ruling by a three-judge panel wiped out portions of Nebraska's mental health laws. The ruling may mean that a number of people committed by the Lancaster County Mental Health Board must receive a new hearing, officials report

County District Court Clerk Kandra Hahn said the records aren't clear as to how many people have been committed to the Lincoln Regional Center and Hastings by the board But, Ms Hahn estimated, more than 100 people are involved

Ms Hahn supports the ruling from the federal judges because now someone charged as mentally ill "will have at least the same rights afforded to an accused criminal "

'Due Process Denied'

The three-judge panel in Omaha said present procedures deny people due process of law.

The judges cited inadequate notice of a Mental Health Board hearing, no opportunity to cross-examine witnesses, failure to establish that the subject is dangerous to himself or others, no protection from involuntarily administered drugs, no time limits on when hearings are held and failure to give the person the assistance of an attorney.

Before the ruling, the Lancaster and Douglas county mental health boards could commit a person even if the person wasn't present. The boards didn't have to prove that the person would pose a threat.

Now, the judges said, the board must clearly establish that a person "poses a present serious threat of substantial harm to other persons or to himself, as manifested by a recent overt act or threat "

Definition Is Problem

Ms. Hahn said the big problem now is to define just what that threat might be.

"Is anyone who drinks and drives dangerous?" she asked, noting that many people brought before the board are people with drinking problems.

An example might be, she said, the case of an alcoholic lying in the street.

"He has demonstrated he has endangered himself," she said.

In response to the judges' request for an answer from the two counties involved, Deputy County Atty. Bob Gibson wrote that in order for a person to be committed as mentally ill, the danger of harm must be "both real and immediate."

The Mental Health Board will have to develop guidelines to determine what types of behavior are likely to pose those threats, Gibson said.

Pre-Hearing Needed

The judges' ruling also mandated that the mental health boards hold a pre-hearing in addition to a final hearing. The preliminary inquiry must be held within five days to determine if the person is mentally ill and if the "threat of harm" exists.

A final hearing then, must be held within 14 days after that inquiry.

The net effect of that order, Ms. Hahn explained, is to give people "time to defend themselves "

The double hearing may prove to be a disadvantage, however

Since there can be up to 19 days before a person is involuntarily committed, a person who needs treatment will not receive it during that time At any point, a person can agree to submit to treatment

Notification To Change

The ruling also requires a new notification system be set up to insure that a person finds out about both hearings and has time to prepare for those hearings

The written notification also will tell the person being accused of mentally illness that he is entitled to a lawyer and can have one appointed if he can't afford one

The judges also barred the physician member of the Mental Health Board from voting on that person's commitment, as he has been done in the past.

That means, Ms. Hahn said, that Dr Robert Osborne no longer will be able to vote to commit a person he has examined The other two members of the Lancaster County Mental Health Board are attorney Robert Camp and Ms. Hahn.

No Cases Yet

The board began operating under the new procedures this week But, they haven't had a case so far And, the details on how to hold hearings for that 100 or so people already committed haven't been ironed out yet.

Nevertheless, Ms. Hahn predicts a rash of cases will be brought before them in January.

"Business is slow during the holiday season," she said. But soon, people who have problems or those who decide to do something about someone they think has problems will keep the board busy

The judges' ruling, Ms. Hahn said, "came just in time for the new push."

Thousands Are Losing Pensions

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thousands of workers are losing their pension plans as private companies terminate the coverage in unexpectedly high numbers, Rep. Charles A Vanik said

He said as many as 39,000 employes may have lost pension benefits during December alone because an estimated 1,300 private companies ended their pension plans.

Since the new federal pension plan went into effect less than 16 months ago, Vanik said, "approximately 5,600 private pension plans have been terminated — more than four times the expected rate of termination."

"As a result," he said, "many of the 160,000 employes who had been covered by those plans now face an uncertain retirement future."

He said the government's Pension Benefit Guaranty Corp. has been processing termination notices at an escalating rate, with 450 plans dissolved in the days immediately before and after Christmas.

Most of these plans covered an average of 30 workers, said Vanik, who is chairman of the oversight subcommittee of the House Ways and Means Committee.

An official of the Pension Benefit Guaranty Corp. said Vanik's figures appear "fairly close to the way it's been running, give or take 100 or so."

He said most pension plans operate on a calendar year so it would be understandable that if a company wanted to phase out its plan, it would do so now. In addition, as of Jan. 1, pension plans must conform to most aspects of the new federal law or agree to do so retroactively.

About half of the companies terminating their plans gave poor economic conditions as the reason or the actual shutdown of a plant or an entire business The others said the reasons varied from the complicated requirements of the new law plus the rising fees of actuaries, accountants and attorneys who work on various parts of the plans

Vanik said Congress recently heard pension plan administrators testify that the complicated compliance forms were being simplified with special urgency on streamlining procedures which small firms use to certify their pension plans

He said the government is committed to smoothing out the procedures so that small as well as large pension plans can flourish

I urge all employers who may be tempted to terminate pension plans to look at the good faith efforts of the government agencies during recent weeks to improve the administration of the Pension Reform Act Vanik said

'I believe that these actions remove any excuse for terminating such plans, he said

If a company seems on the verge of closing out its pension plan right now, Vanik said, the workers should demand a close accounting of the reasons.

Scale Servicing Company Suspended By Ag Director

By The Associated Press

State Agriculture Director Glenn Kreuscher said Wednesday he has suspended one company that services scales for retail merchants and has called employes of another firm in for testing.

He did not identify the firms. Kreuscher said Nebraska merchants were doing a better job of weighing their products than they had in the past, but some scales were inaccurate.

Under Nebraska regulations, a certified scale repairman can remove a state inspectors "red tag" and put a scale back in operation. Kreuscher said some of the scales put back in use were not properly repaired.

Nothing Links FBI To King's Murder

©The New York Times

Washington — For nearly eight years the assassination of the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. has puzzled many private citizens and even some government officials who were skeptical that James Earl Ray, an escape ex-convict with no obvious antipathy toward the black civil rights leader, had been the lone assassin, despite Ray's own admission of guilt in court.

Last month when the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence disclosed that the Federal Bureau of Investigation had carried out a secret six-year effort to discredit publicly Dr. King, questions suddenly were being asked in official quarters: Might the FBI itself have been involved in some way in the murder of King at a Memphis motel on April 4, 1968?

Pressure for an investigation of the FBI's harassment of King was immediate. The Senate committee considered extending its own investigation but decided to leave it to some agency that could prosecute, if evidence warranted. Within days, the Justice Department's Civil Rights Division opened an examination — the first ever — of the 96-volume archive the FBI had compiled on King in the decade preceding his death.

About the same time, The New York Times began its own inquiry into the case. Although limited by Ray's refusal to talk with reporters and by lack of access to the still-classified Justice Department and FBI files, reporters investigated many of the baffling, still-unanswered questions about Ray's possible motives, movements, money and connections, as well as the activities of the FBI.

After numerous interviews over the last six weeks with present and former officials of the Justice Department and the FBI, lawyers and others familiar with the case, the Times found no evidence that would implicate the FBI either directly or indirectly in the killing.

Sources familiar with the investigation by the Senate select committee asserted that they had found no evidence of FBI complicity in the portion of the King file they had examined.

Many of the FBI personnel who talked to The Times emphasized that they worked on the King murder case with no preconceptions about whether a conspiracy had existed.

As one put it, "We didn't have the slightest damned idea who or what" was behind the killing at the outset, and he noted that many possibilites were considered, including the likelihood that the killer was an agent of a foreign power, but discarded such theories as contradictory evidence mounted.

One facet of the Justice Department's current internal review is the question of whether the animosity evidenced by J. Edgar Hoover, the late FBI director, and other high bureau officials toward King created a climate within the bureau that resulted in an investigation of his death that was not thorough and expeditious enough.

But a number of former FBI agents and others, including Justice Department officials who read the product of the FBI's investigation as it flowed into headquarters in 1968, insisted that the bureau's efforts to find King's killer had been unstinting.

Several former FBI and Justice Department officials noted that whatever Hoover's views might have been, the pressure on the bureau to find the killer had been intense, both from Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark and President Johnson.

"People were saying we wouldn't crack the case because Hoover didn't like King," a former FBI official said, "and he (Hoover) made it very apparent (within the FBI) that we had to solve it."

"We followed shotgun leads, wasting manpower and money like it was going out of style", the man said.

The FBI's hunt for King's killer was one of the most comprehensive "special," or high-priority, investigations in the bureau's history, involving at its peak some 3,000 agents — then about half the bureau's total number — more than 30,000 interviews of individuals believed to have knowledge of the case, and a cost of nearly $1.5 million over two months.

Several officials, in discounting speculation about the bureau's involvement in the King killing, pointed out that if, inconceivably, the bureau had chosen to arrange for such a murder it presumably could have developed a more sophisticated and far less risky method than the employment of a bumbling ex-convict with a hunting rifle.

Several past and present Justice Department lawyers pointed out that, to take a cynical view, whatever the degree of Hoover's personal dislike for King, it would not have been in the FBI director's interest to see the black leader martyred, but rather to relay to King every threat brought to the bureau's attention in the hope of frightening him out of the civil rights movement.

Quarks' 'Charm' Believed Displayed

©The New York Times

By WALTER SULLIVAN

New York — Physicists in the United States and Europe believe they have produced for the first time particles of matter displaying an elusive property called "charm."

The development is being described as a landmark by theorists who see in it support for their view that all the heavier particles of matter are formed of four basic subunits called "quarks."

According to their theory, the quarks are the very essence of matter and control a wide range of natural phenomena. One of these four quarks, which they have named the "charmed quark," would play its own special role.

While the quarks so far have eluded direct observation, the theory has gained considerable acceptance in the scientific world.

The existence of the property called charm, definable only in terms of phenomena on the subatomic level, was suggested in 1964 by Drs. James D. Bjorken, now at Stanford University, and Sheldon L. Glashow, now at Harvard. It was not then related to the quark theory but was proposed as an explanation for certain interactions between colliding particles.

Charm would be an indestructible property of certain particles that would survive the transformations occurring in a collision in much the way an electric charge does. The sum of the electric charges carried by particles emerging from such an event always equals the sum of charges on the original particles.

Not much attention was paid to the charm idea until November 1974 when two completely unexpected particles were discovered. Their existence could be explained if they were formed of a charmed quark mated with a charmed antiquark. Some six particles of this type have now been discovered.

It is well established that for every particle of ordinary matter there must be an antiparticle that is identical but opposite in such respects as electric charge or spin. The mating of a charmed quark with a charmed antiquark would not outwardly display charm because the antiquark would cancel the charm of the quark.

The discoveries reported this week are of particles that apparently display charm. They are, however, so short-lived that their characteristics can be deduced only from their decay products.

The American experiments were conducted at the Fermi National Accelerator Laboratory in Batavia, Ill., which has the world's most powerful atom-smashing beam. Participants were from the University of California at Berkeley, the Universities of Hawaii and Wisconsin and CERN, the European nuclear research center near Geneva, where the European experiments were conducted.

Dr. Benjamin W. Lee, theorist at the Fermi Lab, said:

"In attempts to reach a unified understanding of all forces acting among subatomic particles, theorists have felt a need for another kind of quark recently christened as a charmed quark. They argue that there must exist a family of new particles which contain charmed quarks.

"These," he said, "are the so-called charmed particles." And he added the events observed at the Fermi Lab seem to fit into the predicted behavior of a charmed particle.

In a telephone interview, however, he pointed out that some of the experimental results had not been fully explained by existing theory.

Social Security Maximum Higher

WASHINGTON (AP) — If the government stopped making Social Security deductions from your paycheck in 1975 because you earned more than the maximum $14,100, your take home pay will shrink a bit next week when the deductions resume

And in 1976 the deductions at the rate of 5 85% of gross wages won't stop until your income reaches $15,300

That means that the maximum Social Security deduction for the year which was $824 85 in 1975, will go to $895 05 in 1976, even though the rate stays the same

Higher rates were imposed by Congress to finance increased benefits but even so the system was expected to pay out $3 billion more than it took in during 1975

Meanwhile for the estimated 24 4 million retired and disabled persons on Medicare who have signed up for optional health insurance coverage, increases will go into effect in July The premiums will be $7 20 a month, compared to $6 70 monthly premiums for the first half of the year

Persons who paid their total Social Security tax before year's end because their income passed $14,100 received a temporary increase in their take-home pay They'll lose that now

An individual making $300 a week in 1975 stopped paying Social Security taxes on Sept 5, the date at which he reached the ceiling But under the increase, the same person this year will pay until Dec 17

Persons earning less than $14,100, or about $270 a week last year, won't be affected They will be paying Social Security tax all year at the same amount as in 1975 because their annual salary does not get above the cutoff

Sen. Church Takes Name Off Massachusetts Ballot

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen Frank Church asked on Wednesday that his name be removed from the March 2 Massachusetts presidential primary ballot

The Idaho Democrat said that before entering an active race for the presidency he intends to complete the work of the Select Senate Committee on Intelligence Activities

He is chairman of the committee, which is scheduled to end its inquiry on Feb 29

In a statement, Church said he had written to Paul Guzzi, Massachusetts secretary of state, to withdraw his name from the primary ballot

"I had very much hoped to enter this primary, because so many generous friends in Massachusetts have been urging me to do so," he wrote Guzzi

"Were it open to me to enter any of the early primaries, Massachsuetts would have been my choice, ' Church said

"However, I have reviewed the matter carefully, and it is apparent that time will simply not allow me both to finish the committee's work and to engage in an active campaign "

"I do not believe it would be right to leave unfinished a task entrusted to me by the Senate in order to run for higher office," Church said

Means Receives Prison Term Of Four Years

Sioux Falls, S D (AP) — American Indian Movement leader Russell Means was sentenced Wednesday on a rioting charge to four years in prison

Circuit Court Judge Richard Braithwaite, who earlier found Means guilty in a 1974 Minnehaha County Courthouse battle between police and AIM sympathizers, imposed the sentence. Means' lawyers said they would appeal

Before sentencing, Means had requested probation so he could continue his Indian work and fight several other pending court cases

He remained free on bond pending a hearing later today

'Pregnancy Not A Bar To Being A Cheerleader'

Topeka, Kan (AP) — Kansas Atty Gen Curt Schneider said in effect that schools cannot bar a girl from being a cheerleader merely because she is pregnant.

"School board or district rules, regulations or policy guidelines which exclude, prohibit or limit the right or capability of students who are married, pregnant or unwed parents to participate in non-academic or extracurricular school-sponsored or related activities are violative of the equal protection clause of the U S. Constitution," Schneider said.

Schneider said that since such rules, regulations or policy guidelines are in violation of the federal constitutional provision, they are, "therefore, void and without force or effect "

The attorney general said that in the case of rules affecting only pregnant women, their promulgation is prohibited specifically by federal law known as Title IX

Schneider's opinion was in response to Paul McNall, superintendent of the unified school district at Sharon Springs, Kan

Envoy To Be Named

Vail, Colo. (UPI) — President Ford will nominate Willard A. De Pree, a member of the State Department's policy planning staff since 1972, as the first U S ambassador to the People's Republic of Mozambique

Astronaut Remarries In Mexico

Cabo San Lucas, Baja California (UPI) — Astronaut Edwin E (Buzz) Aldrin Jr., who with Neil Armstrong in 1969 was the first man to land on the moon. was married in this Mexican resort Wednesday to interior decorator Beverly Van Zile

It was the second marriage for both They will make their home in Los Angeles

Aldrin was divorced earlier this month from his first wife, Joan They are the parents of two sbns and a daughter

Aldrin, who made news after his historic space flight with marital and psychological problems, wrote an autobiography in 1973 titled "Return to Earth "

The book was filmed as a television movie and will be seen in May

Childhood Love Blossoms Anew

BELLEVUE, Wash (AP) — After 59 years of marriage. widower Ashley Holden "began to realize the tragedy of living alone during the sunset years "

Holden's mind drifted back to his early romance, the one that began in 1906 when he, then 12, met Emily Horton Wilbanks, then 9

After a little hunting, Holden found his childhood sweetheart here They will be married on Sunday

"We began to see each other, finally decided to get married, ' said Mrs Wilbanks, who had been married 52 years "It seemed like a good idea, to spend what little time we have left, together I thought we knew each other so well, it seemed good and right, and I hope it is "

Scale Servicing Company Suspended By Ag Director

By The Associated Press

State Agriculture Director Glenn Kreuscher said Wednesday he has suspended one company that services scales for retail merchants and has called employes of another firm in for testing

He did not identify the firms. Kreuscher said Nebraska merchants were doing a better job of weighing their products than they had in the past, but some scales were inaccurate

Under Nebraska regulations, a certified scale repairman can remove a state inspectors "red tag" and put a scale back in operation Kreuscher said some of the scales put back in use were not properly repaired

TAXATION WITHOUT REPRESENTATION IS TYRANNY... GIVE ME LIBERTY OR GIVE ME DEATH...
IF THEY WANT TO HAVE A WAR, LET IT BEGIN HERE...THE SHOT HEARD 'ROUND THE WORLD...
DONT FIRE UNTIL YOU SEE THE WHITES OF
THEIR EYES! I ONLY REGRET I HAVE BUT ONE LIFE
TO LOSE. IN THE NAME OF GOD AND THE CONTINENTAL CONGRESS. THESE ARE THE TIMES THAT TRY MEN'S SOULS.
I HAVE NOT YET BEGUN TO FIGHT... IF THAT BE TREASON,
MAKE THE MOST OF IT ONE IF BY LAND TWO IF BY SEA. WE HOLD THESE TRUTHS TO BE SELF-EVIDENT THAT ALL MEN ARE CREATED EQUAL, THAT THEY ARE ENDOWED BY THEIR CRE ATOR WITH CERTAIN UNALIEN ABLE RIGHTS, THAT AMONG THESE ARE LIFE, LIBERTY
AND THE PURSUIT OF HAPPI- NESS... THAT THESE UNIT- ED COLONIES
ARE, AND OF A RIGHT OUGHT TO BE, FREE AND INDEPENDENT STATES... DON'T GIVE UP THE SHIP. WE HAVE MET THE ENEMY AND THEY ARE OURS. ETERNAL VIGILANCE IS THE PRICE OF LIBERTY...O SAY, CAN YOU SEE

Happy Bicentennial New Year to U.S.!

FIRST IN WAR, FIRST IN PEACE, AND FIRST IN THE HEARTS OF HIS COUNTRYMEN THE AMERICAN CONTINENTS
ARE HENCEFORTH NOT TO BE CONSIDERED AS SUBJECTS FOR FUTURE COLONIZATION BY ANY EUROPEAN POWERS...
LIBERTY AND UNION NOW AND FOREVER, ONE AND INSEPARABLE GO WEST YOUNG MAN REMEMBER
THE ALAMO. WHAT HATH GOD WROUGHT A HOUSE DIVIDED AGAINST ITSELF CAN NOT STAND... THAT GOVERNMENT OF THE PEOPLE, BY THE PEOPLE, FOR THE PEOPLE, SHALL NOT PERISH FROM THE EARTH. WAR IS HELL BURY CONTENTION WITH THE WAR... GIVE ME YOUR TIRED YOUR POOR...THE MELTING POT. REMEMBER THE MAINE. SPEAK SOFT LY AND CARRY A BIG STICK.. THE YANKS ARE COMING! LAFAYETTE, WE ARE HERE.
THE LONE EAGLE THE ONLY THING WE HAVE TO FEAR IS FEAR
ITSELF PRAISE THE LORD AND PASS THE AMMUNITION...I SHALL RETURN.. D-DAY... KILROY WAS HERE. NUTS!

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE – Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Thursday, January 1, 1976

The New Year opens with a New Moon in Capricorn. Lunar cycle is high for Sagittarius, Capricorn, Aquarius. Aspects, planetary positions indicate business manipulations which start 1976 off in a cloud of controversy. Someone, who has advance information, does some juggling and stock prices jump through hoops. This will be verified when the market is once again "open for business."

☆ ☆ ☆

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Be practical enough to check prices, compare reports. Hold off on any contracts — withhold signature until all facts are in and evaluated. Capricorn, Cancer persons figure prominently. Be aware of needs, potential — and don't short change yourself.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Finish project which has been "hanging on." One who cares about your image may have some sharp words. This is all meant to cut through red tape. Know it and interpret it in that light. Libra and Aries could be involved.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Study Taurus message for valid hint. You can get to heart of matters if willing to accept truth. Know it and act accordingly. A creative friend, associate shares exciting news. Welcome chance for romantic interlude. Leo figures prominently.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You know what should be done, what you are capable of doing — but legal red tape may mean delay. Avoid rushing, leaping to conclusions. Obtain overall view. Don't frighten persons who might be future allies. Message will become increasingly clear!

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Social activity accelerates. Aura of celebration persists. You need some peace and quiet — in company of loved one. Gemini, Sagittarius persons are in picture. Remember resolutions, especially those regarding diet, health.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Spending, budget, restrictions, planning ahead in financial area — these are spotlighted. Be thorough. Don't delegate duties. Double check. Count your change. Aquarius, Scorpio and Leo persons are in picture. Relative may call in connection with "money advice."

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Be ready for analysis of efforts, for new approach to questions, problems, for refreshing change of scenery. Get facts connected with costs, building material. Gemini, Virgo individuals figure prominently.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Light, diplomatic touch gets best results. Means don't shout, prod, chide or threaten. Family member is willing to co-operate if you provide face-saving device. Taurus, Virgo and Libra could be in picture.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Money affairs command attention. Budget layout may be necessary. Check various possibilities for savings, investing, gaining legitimate tax deductions. Quiet time alone would be more beneficial than usual.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): First day of new year is one during which you organize priorities, gain reassurance of support from loved one. Another Capricorn, a Cancer and Leo could be involved. There is optimistic note. Wear bright colors. Do plenty of smiling!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Steer clear of argument with one who has been foolish and wants to "cover up." Closed-door conference could be on agenda. Later, a "second celebration" could get under way. Remember, there is a tomorrow!

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You'll be feeling fine, despite last night. Know it and proceed with confidence. Accent on resolutions, desires, wishes that can come true. Leo, Virgo and Aquarius could be in picture. One who cares for you expresses feelings.

IF JAN. 1 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are independent, creative, original, egotistical, willing to battle for principles. January and October could be your most significant months this year. Leo, Aquarius persons play important roles in your life. You've made domestic adjustments — you are going to learn a lot about yourself. Contacts made this month will enhance financial status.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE – Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Thursday, January 1, 1976

The New Year opens with a New Moon in Capricorn. Lunar cycle is high for Sagittarius, Capricorn, Aquarius. Aspects, planetary positions indicate business manipulations which start 1976 off in a cloud of controversy. Someone who has advance information does some juggling and stock prices jump through hoops. This will be verified when the market is once again open for business.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Be practical enough to check prices, compare reports. Hold off on any contracts — withhold signature until all facts are in and evaluated. Capricorn, Cancer persons figure prominently. Be aware of needs, potential — and don't short change yourself!

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Finish project which has been hanging on. One who cares about your image may have some sharp words. This is all meant to cut through red tape. Know it and interpret it in that light. Libra and Aries could be involved.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Study Taurus message for valid hint. You can get to heart of matters if willing to accept truth. Know it and act accordingly. A creative friend, associate shares exciting news. Welcome chance for romantic interlude. Leo figures prominently.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You know what should be done, what you are capable of doing — but legal red tape may mean delay. Avoid rushing, leaping to conclusions. Obtain overall view. Don't frighten persons who might be future allies. Message will become increasingly clear.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Social activity accelerates. Aura of celebration persists. You need some peace and quiet — in company of loved one. Gemini, Sagittarius persons are in picture. Remember resolutions, especially those regarding diet, health.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Spending, budget restrictions, planning ahead in financial area — these are spotlighted. Be thorough. Don't delegate duties. Double check. Count your change. Aquarius, Scorpio and Leo persons are in picture. Relative may call in connection with money advice.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Be ready for analysis of efforts, for new approach to questions, problems, for refreshing change of scenery. Get facts connected with costs, building material. Gemini, Virgo individuals figure prominently.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Light, diplomatic touch gets best results. Means don't shout, prod, chide or threaten. Family member is willing to co-operate if you provide face saving device. Taurus, Virgo and Libra could be in picture.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Money affairs command attention. Budget layout may be necessary. Check various possibilities for savings, investing, gaining legitimate tax deductions. Quiet time alone would be more beneficial than usual.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): First day of new year is one during which you organize priorities, gain reassurance of support from loved one. Another Capricorn, a Cancer and Leo could be involved. There is optimistic note. Wear bright colors. Do plenty of smiling.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Steer clear of argument with one who has been foolish and wants to cover up. Closed door conference could be on agenda. Later a second celebration could get under way. Remember there is a tomorrow.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You'll be feeling fine despite last night. Know it and proceed with confidence. Accent on resolutions, desires, wishes that can come true. Leo, Virgo and Aquarius could be in picture. One who cares for you expresses feelings.

IF JAN. 1 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are independent, creative, original, eight style willing to battle for principles. January and October could be your most significant months this year. Leo, Aquarius persons play important roles in your life. You've made domestic adjustments — you are going to learn a lot about yourself. Contacts made this month will enhance financial status.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
